Wounded inmates beaten, stabbed at Attica

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A National Guardsman has testified that guards and state troopers pulled wounded inmates from stretchers, then beat and stabbed them in the hours following the retaking of Attica Prison in 1971.

James O'Day, 28, now an Amherst high school biology teacher, then a stretcher-bearer, was the fifth witness Wednesday at a hearing ordered by State Supreme Court Justice Ann T. Mikoll.

The hearing is to determine if the state is engaging in selective prosecution of crimes committed during the four-day prison rebellion in which 43 men were killed.

O'Day cried Wednesday as he told of helping to carry a wounded black inmate from a prison hospital to his cell. The man had been shot.

A small white man wearing a green hunting jacket accosted the stretcher-bearers, he said.

"He picked up the end of the stretcher and he dumped the man off and he fell onto his shoulder and head and bounced off the floor," O'Day testified.

"Then the man came over, pulled out a screwdriver and said, 'If you don't get up....'"

"He stabbed him five or six times right in the buttocks."

O'Day said he told state investigators about this incident and others but was never called before a Wyoming County grand jury investigating the prison uprising. Thus far, 62 former inmates but no law enforcement officers have been indicted.

The hearing was requested by lawyers for Eric (Jomo) Thompson, who is accused of kidnaping and killing Kenneth Hess, another inmate, during the riot.

Thompson is asking Justice Mikoll to dismiss the case against him if she should find that selective prosecution was practiced.

Gov. Hugh L. Carey said Wednesday that amnesty may be the only way to give equal justice to those accused of committing crimes during the uprising because it has taken so long to prosecute the charges.

FIREMEN RESCUED

A helicopter comes to the aid of firemen momentarily trapped on a ridge in Glendale where a fire burned brush-covered hillside and caused damage to six houses. The helicopter also dumps a chemical on the flames. Brush fires in the Southland, fed by dry temperatures and strong Santa Ana winds have burned 50,000 acres. See story on page 2.

Pomona killing is linked with earlier knifing

Bloody footprints of slayer?

The murder late Tuesday morning of Mrs. Myrna Van Klaveren in the office of a Pomona optometrist where she worked has been linked to the apparent attempt Friday to kill a young woman outside the restroom of a nearby savings and loan association building, police said today.

Meanwhile, they reported, there have been no arrests made despite an intensive investigation of the fatal stabbing of Mrs. Van Klaveren, 36, in the office of Dr. Milton Penner at 240 S. Main St. Mrs. Van Klaveren, secretary-receptionist there, was working alone Tuesday when she was slain.

Police also said they have obtained several bloody footprints, believed those of the killer, from the carpeting inside the optometrist's office. The prints were raised through a chemical process.

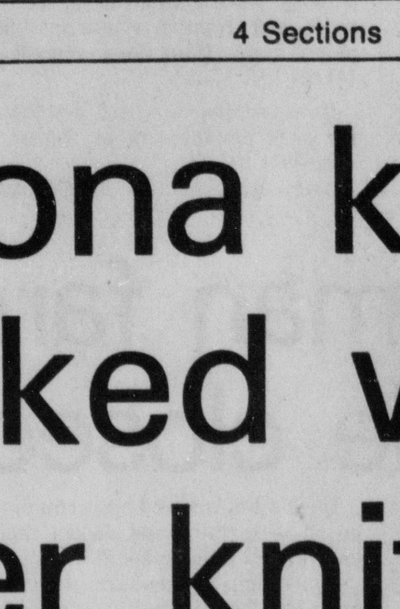

The knife attack on Mrs. Van Klaveren resembled the attack Friday on Mrs. Deborah Ann Lantz, 21, who was stabbed just above her throat by a man outside the lavatory in the Pomona First Federal Building at 256 S. Garey Ave. That building is two blocks from Dr. Penner's office.

Mrs. Lantz said the man grabbed her, threw her to the ground and said nothing before stabbing her. She began screaming and her screams apparently routed her attacker. She was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where she was released after treatment.

A Pomona Police Department artist is preparing a sketch of the man who attacked Mrs. Lantz, based on details given by her and by a Pomona man who reported seeing a man of a similar description loitering near Dr. Penner's small office shortly before Mrs. Van Klaveren was killed. Mrs. Lantz described her attacker as a Negro about 6 feet and 170 pounds.

Mrs Van Klaveren was found lying dead on the office floor at noon Tuesday by a patient of the optometrist. She had suffered multiple stab wounds.

The victim, who had daughters 11, 13 and 15 years old, was the wife of a Chino dairyman.

ARRIVE IN L.A.

Report tells of SLA diary

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A handwritten diary detailing the day-to-day activities of the Symbionese Liberation Army was found by the FBI in the apartment occupied by William and Emily Harris, the San Francisco Chronicle said today.

An FBI spokesman said he could not confirm the newspaper account, which said the diary described the actions of the SLA in dodging law enforcement officers.

The diary reportedly refers to the Hibernia Bank robbery in which newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst was photographed holding a rifle and to a scuffle outside an Inglewood sporting goods store in which Harris narrowly escaped capture.

The Chronicle said the source of the story, who was not named, had refused to say whether the diary described the Feb. 4, 1974, kidnaping of Miss Hearst.

The Chronicle reported that its source said the diary contains many details about the incident at the Inglewood store in which witnesses reported that Harris escaped under the cover of shots fired by Miss Hearst from across the street.

The Chronicle also reported that it had learned from a Hall of Justice source that the FBI will check out slugs and shell casings from the 9mm pistol that killed prison reformer Wilbert "Popeye" Jackson against two 9mm guns seized after the arrests of Miss Hearst and the Harrises.

One of the pistols reportedly was found in the apartment occupied by Miss Hearst and Wendy Yoshimura.

Shot at Ford was a protest against system—Mrs. Moore

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The woman accused of firing a shot at President Ford earlier this week says she did it as "a kind of ultimate protest against the system."

From her San Francisco jail cell Wednesday, Sara Jane Moore tried to explain her actions in a two-hour interview with Los Angeles Times reporter Ellen Hume. It was Mrs. Moore's first press interview since she was jailed following Monday's shooting incident.

"I did not want to kill somebody," the 45-year-old divorcee said, "but there comes a point when the only way you can make a statement is to pick up a gun."

She also alluded to her need to prove herself to radical comrades in the Bay Area, who shunned her when they discovered she was an informant for the FBI.

Mrs. Moore said her reasons for the attempted assassination were "complicated."

She wanted to "do something to break off with (my) insidious relationship with the FBI," she said.

Although her public defender advised her against it, Mrs. Moore summoned Ms. Hume, saying she wanted the reporter to help her draft a statement outlining her political motives for the shooting. The reporter has interviewed Mrs. Moore many times over the past six months in connection with a series on the radical movement.

Ms. Hume, who prefers the feminist designation, said in the previous interviews that Mrs. Moore spoke frequently of her feeling of isolation. She was rejected as a security risk by radicals she sought to befriend and regarded as "flaky" by news people she said could interview her.

". . . all the avenues of taking action were being closed, one at a time," she said Wednesday night. "The FBI has thrown me out the window and to the dogs."

She said the capture of Patty Hearst "made a tremendous impact on me."

Miss Moore said she was hopeful her dramatic gesture would "forge some kind of unity between the rage that led to the formation of the SLA combined with the theoreticians."

Yet she also said she expected to be caught and was glad no one was hurt.

"I did want to be prevented," she said. "I don't like to kill people."

She repeated her earlier statement that she couldn't believe it was so easy to take a shot at the President.

It was "like target practice," she said. "The security was so stupid ... it was like an invitation."

She said she was not influenced by the attempt on Ford's life made 17 days before her own by Manson follower Lynette Fromme, whom she called "insane."

Of herself, the nightgown-clad defendant said: "I am not a berserk woman," adding that she expects "to go to prison for a long time."

Still no thanks from President

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Oliver "Bill" Sipple, the 32-year-old ex-Marine who deflected a gun as a woman fired a shot at President Ford last Monday, says he hasn't had a word of thanks from the White House.

"Nobody's said nothing to me about it, nothing," he said Wednesday at the Tenderloin district apartment he shares with a merchant seaman. "I haven't heard anything from the White House."

"But he's a very busy man, too," he said of President Ford.

A White House spokesman said in Washington that he did not know whether Sipple had been contacted by the President.

Patty no longer 'urban guerrilla'

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Patricia Hearst is no longer listed as an "urban guerrilla" on a jail booking slip.

San Mateo County Sheriff John McDonald said Wednesday that Miss Hearst had conferred with her attorneys and now lists herself as "not employed."

Miss Hearst had described herself as an "urban guerrilla" when she was booked into the jail after her capture. Her attorney said later she picked that designation because she felt pressured and couldn't think of anything else.

Dollar rises in Europe

LONDON (AP) — Pushed upward by America's recovering economy, the U.S. dollar surged to new highs for the year on European foreign exchanges today.

"Everyone's jumping on the dollar bandwagon," a London dealer reported amid heavy buying of the U.S. currency.

The ailing pound sterling plunged to an all-time low, and gold hit a 20-month low in London.

The pound dropped to $2.0565 by midmorning after closing Monday at $2.0708.

The dollar bought 4.5897 French francs in Paris, its highest mark since Dec. 13; 2.6785 marks in Frankfurt, the highest level there since last September, and 690 lire in Milan, the best price this year.

Closing prices Monday had been 4.5555 francs, 2.6588 marks and 684.90 lire.

Harrises booked in L.A. on 18 counts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Symbionese Liberation Army members Bill and Emily Harris were booked here early today on 18 state felony counts after a secrecy-shrouded flight by commercial jet from San Francisco.

The transfer was made under strict security, with officials mute as to travel and arrival plans in an effort to avoid incidents, police said.

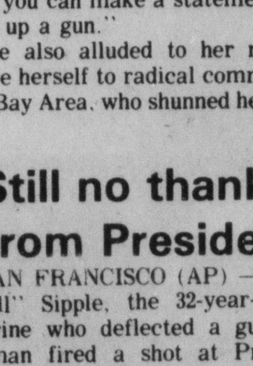

The 18 felony counts against the Harrises, traveling companions of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, include assault with intent to murder, armed robbery, kidnaping and auto theft. Federal firearms violation charges against the two were dropped to clear the way for prompt state prosecution. Bail was set at $500,000 each.

The Harrises were to be turned over to the Sheriff's Department and arraigned today on charges stemming from a shootout involving three suspects at a suburban Inglewood sporting goods store May 16, 1974, and the alleged escapades of the trio — including Miss Hearst — in the hours after the incident.

Miss Hearst faces 19 charges in connection with the spree, but it is not known yet if she will be transferred to Los Angeles to face trial. She is undergoing psychiatric tests in the San Mateo County jail in Redwood City.

The Harrises, accompanied by four officers, took a regularly scheduled Western Air Lines jet from San Francisco to Los Angeles late Wednesday night. Other passengers were either unaware of their presence, or showed no notice of it, an airline spokeswoman said.

Stubborn heat wave hangs on: cooling due

A stubborn heat wave, the hottest and longest of the year, was expected to push temperatures past 100 degrees once more today. Once more the weatherman is predicting a cooling trend for tomorrow.

The heat wave began Monday with a high of 103 and has remained near that level for the past three days, recording mercury readings of up to 105 in the valley.

Highs at weather stations Wednesday were 102 in Pomona, 103 in Ontario and 100 in Walnut, with lows in the mid 60s.

Although most of the fires which erupted in the Southland Monday were under control, firemen warned once more of highly dangerous conditions, particularly in the mountains.

The weatherman said the heat wave was prolonged by Santa Ana conditions, with hot winds blowing seaward from the inland deserts. The winds also heated up the coastal regions with Long Beach recording a high of 105, a record for September, and the Los Angeles Airport area chalking up a 102.

Friday's forecast calls for a high of 97, and an overnight low of 63, with very low humidity readings.

Layoffs continue in key industries

By G. G. LaBELLE
Associated Press Writer

Layoffs are continuing in many major industries despite a slight easing of unemployment. Numerous workers who lost jobs remain without work and their prospects of being rehired are questionable.

An Associated Press check of major industries shows some — notably steel, aerospace and, in some cases, construction — are still dropping employes. Many other employers remain uneasy enough about the economy to not rehire all workers and some apparently have no plans to return to the peak employment of before the recession.

"The ball may have bounced back a little bit, but it didn't bounce very high," was the way Warren Smith, an Ohio ALF-CIO official, characterized the situation.

Government employment experts had expected employment to lag behind economic recovery because employers tend to cancel abbreviated work weeks and even pay overtime before rehiring or hiring new workers.

The latest Labor Department unemployment figure was 8.4 per cent in August, down from the peak of 9.2 per cent last May. The work week averaged 39.8 hours in August, up an hour from last spring.

Of those industries rehiring, the auto industry seemed typical. It hit its nadir last March, with 213,000 of its 712,000 workers on indefinite layoff. Now, 81,000 remain indefinitely laid off, with the number expected to decrease to 77,000 by the end of the September.

The same pattern was seen in the textile industry. In South Carolina, a major textile area, a spokesman for the state Textile Manufacturers Association said that last month 159,000 persons were employed in textile mills and related synthetic fiber plants, down from the low point of 144,000 last March.

However, that was still well below the peak employment of 180,000 in June 1974.

And a spokesman for the Celanese Fiber Co. in Rome, Ga., which has cut layoffs from 700 to 450 since March, was not optimistic about the prospects of laid-off workers.

"We've done most of the rehiring we plan to do, within a small percentage," he said.

Another example is the appliance industry. At General Electric's Appliance Park complex near Louisville, Ky., a spokesman says 5,400 of 24,000 workers were laid off between September 1974 and last May. Two thousand have been rehired, he said.

What happens to those workers not rehired? Again, the auto industry may be an example.

Layoffs in the industry began earlier than in other fields because car makers were stung by the 1973 Arab oil embargo before other manufacturers began to suffer under recession. That means the 712,000 figure used as the base during the recent layoffs was already down from the 803,000 hourly workers employed before the embargo.

Of the nearly 100,000 workers not rehired, many on layoff for more than a year were dropped from employment lists because they were no longer eligible for rehiring under union contracts. Others were recalled but never appeared because they'd gotten other jobs.

One California auto worker, Louise Betts, was skeptical about how many in the auto industry had found other work.

"Everyone has it bad," she said. "It's almost impossible to find a job anywhere. I'm just glad I have GM to go back to."

Mrs. Betts, who has received most of her salary since her layoff last December in unemployment and supplemental benefits, says she expects to be rehired in January.

A United Steel Workers official in Utah says much the same thing when asked about workers who leave the industry.

"Some have found jobs in construction, though that's been badly hit too," he said. "Some are working in service stations and driving cabs, but the bulk of them still are getting unemployment compensation and supplemental unemployment."

Over-all, the number of employes in the steel industry is still dropping. The American Iron and Steel Institute says 447,500 workers were employed in steel mills in August, the latest month for which it has figures. That was down from a peak of 524,000 in July 1974.

However, a spokesman noted that the 4,400 drop in employment from this July to this August was the lowest drop this year, and others noted that production is now increasing because a price hike has been announced for October. Where that will leave production — and employment — after October remains to be seen.

Employment is also still falling in the aerospace industry. A spokesman for Boeing Aerospace Co. says the company now has 48,300 workers, down from 54,700 last January. The company had predicted it would lay off from 2,000 to 8,000 this year, and the spokesman says:

"Our assumption now is that we will hit the 8,000 level by the end of the year."

Parts of the construction industry provide another example of still slipping employment. In Florida, with a big construction industry because of its population growth, state figures show 263,000 workers employed in August 1974, compared to 175,700 in August.

However, the drop of 2,100 from July to August was the smallest since the slide began, a state spokesman noted Florida's economy lags about six months behind the nation as a whole, and a spokesman for Florida builders had an optimistic forecase also.

"It's starting back up," said Tom Becker of the Florida Homebuilders Association. "We can look back and cry a little bit, but look forward with a little bit of a smile on our faces."

Generally, spokesman in most industries were optimistic about the economic and employment outlook. But Newton A. Brockaw of the Columbus, Ohio, Industrial League saw one possibility that could cut short any improvement in the economy: a fuel shortage this winter.

"That's when we get hell kicked out of us," he said.

'Gentleman farmer' tax loophole closed by law

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The "gentleman farmer" tax break that enabled former Gov. Ronald Reagan to legally avoid state income taxes in 1970 will end Jan. 1 under a bill signed into law.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. signed the measure Wednesday. It had been introduced by Assemblyman Dan Boatwright, D-Concord.

The new law will eliminate $25 million in tax deductions claimed by 6,000 wealthy Californians.

The old law allowed nonfarmers to invest in farming and deduct their losses from other income.

Boatwright's measure also increases minimum taxes for preferential income such as stock options, capital gains and accelerated depreciation.

The author said more than 70 per cent of the taxpayers affected by the bill earn between $50,000 and $500,000 a year.

In his signing statement, Brown said the bill completes the promise in his inaugural address to "end special tax privileges of the few."

He said other loophole closers included a bill ending most of the state's oil depletion allowance, and two measures on next June's ballot. One of those would eliminate the $23-million home office tax deduction for insurance companies. The other would allow business taxes to be raised by a simple majority of the legislature rather than two-thirds majority.

The Democratic governor also signed a bill Wednesday requiring parental consent before a school can take a paddle to a student.

Introduced by Assemblywoman Leona Egeland, D-San Jose, the bill requires schools to send a consent form home at the start of the year. A student whose parent does not return the form may not be paddled.

Brown signed a measure by Assemblyman Art Torres, D-Los Angeles, allowing police to arrest men as prostitutes. Current law applies only to women.

But Brown vetoed a measure by Assemblyman Bill Lockyer, D-San Leandro, which would have required legislative confirmation of a governor's appointment to fill a vacancy in the office of lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer, controller or attorney general.

Said Brown: "The present method of filling vacancies for constitutional officers has worked well for over a century. Why change it now?"

Brown also:

—Approved an addition of $1.9 million to the Educational Opportunities Program for low-income students and the University of California and community colleges. The bill was introduced by Assemblyman Ken Meade, D-Berkeley.

—Allowed two bond issues to be placed on next June's ballot. One by Assemblyman Leroy Greene, D-Sacramento, would raise $200 million for school construction. The other by Assemblyman Ken MacDonald, D-Ojai, is a $175-million water bond.

—Vetoed a bill by Assemblyman Walter Ingalls, D-Riverside, which would have called for limits on truck driving hours. Brown said the issue should be left to agency regulation or collective bargaining.

STRIKE ULTIMATUM

Tucson Mayor Lewis C. Murphy, right, issued an ultimatum Wednesday to striking police and firemen. At a news conference, he said the 800 strikers must return to work tonight or lose their jobs. The strikers want an immediate 30 per cent wage increase. The city has offered 7½ per cent now and 5 per cent next July.

SOUGHT

The ramifications of the Patty Hearst case have now shifted to this woman, Kathy Soliah, shown in a May 1974 photo. Federal officials want to question her in connection with a brutal bank robbery-murder in the Sacramento suburb of Carmichael April 21. She is the sister of Steven Soliah who was indicted Wednesday on a charge of harboring fugitive Patty Hearst.

U.S. delays coast oil, gas leases

WASHINGTON (AP)—The sale of oil and gas leases on 1.6 million acres off the Southern California coast has been tentatively pushed back two more months, the Interior Department says.

The department said Wednesday it needed more time to consider public comments on environmental impact statements.

According to the announcement, department officials would use "this additional time to consult further with California state and local officials and to weigh their views before a final decision is made on whether or not to hold the sale."

The sale, postponed twice before, was scheduled for next month. The controversial ocean tracts are from Point Mugu to Dana Point.

Many state and local officials have urged delay or abandonment of the lease sale.

Experts mull RFK killing, 2nd gun idea

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Using a highly sophisticated comparison microscope, seven experts are sifting through evidence in the 1968 assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The seven worked all day in a locked jury room Wednesday. Assistant County Counsel Robert Lynch said, "they pretty much set their own hours, but they work most of the time."

Lynch, who heads a committee of lawyers representing the various interests in the case, said he did not know how long the evidence investigation would last.

The panel was assembled and ordered to conduct a "miniprobe" of evidence after the Columbia Broadcasting System and Paul Shchrade filed suit to reopen the investigation. Schrade was injured during the assassination as Kennedy walked through the pantry of the Ambassador Hotel after winning the state's Democratic primary.

A Palestinian national, Sirhan B. Sirhan, was convicted of the assassination and is serving a life sentence at San Quentin. His conviction did not quiet criticism of the investigation, however, with some saying the evidence indicated a second gun was involved.

The experts are looking into that "second gun" theory.

2 arrested in Pomona heroin case

Pomona police today planned to seek felony complaints against two Pomona men arrested in connection with an undercover narcotics purchase Tuesday afternoon at 1020 Murchison St.

The suspects, Reyes Francisco Rios, 25, and Luis Angel Baez, 39, were arrested at the Murchison Street address after an agent of the state Bureau of Narcotics Enforcement bought three ounces of high-grade heroin there, according to Pomona Police Detective Lorenzo Zambrano Jr. Zambrano said the heroin had a street value of $22,000.

Rios and Baez are suspected of dealing in a "moderate" amount of heroin on a daily basis in Pomona, according to Zambrano and Pomona detective Larry Todd. The investigation of the pair began about a month ago.

The detectives said they would seek complaints from the district attorney charging Rios and Baez with possession of heroin for sale and with selling heroin. The suspects remained in jail in lieu of $50,000 bail each.

Riverside blaze halted

Brush fires in Southland burn 50,000 acres

By The Associated Press

Firefighters reported gaining an edge over a rash of brush fires which have injured 14 persons, scorched some 50,000 acres and forced over 200 Southern Californians to flee their homes.

The state's largest brush fire of the year was brought under control Wednesday in the Badlands area near Riverside, leaving 20,250 acres of brushland and six persons with minor injuries. Two trailers and a home were destroyed, the U.S. Forest Service reported.

Fifty miles to the south, more than 1,000 men achieved 45 per cent containment of a 10,000-acre blaze in northern San Diego County, seven miles northwest of Fallbrook. The state Division of Forestry predicted full containment by Friday night.

The fire swept through the 831-acre Arteberry ranch, forcing 10 persons to flee for their lives and destroying more than $600,000 worth of property.

The $500,000 Arteberry ranch home was reduced to ashes; only the stone chimney remained. A Le Mans racing car valued at $100,000 also was consumed by flames.

Four other dwellings and four utility sheds were lost to the fire and a 10,000-gallon tank of diesel fuel exploded, but forestry officials reported no injuries from the blast.

A bulldozer operator at another section of the fire suffered third-degree burns on one arm. The unidentified victim was reportedly hospitalized but there was no word on his condition.

The fire cut a black swath through De Luz Canyon and burned its way into Camp Pendleton, where Marines were battling a 12,000-acre blaze of their own. Base firemen expected to contain the fire by late Thursday.

Four Marines were injured Tuesday when one stepped on an explosive device while fighting a small fire on the Pendleton machine gun range. Three were treated and released while a fourth man was flown to Balboa Naval Hospital in San Diego.

Half a mile from the Mexican border near Tecate, some 200 men slowed the spread of a 2,000-acre holocaust that moved northward at a rate of one square mile an hour. A trailer and two ranch buildings were overrun by the flames.

Sheriff's deputies prepared to evacuate ranchers and residents of the community of Barrett, but officials later said no evacuation was ordered. More than 200 area residents left on their own, firemen said.

State Highway 94 was closed both by the fire and by heavy equipment trying to reach the scene.

Early Wednesday, fire fighters claimed control of the 3,480-acre Clevinger fire in San Pasqual Valley in northeast San Diego County. The fire started Monday only 2½ miles from the San Diego Wild Animal Park, but the wildlife sanctuary was never threatened.

It took 600 men to quell the blaze, including 19 engine companies from the city of San Diego.

Ritual slayer gets life term

SANTA MONICA (AP) — Albert Sidney Ward, who admitted the ritualistic murder of an elderly woman, was sentenced to life imprisonment Wednesday.

Ward pleaded guilty to the murder and burglary charges arising from the death of Gay Ramsdan, 86, of West Los Angeles. The body was found last May 19 with numerous knife wounds and a handwritten note praising the devil on her bedspread. The body was covered with an American flag.

Doctors will converge at PVCH for parley

Two hundred doctors from Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange counties will attend a two-day medical symposium Friday and Saturday at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The meeting will officially dedicate the Russell K. Pitzer Auditorium in the hospital's new addition, according to DR. John A. Gius, director of medical education at the hospital and symposium general chairman.

Three major medical topics to be discussed in depth are: "The Diagnosis and Treatment of Life-Threatening Trauma in the Emergency Room," "Management of Acute and Chronic Pulmonary Problems," and "1975 Update of Cancer Management."

Participants from the USC Medical School are Dr. Robert Eisenberg, associate clinical professor of medicine and medical director of pulmonary therapy department at Huntington Memorial Hospital; Dr. Robert F. Scharf, coordinator of emergency division residency at Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center; and Dr. Joel Solomon, assistant clinical professor of medicine and senior physician, department of hematology, City of Hope Medical Center.

Also participating are Dr. Robert Rosen, clinical professor of pediatrics at Loma Linda School of Medicine and chairman of the department of Pediatrics at City of Hope; Dr. Daniel Simmons, professor of medicine and physiology and chief of pulmonary diseases at UCLA Medical Center; and Dr. Robert H. Yonemoto, associate clinical professor of surgery at UC Irvine and associate director of general surgery at City of Hope.

Panelists from the staff at PVCH participating are Dr. David N. Brown, neurosurgeon; Dr. Robert W. Dukes, director of emergency services; Dr. D. Frederick Knudsen, general and thoracic surgeon; Dr. Morton Kolber, cochairman of the tumor board, internist and oncologist; and Dr. Shirley W. Martin, medical director of cardio-respiratory services.

Dr. Fritz Moser, president of the PVCH medical staff, and Robert W. Burwell, hospital administrator, will open the symposium at 8:30 a.m. Friday.

GOP worried about Demos' dominance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders are worried that complacent House and Senate GOP members may lose next year's election and that Democrats will expand their already swollen two-to-one majority on Capitol Hill.

"I feel there is a general reluctance on the part of some Republicans to face up to the issues of 1976," Senate Republican campaign chairman Ted Stevens of Alaska said in an interview Wednesday.

In the House, a Republican political committee issued a bluntly worded report saying GOP congressmen have enveloped themselves in a "smugness ... (that) borders on arrogance."

Focusing on the traditional American political belief that an incumbent president carries many senators and House members with him to election, the report said, "the coattail theory is a myth."

The pessimistic report was prepared by the House Republican Research Committee, a branch of the GOP leadership, and was written at the direction of chairman Rep. Louis Frey Jr. of Florida.

The House Republican report said 25 GOP seats easily could be lost in the 1976 voting. The current party division following heavy GOP losses in the 1974 off-year election is 289 Democrats to 145 Republicans.

One vacancy, previously held by a Democrat, is currently contested and will be filled by a special election in Tennessee.

While Republicans were running up a series of successful congressional votes sustaining President Ford's vetos and Democrats were unable to organize coherent legislative leadership, the report said a wave of political optimism ran through Republican ranks.

Then came Democrat John A. Durkin's surprising 27,000-vote victory over Republican Louis C. Wyman in a rerun of the New Hampshire senatorial election.

"They elected a Democrat in a state where even the independents outnumber the Democrats," the committee said.

Even campaign visits by President Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan were not enough to elect Wyman, the report said.

For coming congressional and senatorial elections, the committe declared, "the handwriting is on the wall. Can we read it?"

Stevens and a spokesman for Republican National Chairwoman Mary Louise Smith both disagreed with the House report conclusion that the New Hampshire vote has national implications.

Stevens said Wyman had serious organizational problems while Durkin was able to make sure that all his supporters cast ballots.

Spokesman Norman Bishop of the Republican National Committee said Durkin received immense help from labor union political activists.

Stevens said Wyman was perceived as part of a government which has done little to solve the major problems of energy and the economy.

"There is a sort of anti-incumbency feeling around the country," Stevens said.

The senator said that could work against the Democratic majority, but unless Republicans seeking re-election make specific proposals on energy, gasoline and other issues, they are equally vulnerable.

CANDYMAN: VAN WATSON

Candyman fed Sara, Charles

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Sara Jane Kahn and Charles Manson bought a lot of candy from Van Watson when they were children.

Sara Jane was a serious pupil, but Manson "liked to play a little hooky," says Watson.

Sara Jane, now Sara Jane Moore, is in jail charged with trying to kill President Ford. Manson is serving life in prison for the 1969 murder of actress Sharon Tate and six others.

And one of Manson's followers, Lynette Fromme, also is charged with trying to kill the President, in a separate incident.

"Kathleen Manson, Charles' mother, was a clerk in my store for three or four months," Watson said in an interview Wednesday.

"Charles was about 9 or 10 years old, then, around 1942. He was just an ordinary boy, nothing outstanding. I sold him a lot of candy.

"He'd come in two or three times a day, whenever he got a penny."

Watson said he was shocked to learn that Sara Jane Kahn was the person accused of shooting at the President.

"I knew her from childhood," he said. "She came in the store to buy candy on her way to school. She was a loner — almost always by herself. She never had much to say about anything. She always had a couple of books under her arm and seemed to take school seriously."

The Kahns lived in a log house up Woodward Drive from his store and the Mansons lived in a house across the street from the store.

"I was very much surprised at the way those two children turned out," Watson said. "Charles wasn't much good at going to school — he liked to play a little bit of hooky.

"But I expected Sara Jane to grow up and become somebody with a good education and a responsible position in life.

"I never dreamed she would be somebody who'd try to kill the President."

Watson said he was certain that Manson and Mrs. Moore did not know each other in Charleston. Mrs. Moore is 45 years old and Manson is 40.

Mail-opening by CIA disclosed

Nixon was among list of victims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate intelligence committee hearings have raised the issue of whether the CIA is above the law because it is a secret intelligence agency.

The panel also plans public hearings next month on the CIA's mail-opening program following the disclosure Wednesday that the agency opened the mail of some prominent Americans, including a letter to Richard M. Nixon before he became president.

The CIA's mail-surveillance program, which operated from 1952 to 1973, also intercepted letters to or from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the committee.

The committee was scheduled to take testimony today from Richard Ober, former head of the agency's Operation Chaos, which spied on domestic dissidents, and Charles Brennan, former head of the FBI's domestic intelligence division.

The question of the CIA's responsiblity under the law was raised by testimony given in closed session on Sept. 12 by James J. Angleton, former chief of counterintelligence for the CIA. The transcript of that hearing quoted him as saying:

"It is inconceivable that a secret intelligence arm of government has to comply with all the overt rules of the government."

Several members of the committee pressed him about that statement Wednesday. At first Angleton replied: "If the transcript is accurate, it shouldn't have been said."

Then he said, "I'd been rather impertinent in making those remarks."

Church asked: "Do you withdraw the statement?" Eventually, Angleton replied: "I do."

Then Church asked: "Did you mean it when you said it?"

Angleton: "I don't know how to respond ... My speculation should not have been indulged in."

The disclosures about the CIA's mail-opening program first came Wednesday with a statement by Church which offered no detail but implied a wider scope to the Nixon mail surveillance than he later outlined.

ASKING WHY

Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, of the Senate Intelligence Committee, questions James Angleton, right, former chief of counter-intelligence at the Central Intelligence Agency, during the panel's Wednesday hearing in Washington. Church, who said the CIA secretly and illegally read the mail of many prominent Americans, asked Angleton why the agency found it necessary to open a letter to Richard Nixon before he became president.

Patty faces a few more problems?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A growing net of evidence of murder, robbery and bombings is touching the radical comrades of Patricia Hearst, threatening to draw the newspaper heiress into more legal troubles.

Authorities want to find three of her companions for questioning about a brutal bank robbery that ended in murder, a source close to the investigation confirmed Wednesday.

There were also reports that marked money taken in that April bank robbery near Sacramento was found in the apartment where Miss Hearst and fellow fugitive Wendy Yoshimura were arrested here last week.

Other law enforcement officials said that the Symbionese Liberation Army — which kidnaped Miss Hearst and then, she said, converted her — and its allies were responsible for a series of terrorist bombings in the San Francisco Bay area and were planning more attacks.

The three radicals federal agents want to question are James Kilgore and Kathy and Josephine Soliah. With the Soliahs' brother, Steve, now in custody, the three have been linked with the April 21 holdup of a Crocker Bank branch in the Sacramento suburb of Carmichael.

Santa's shop toys stolen

Because of some burglars, Christmas will not shine as bright this year for local needy children.

Thieves broke into Santa's workshop on the Pomona Mall this week and stole an assortment of toys ready for distribution.

These included 20 "Hot Wheel" sets, 10 large cars and trucks, seven electric road race sets, 30 stuffed animals, 20 dressed dolls, six "Jim and Barbie" camper sets, six marble games and a box of material used for making doll dresses.

The burglars entered the structure through a glass door, said Mrs. Ella Bockover, Santa Claus Inc. vice president. She estimated the loss at $200.

The none-profit organization works all year preparing toys for distribution to needy children each Christmas. All work is volunteer, and toys are given free to those who qualify.

Local law enforcement agencies are searching for four prisoners who have escaped from CHINO prisons this week.

California Institution for Women inmate Sharron Opal Adriance, 23, serving a life sentence on conviction of armed robbery and a prior escape, escaped about 8:30 p.m. Monday by stealing a guard's truck.

Miss Adriance, according to CIW authorities, had climbed a fence on the perimeter of the women's institution and hid herself until a perimeter guard in a pickup truck drove by. Authorities said the guard apparently left his truck, with the engine running and a 12 guage shotgun on the seat for a moment and the inamte jumped into the seat and drove away towards Chino-Corona Road south of CIW.

The truck was located in Venice Wednesday, along with the shotgun. Officers believe she may be traveling to Tacoma, Wash., where she has friends.

Two California Institution for Men inmates disappeared from the minimum security section of the Chino prison Sunday afternoon.

Inmates John Wessely Beach, 37, serving a term for first degree robbery, and Tom Bill Young, 33, serving a term of burglary and assault were both found missing from their work stations Sunday about 4:45 p.m., prison officials said.

Beach, according to officers was on duty as a prison firemen when he disappeared while Young was missing from his work detail. Both of the men are presumed to be traveling together and possibly have access to weapons, according to law enforcement officers.

A gunman with a bandana or rag wrapped around his right hand robbed the Circle K Market at 603 S. Euclid Ave. in ONTARIO of a small amount of cash Wednesday morning, according to police.

Market clerk Alice C. Michaud, 41, told officers that the robber walked into the store, came behind the counter and displayed a small handgun. She said the robber ordered her to hand him the cash from the two registers and threatened to shoot her if she called police.

The gunman, wearing a blue Levi jacket with the insignia "Burger" and a small embroidered gun on the back, ran outside to a waiting car driven by a Caucasian with short black collar length hair. The gunman was described as a Negro, 18 to 20, 5 feet 11, 6-feet wearing a blue and white bandana around his head.

A man armed with a small pistol waited for customers to leave and robbed Dominic's Pizza Restaurant at Pipeline Avenue and Carbon Canyon Road in LOS SERRANOS of a small amount of cash Wednesday night.

West End sheriff's deputies said the robbery was reported by restaurant owner Vance Stearns about 7:30 p.m. Stearns told deputies that the robber entered the restaurant and went into the restroom. When other customers had left the man came out of the restroom and displayed a small pistol under his sweatshirt, ordering Stearns to hand over the cash from the register.

Stearns described the robber as a Caucasian, 20, 5 feet 9, of thin build with blond hair and sideburns. He had acne scars on his face and was wearing a blue long-sleeved, zippered sweatshirt and light colored pants.

Hospital deaths

MARION, Ill. (AP) — As many as eight patients may have been poisoned with deliberately adulterated drugs at Marion Memorial Hospital, a state's attorney investigating the case says. Two died.

State's Atty. Robert Howerton said Wednesday that at least three and possibly eight persons were poisoned at the hospital from August 1974 to last January.

He confirmed reports that a 3-year-old boy and a 21-year-old man died last fall after emergency room treatment with local anesthetics adulterated by a muscle relaxant.

Lie detector tests have been given several persons but results were inconclusive, Howerton said. He added, "Virtually everyone at the hospital is a suspect."

Hospital officials first alerted Howerton to the poisonings on Feb. 18, although they had become suspicious by Oct. 3, 1974.

Auto sales

DETROIT (AP) — An early buying spree for 1976 models despite higher prices pulled mid-September domestic car sales to within six-tenths of one per cent of strong year-ago levels.

Auto analysts say a good initial consumer response to the new cars, combined with a continued upswing in over-all car buying, gave the U.S. industry its fifth best performance for the period in history.

Climbers make it

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Two British climbers have made the first ascent of Mt. Everest by the Southwest Face, the Nepalese Foreign Ministry announced today.

A spokesman said Dougal Haston, 32, and Doug Scott, 33, reached the top of the world's highest mountain by the previously unclimbed route at 6 p.m. Nepalese time Wednesday.

Considine critical

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert B. "Bob" Considine, columnist for King Features Syndicate who suffered a stroke in his Manhattan apartment Monday, was reported in critical condition today.

Considine, 68, was found lying on the floor of his apartment Monday morning. He was taken to New York Medical Center University Hospital.

Planes crash

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Four Italian air force Starfighters crashed in the Eifel Mountains near the West German-Luxembourg border today, the West German Defense Ministry said. The fate of the crewmen was not immediately known.

Luxemburg Airport and state police said one of the planes exploded in flight and the three accompanying jets crashed with it on the West German side of the Luxembourg border.

Action is taken this time on Ford threat

OCALA, Fla. (AP) — An unemployed service station attendant has been arrested on a charge of conspiracy to kill President Ford after first being freed when he told FBI agents about the plan, authorities say.

John Clayton Massey, 32, was arrested Wednesday night at a truckstop near this North Florida town after an all-state alert.

"He came to the FBI office in Ocala and gave some information about supposed plans of himself and others to hit the President and Sen. (Edward M.) Kennedy," said Asst. U.S. Atty. Robert Yerkes.

Yerkes said Massey was allowed to leave after he told about the plot. Arthur Nehrbass, agent in charge of the Jacksonville regional FBI office, said he couldn't explain why Massey wasn't detained then.

"I don't have an answer right now," Nehrbass said. "There was an investigation underway. He did not make an overt threat that he would kill the President.

"The answer may come out, but I can't answer it tonight even though I know it makes us look bad."

Neither Yerkes nor Nehrbass would describe the alleged assassination plot or say how many others might be involved.

Poll shows Wallace first

NEW YORK (AP) — In a sampling of Democrats and independents, 39 per cent say they could not vote for Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace if he received the Democratic presidential nomination, pollster Louis Harris says.

Of 19 names turned up as possibilities for the Democratic nomination, Wallace led as first choice for 14 per cent of the 973 Democrats and independents quizzed.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota was second with 12 per cent, followed by Sens. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Edmund S. Muskie of Maine with 10 per cent each.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts was taken at his word that he would not be a candidate and was not included in the survey.

Intruder kills 2 in L.A. home

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An intruder armed with a shotgun killed an employe of the Los Angeles County Probation Department and his wife in their View Park area home, sheriff's deputies said.

Killed shortly after 1 a.m. Wednesday were John L. Peck, Jr., 23, and his wife, Pamela, 22.

Harrises...

They were then ferried by helicopter to separate jails here.

When he was taken from the San Mateo County Jail near San Francisco on Wednesday evening, Harris, clad in a bright orange prison jump suit, greeted about 100 spectators who cheered him and his wife. He nodded, smiled and said: "I'll be seeing ya." Emily just smiled.

Immediately after arrival at Los Angeles International Airport, the two were hustled aboard a police helicopter for the 10 minute flight to the roof of the highrise downtown police headquarters here, where Harris, 30, spent the night.

The chopper then ferried his wife Emily, 28, to the nearby Sybil Brand Institute for women prisoners, an officer said.

The power was briefly cut off in Parker Center elevators after the 11:51 arrival, preventing reporters from observing Harris as he emerged from the helicopter and was taken downstairs in shackles and handcuffs.

His chains were removed for a skin search, however, and he remained unhandcuffed for the booking, said Lt. E.D. Guinn, jail watch commander.

Asked if Harris had said anything, Guinn replied:

"He just answered the routine questions. He was very polite — no problem."

Closing rural postal sites could save millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $100 million annual saving that the Postal Service might make by closing many of its smallest offices works out to a fraction of a penny on postage rates, but it could have cut the service's deficit last year by 12 per cent.

The proposal for closing 12,000 third-and fourth-class post offices in rural America came from the General Accounting Office, which recommended that rural route service be substituted instead. The net saving would be $100 million per year, the GAO estimated.

The GAO said interviews that its investigators conducted in areas where similar post offices have already been eliminated showed that nine out of 10 customers had concluded that the replacement service was as good or better than the service they had been receiving.

When a person has rural route service, his delivery carrier also acts as a traveling post office authorized to sell stamps and provide other postal services.

The Postal Service agreed to consider the GAO proposal, but only with congressional guidance. Two House Post Office subcommittees began taking testimony on the plan Tuesday.

The projected $100 million annual saving would equal one-sixtieth of the $6 billion that the Postal Service receives from first-class mail — or about 1½ mills out of the 10 cents now paid to mail a letter.

But when viewed in terms of the Postal Service deficit that totaled $850 million in the fiscal year that ended June 30 and is expected to be higher this year, a $100 million saving would have yielded a 12 per cent reduction in red ink last year.

Although the GAO report doesn't spell out which of the nation's rural post offices should be closed, there is reference to offices in at least 28 states. There are a total of 18,000 of the tiny offices, many of them operated in general stores, service stations or homes.

In Tuesday's hearing before the House subcommittees, at least one tiny community won a battle to retain its post office.

The Postal Service said it would allow Darlene Pliscott to continue operating the station in Crest, Calif. She will receive $700 this year to run the community post office in her own home.

The Postal Service made the announcement about an hour after Rep. Clair W. Burgener, R-Calif., testified that all his efforts to save the Crest station had been in vain.

"The post office will close tomorrow and I'm very frustrated about it because I don't know what more I can do to save it," Burgener told the joint meeting of the two subcommittees.

Burgener had a sympathetic audience in his fellow congressmen.

"I agree with you completely. In fact, I will call the Postal Service today and plead with them to keep the Crest post office open," said Rep. James M. Hanley, D-N.Y., who chaired the hearing.

Later, telephone calls came to Capitol Hill from the Postal Service saying that a new contract had been agreed to with Mrs. Pliscott.

"As far as I can tell there was no relationship between the new contract and what happened in Congress," a Postal Service spokesman said.

Released hostage calls for tighter security

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — An Indiana State Prison guard who was one of eight persons held hostage at knife point by two inmates, says the incident would not have happened if his request for a complete shakedown had been acted upon.

"We have inflicted upon us a very lax policy of security," Sgt. Guy Tate, who is in charge of security at the prison hospital, said after he and the other hostages were freed unharmed late Wednesday.

"It's not Warden (Leo) Jenkins' fault — but the commissioner's office in Indianapolis," said Tate, 66, an 11-year veteran of the maximum security institution's guard force.

Tate said he wrote his immediate superior as well as Jenkins and Custody Supervisor G. D. Wilkins two days ago and asked for the shakedown but "I got no reply."

Tate said he met inmates David T. Erikson, 33, and James C. Kelley Jr., 28, at the hospital entrance about 2:45 p.m. He said the two were seeking some "cold-type medication."

Tate said he opened the door and told the men to wait in a hallway.

"The next thing I knew, one of them said, 'Give me the keys,'" Tate added. "The inmate put a knife against my throat and naturally I complied."

He said the two men apparently were under the influence of drugs.

With Tate their prisoner, the two inmates went to a room where members of the hospital staff were meeting with Dr. Rodger Saylors, general prison physician. All were taken hostage.

Two hostages, one whose wife had died recently and another who suffered from a heart ailment, were release shortly afterward.

Three others, including Tate, were released about 6:30 p.m. Saylors, 50; Ronald E. Warner, 25, a medical technician; and Timothy F. Quigley, 25, a physician's assistant, were set free about 7:30 p.m.

The two inmates surrendered without a fight after they gave Jenkins a list of nine demands, including requests for more lenient visiting privileges, better hospital conditions, better food, better recreation facilities and reassignment of a tower guard.

Jenkins told reporters he promised the inmates he would review the demands but had already begun to consider most, if not all of them.

Jenkins said the knives used by Kelley and Erikson were fashioned within the prison. He said one appeared to have been made from material used for Indiana license plates.

Saylors said the two inmates broke into a medicine locker in the hospital and that both took several doses of phenobarbital, a barbiturate, and Demerol, a synthetic narcotic used as a pain killer and sedative.

He said they calmed down considerably after taking the drugs and were "glassy eyed when they surrendered."

Erikson is serving a one-to-10-year sentence for possession of dangerous drugs. Kelley is seving a 21-year term for voluntary manslaughter in a Fayette, Ky., slaying. He was transferred to the Indiana prison under a reciprocal agreement between the two states.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal Judge Manuel Real and Executive Assistant Los Angeles City Atty. Robert Thompson have been added to the list of candidates for the Los Angeles County District attorney's post.

Supervisor chairman James Hayes, in announcing the addition of the two to the final list of candidates Wednesday, said they were being included under a general agreement that puts a candidate with backing from two supervisors on the final list.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, absent from Friday's selection session because he was recovering from heart surgery, requested the additions.

Hayes said that interview sessions of the eight finalists will begin Monday.

Others on the final list include John Van De Kamp, federal public defender in Los Angeles; Richard Crane Jr., chief of the local office of the federal Organized Crime Strike Force; Samuel Williams, president of the Los Angeles Police Commission and attorneys Richard Mosk, Brian J. O'Neill and Walter Karabian.

Mushroom poisoning hits Italy

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Ten persons have died and hundreds have been hospitalized in Italy's worst epidemic of mushroom poisoning in a decade, health officials say.

An unusual September, with rain followed by a warm sunshine, produced a bumper crop of edible and poisonous mushrooms, and Italians have flocked to the countryside to pick the delicacies that are selling for $4 to $10 a pound in the stores.

A number of persons have picked a common, highly toxic mushroom, amanita phalloides, that is easily mistaken for safe varieties. Fifty grams, or less than 2 ounces, is lethal.

Newspapers are publishing pictures of poisonous species, and authorities recommend all handpicked mushrooms be taken to special centers for checking.

AS SIMPLE AS A COMPUTER — A young woman demonstrates the use of an automatic blood pressure test. The machine is called the Automatic Electronic Sphygmomanometer. Within 60 seconds, it flashes a pressure reading on a digital dial.

Blood pressure test: now it's do-it-yourself

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A futuristic-looking electronic machine developed by a company here may make life easier for the 30 million Americans suffering from high blood pressure.

The device, known as an Automatic Electric Sphygmomanometer (AES) Computer, is the first machine to allow a person to take his blood pressure by himself, its developers say.

Instead of the inflatable wrap-around cuff and mercury contraption now used by physicians, the AES computer has a tiny computer system with a television-like screen and thick metal hoop.

A person simply puts his arm through the hoop, presses a button and reads his blood pressure on the screen.

The idea for the AES Computer was conceived by Dr. Jack Bauman, an anaesthesiologist at St. John's Hospital. He is a director of the manufacturing company, Medical Monitors, Inc.

"Many years ago I noticed how interested people are in their blood pressure," Bauman said. "I had in mind an automated machine, like a penny scale, so a person could take his own blood pressure."

Bauman took his idea to a computer microcircuitry expert who eventually developed the 30-pound machine now marketed by Medical Monitors.

The firm says it now has more than 7,500 orders, mostly from hospitals and clinics, for the device, which retails for $2,500.

High blood pressure is directly related to health problems such as heart attacks, strokes, kidney failure and eye trouble, Bauman said.

He hopes that by allowing more frequent monitoring of blood pressure levels, his device will help doctors in treating patients through special diets and drugs.

Medical Monitors President Harry Shuster said the firm received "tens of thousands of inquiries" about the AES Computer after a magazine article on the device appeared last year.

"We heard from universities, hospitals, clinics, health clubs...even banks who wanted to use it as a customer service," Shuster said. "We had a lot of senior citizens' homes write us saying they wanted one for their lobby."

Shuster said the firm is planning on producing about 10,000 units a year and hopes to further reduce the size until the AES Computer becomes as small as a pocket calculator. More than $2 million has been spent so far on research and development costs, Shuster said.

Medical Monitors also plans to install units in supermarkets, drugstores and other retail outlets, Shuster said, so that people can simply insert a coin and take their own blood pressure.

High blood pressure can be controlled, Bauman said, and the AES Computer may make treating it easier.

"It's like being overweight and having a scale or not," he said. "With the AES Computer, you can see what the effects are of the treatment you're getting."

Police try hand at shoplifting

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Three policemen who pretended to be thieves and carried off $459 in loot, including a boat motor from a department store, say it was a hard way to make a point.

"All of us had nervous stomachs the whole time," Patrolman Jack Schnell said Thursday. "We were worried about what might happen to us."

But they never got caught in what Police Chief C. W. "Jake" Miller described as an attempt to emphasize how easy it was to shoplift.

"Police make the worst type of criminals," Miller said. "You know if they can get away with this much, it can't be difficult."

Schnell, Lt. Burt Sellers and Patrolman Bill Woodward said they spent only about one hour over a two-day period as shoplifters. Their take included men's shirts, bowling balls and sleeping bags.

"We acted as a team only once," Schnell said. "And that was by using a lookout when we were taking the outboard motor. Mostly, it was a matter of keeping your eyes open.

"Woodward lifted a coffee maker and was carrying it out the door when a clerk stopped him. He said she never challenged him, but instead tried to sell him some other merchandise."

Miller said the officers will meet with the store clerks to advise them how to approach a suspected shoplifter and on precautions to take to prevent shoplifting.

"The only way you're going to fight this thing is through education and enforcement," he said. "The managers are going to have to train their employes better and they're going to have to become more aggressive."

Miller said the officers will give back the loot.

Key Eastern drug figure convicted in valley court

Fred Hill, 31, of Decatur, Ga., identified as a major narcotics dealer on the East Coast by federal authorities, has been convicted in West Valley Superior Court of sales of heroin and transportation of heroin.

Hill, after hearing the jury's guilty verdict read by Judge Clifton L. Allen, was ordered into the custody of the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department until sentencing on Oct. 10.

Hill, along with Cheryl Dumas, 21, of Atlanta, Ga., and Jerry Walker, 31, of Hartford, Conn., was arrested on the San Bernardino Freeway on May 28 by California highway patrolmen and agents of the Federal Drug Enforcement Detail.

Patrolmen and agents searching Hill's car found heron valued at $500,000 and $8,700 in cash.

The three were arrested on charges of illegal sales and transportation of heroin.

Federal agents who had been investigating narcotics activities on the East Coast had followed Hill to Los Angeles suspecting that he would make a narcotics buy. They asked the local Highway Patrol office to make the stop and check out the suspects.

A short time after the arrests were made, Walker was released without charge when agents learned he had no knowledge of the narcotics activity. Miss Dumas also was released from custody when the court determined there was insufficient evidence to hold her for trial.

Hill, however, was brought to trial on the basis of his own admissions to federal officers the day of his arrest.

Agents Paul Clayton and John Peoples called to the stand by West Valley Deputy Dist. Atty. Wayne Gomez testified that during a May 28 interview at West End jail Hill admitted that he was carrying the heroin to the East Coast. The agents said the defendant told them that he had come to Los Angeles to straighten out a heroin deal that had gone sour.

Hill on the stand denied that he had made any admission to the federal agents and hinted that someone had set him up.

RESIGNS CLAREMONT POST — Architect William Abbott has announced his resignation from the Claremont Architectural Commission after serving for five years, nine months.

Abbott was appointed in November 1969, and served as commission chairman from July 1971 to July 1973. He was re-appointed to a four-year term in July this year.

Abbott said he found it difficult recently to maintain a "decent" attendance record at commission meetings. In addition, "I have given much thought to the new limitation on myself regarding speaking to the commission on behalf of my clients when their projects are before the commission," Abbott commented.

Abbott said that he hoped he had contributed something, "because it has been an educational experience for me."

Diet advice available at health center for high-risk heart cases

A coronary prevention class at the Pomona Health Center offers dietary instruction for the public, especially those who are considered a high risk for heart disease.

The next series of six free classes will begin on Oct. 7 from 7 to 9 p.m., according to the district director of nutrition, Sheila Jelly.

The educational course which combines demonstrations and lectures is designed for persons who are overweight, have elevated blood pressure, have high blood cholesterol or triglyceride levels or who need instruction for diabetic or sodium control diets.

"Overweight is the No. 1 health problem in the country and heart disease is the No. 1 killer," said Mrs. Jelly. "Health departments feel we must do something about these epidemics.

"Unfortunately, the first indication of heart disease may be sudden death.

"All too often, the doctor tells a patient that he must lose weight, but doesn't tell him how."

All individuals who enter the course are personally interviewed by Mrs. Jelly. Included is a history of eating habits and intake, medical history of the person and the family, medication being taken and other related information.

After six months, Mrs. Jelly again interviews the participant to compare changes in eating habits, weight and general health. Class members obtain a free serum cholesterol check at the Pomona Health Center.

Members of the class monitor their intake and keep records of eating habits.

"Through positive feedback, we can see what types of changes are needed," Mrs. Jelly explained.

Mrs. Jelly prepares three weeks of recipes and brings samples of foods to the class for tasting by the members. In addition to providing basic recipes, the class members learn how to make these foods appealing.

Menus are designed for various caloric intakes and stress foods which are in season or easily obtainable.

Members are taught to select low calorie foods from the four basic food groups so that good nutrition is maintained.

The next series of classes will be on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at the Pomona Health Center, 750 S. Park Ave., Pomona. A well lighted parking lot is adjacent to the center.

Additional information may be obtained by calling 623-6811, extension 525.

Hirohito's wish to come true

By KAY TATEISHI
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Emperor Hirohito of Japan, the world's longest reigning sovereign, will make his first tour of the United States starting next week. It will be the fulfillment of a wish made 50 years ago.

The trip with Empress Nagako starting next Wednesday and running to Oct. 13 will afford Americans in Washington, New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Hololulu a first hand look at the little, mild-mannered man that many of them remember from pictures during World War II.

Those were the days that Hirohito was pictured in full military uniform and plumed hat as he sat astride a white charger reviewing Japan's military forces.

Hirohito, now 74, was considered by his subjects then as the divine son of the sun goddess.

But time has untangled a knotty problem involving the Japanese imperial system and today he is regarded as an ordinary human being, friend and a symbol of the West's hope for peace in Asia.

Hirohito's U.S. visit is to return a visit last fall by President Ford, the first American President in office ever to travel to Japan.

It was during a courtesy call on the commander of the U.S. Atlantic Fleet aboard the flagship Pittsburg in Gibraltar in 1921 that Hirohito, then crown prince, remarked that he regretted he couldn't accept a presidential invitation to go to the United States from his tour of Europe. He told the admiral he would plan an American visit upon his return from Europe, but subsequent turns in Japanese-American relations robbed him of his wish.

Although World War II was declared in his name, following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, Hirohito 44 months later personally announced Japan's surrender. The aggressive Japanese adventure had reduced his island empire to a shambles, including atom-bombed Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Faced with defeat, devastation and degradation, Hirohito asked to be held responsible for Japan's war crimes. But the allied powers under the late Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur felt a humanized emperor retaining his throne would have greater psychological impact on the people and help restore peace and democraticize their one-time enemy.

So Hirohito was stripped of his prerogatives and former power under the MacArthur-inspired constitution of 1947. He was made the "symbol of state and unity of the people," barred from active involvment in government affairs.

The emperor met with MacArthur on 11 occasions between Sept. 27, 1945 and April 15, 1951, and the American general later described Hirohito as "the first gentleman of Japan."

After disavowing his divinity on Jan. 1, 1946, Hirohito removed the awe and mystery surrounding him as he emerged from behind the spiritual fastness of his moated palace. He made a series of extended tours of Japan.

Although he cut an awkward figure at the start, the unprepossessing man with glasses and moustache was greeted warmly wherever he went.

For a long time, Hirohito, the 124th emperor of Japan, had been a prisoner of protocol and tradition. Not until 1971 was he able to make his first trip outside of Japan as emperor under special legislation enacted by the Diet, Japan's parliament. The trip turned out to be a sentimental journey, as he had visited Europe in 1921 as crown prince and heir-apparent to the 2,600-year-old gold chrysanthemum throne.

Commenting on that 1921 trip, he once said: "I felt like a little bird in a little cage until I visited Europe. The experience gained enriched my life."

Upon his return he had hoped to introduce modern ways to the centuries-old imperial court. But that was denied him as he got drawn into Japan's rising militarism.

This year Hirohito spent part of his summer vacation at the Nasu imperial villa, about 75 miles north of Tokyo, where he hiked about the mountains for four to six hours a day to build up his stamina and physical fitness for his U.S. trip. He later returned to the imperial palace, where he sat through a series of lectures by Japanese experts on life in the United states, its history, diplomacy and other American facets including racial problems and Watergate.

Prof. Masakazu Yamazaki, 41, author-playwright of Kansai University, back from a trip to the United States, said he was surprised that the emperor "asked very articulate questions."

Both the emperor and the empress, 72, are in good health. Neither smokes nor drinks. On Sundays they stroll about the palace grounds for about two hours. The afternoons are usually spent with visiting children and grandchildren who stay over for dinner.

Hirohito's regular days begin at 7 a.m., after he scans the newspapers, which are disinfected before they are brought to him. He and the empress then have breakfast which usually consists of oatmeal, bacon and eggs, toast and coffee, a taste for which he acquired during his 1921 tour of Europe.

EMPEROR HIROHITO

EMPRESS NAGAKO

He also prefers Western-style clothing, dislikes brown and wears suspenders, but is seldom seen in imperial court robes and hardly ever in a kimono. The empress whose wardrobe includes both Western and Japanese clothing, selects his neckties.

At 10 a.m. Hirohito doffs his hat to the empress, who gives him a bow at the doorway. He then leaves for the office a short distance away. At the palace he reads documents sent by the Cabinet for his signature, receives visitors, sends messages, attends official functions and performs a variety of duties prescribed in the new constitution.

His work days ends at 5 p.m. but he usually stays on to clear up paper work. On Saturday he spends half the day in his research laboratory pursuing his favorite subject: biology. He is an internationally recognized biologist and has written books on hydrozoa, deep-sea coelenterate animals, such as jellyfish.

Following dinner, he and the empress watch television or listen to recorded music. His favorite sport is sumo, Japanese wrestling, which he watches on television and once a year joins the spectators at the sumo arena.

They retire at 10 p.m.

The emperor and empress have two sons and two daughters-in-law, Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko, and Prince Hitachi and Princess Hanako, and three daughters. They have nine grandchildren.

Hirohito's U.S. visit will be long on formality, with no activities which would run counter to Japanese customs and tradition. It is expected to be all smiles, bows and exchanging of formal greetings.

Boy's arm sewn back on in 7-hour surgery

BOSTON (AP) — A Pennsylvania boy is reported in good condition at Massachusetts General Hospital here after a 7-hour operation by three surgeons to replant his right arm, severed by a freight train.

The action of a nurse in the accident in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is credited with saving the life of Scott Cormier, 13.

The boy reportedly jumped on the ladder of a passing freight train, but was knocked off by a signal light. His right arm was severed three inches below the elbow.

Helen Igoe, a nurse who lives in the area, put a tourniquet on his arm, placed him in a shock position and called an ambulance after spotting the eighth-grader, who had walked about a block after the accident.

The boy and the severed portion of his arm were put on a plane for Boston, and young Cormier wound up by chance next to Dr. W. Hardy Hendren, chief of pediatric surgery at Massachusetts General, who gave the boy medical attention on the flight.

Hendren later joined with Dr. Ronald A. Malt, who made the first known successful replantation in 1962 after a similar accident, and Dr. Richard J. Smith, chief of hand surgery, in replanting Cormier's limb.

A hospital spokesman said the success of the operation will not be known for several days until it can be determined if proper circulation returns to the arm. A far longer period will be required to determine if the nerve endings will regenerate and restore the arm's normal functions.

I think that's a pretty healthy outlook, don't you?"

Liv Ullmann:

A Different Kind of Mother

Books on child-rearing abound, but few experts have explained the interplay between mother and daughter with as much clarity and intelligence as this week's cover story — Norwegian actress Liv Ullmann. Her personal account of motherhood is as disarming as her incomparable beauty and talent as an actress. This week, Liv Ullmann talks candidly about her greatest joy, eight-year-old daughter Linn. Read why Liv feels that not having "all the answers" is a mother's blessing, and why she feels that freedom for children produces healthier family relations if supplemented by consistent behavior by the parent. It's a different point of view from a different kind of mother.

Wild animals airlifted to safety

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Monkeys, cheetahs, lions, panthers, poisonous reptiles and even a hyena found wandering the city streets have found happier homes because of a unique "Animal Airlift" program here.

Wild critters native to Southern California are captured and loaded aboard a helicopter that flies them north into the Angeles National Forest for release in their natural habitat.

Exotic animals are turned over to zoos and other interested facilities.

Robert I. Rush, Department of Animal Regulation general manager, initiated the program six years ago. It not only removes a source of irritation for homeowners — few like a snake slithering across the front yard — but benefits the animals, forced to struggle for survival in an unnatural, hostile urban environment.

Rush said the program is unique. He knows of no other cities which have initiated similar programs.

In the six years since its inception, "Animal Airlift" has returned more than 2,400 animals, birds and reptiles to the wild.

"I believe we even have a better trapping record than Hudson Bay," said Rush. "And in our program, the animals retain their pelts."

Rush said the airlift program owes its "tremendous" success to public response.

"The program really works because the public supports us," he said. "The people know they can trust us not to blast the animals. They receive new, safer homes."

Native California animals which qualify for the flight back home include raccoons, opossums, foxes, rabbits, squirrels, snakes, predatory birds such as hawks and owls and an occasional deer.

Deer, because of their size, are trucked into the forest for release.

The program is carried out by two full-time department employes who capture the animals in harmless box-type traps. The traps are slung beneath a city helicopter for airlifting into various parts of the Angeles Forest.

Rush said that the animals are freed in selected areas where food, water and cover are naturally available to ease the transition back into a wild environment.

Owl blamed for power shortage

CHICO, Calif. (AP) — It's certain that a muskrat cut off electric service to 1,385 customers of the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. for more than an hour Monday night.

The question is: Did an owl put him up to it?

The muskrat's body was found about 9:30 p.m. across three circuits at a substation in Durham, nine miles south of Chico.

But since the muskrat was 10 feet off the ground, and muskrats don't climb, workmen think an owl dropped him off.

Brown inks law to put gun users in crime behind bars

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has signed a bill requiring mandatory prison sentences for persons who use firearms in serious crimes.

In his signing message Tuesday, Brown said, "Recent events underscore the appropriateness of swift and sure punishment for those who use guns to commit crimes," the Democratic governor said.

He also signed a bill extending from 5 to 15 days the waiting period before which a firearm purchaser may receive delivery.

His action came after the use of pistols twice in 17 days in California in alleged attempts to kill President Ford. Both laws go into effect Jan. 1.

The serious crimes in the mandatory prison sentence bill range from robbery to attempted murder.

"In signing this bill, I want to send a clear message to every person in this state that using a gun in the commission of a serious crime means a stiff prison sentence," Brown said.

"Whatever the circumstances, however eloquent the lawyer, judges will no longer have discretion to grant probation even to first offenders. This may not rehabilitate nor get at the underlying causes but it will punish those who deserve it. The philosophy of this bill is based not on sociology or Freudian theory, but on simple justice," he added.

The bill was introduced by state Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach.

Ford should have moratorium on appearances, say experts

STANFORD — (BW) — President Ford's determination to continue his open public appearances might add greatly to his risks in the near future, several Stanford experts warned in separate interviews.

A one- or two-month moratorium on open contact with large crowds could reduce the contagious effect of recent attempts on his life, they added.

The President's commitment to "stand tall" and continue his direct contact with the public is understandable and reassuring to the vast majority of Americans, they noted. But it also could provoke another assailant.

Extensive mass media coverage of would-be assassins can have the same effect, however unintentional this might be.

Prof. David Hamburg, a psychiatrist specializing in violence, said, "basically it's a great mistake for candidates to go out and press the flesh. There are a large number of seriously disturbed, violently oriented people in society, and an immense amount of weaponry available to them.

"There's no really adequate way to protect the President from such people and weaponry except by minimizing his exposure.

"Change in the behavior of candidates — and, above all, of Presidents — is essential. The real issue is whether we let voters decide who will be President or let assassins decide."

Hamburg studied Robert Kennedy's assassination and persuaded George McGovern to modify his campaigning to reduce the risk of a similar tragedy.

"The President certainly does not gain any meaningful exchange of information or ideas by pressing the flesh," Hamburg added. "It comes down to some intangible exhilaration. On the whole, that's bad for presidents. It gives them a god-like sense. It addicts them to a high level of adulation which no human being deserves."

What to do? "Hold meetings in relatively secure places," Hamburg suggested. "Handle this problem like skyjacking, which was highly contagious for a while. Take simple security measures with those going to meeting halls. Once there you can have all kinds of discussion.

"For larger numbers of people, rely very heavily on radio and TV. Have spontaneous, unrehearsed interviews with experienced, high caliber, independent journalists not picked by the candidates. Actually, people would see much more meaningful exchanges that way than by pressing around the President.

"Such programs could involve exchanges with a wide variety of people — lawyers, consumer groups, ordinary citizens, for example — without exposing candidates to a whole array of weapons. Strong public input is essential. It can't just be something in charge of the campaign committee."

While "standing tall" can be provocative to potential assailants, a nationally prominent psychologist added, "There might be a difference between what the President says and what he does."

Where the President ordinarily might have walked a block between two hotels in San Francisco, for example, he took a limousine between them Monday.

"One incident often serves as a stimulus for others. If a brief period of time elapses, it helps curtail the spread. It would be an awfully good idea to 'Cool it' for a while," he added.

For media to go beyond reporting the news to provide an international forum for would-be assassins to dramatize their cause is "irresponsible."

This expert asked not to be identified to avoid further publicity. He has studied skyjacking and the effect of media in the contagion of violence.

Prof. Alex Inkeles, a sociologist and educator, said profiles of people who attempt to assassinate presidents are "extremely consistent."

They tend to be "extremely isolated, given to fantasies," with no corrective influences on their personal system of belief. Words used in normal criticism of the president therefore can "take on a very different meaning" to them.

The pool of potential assassins is "considerable." Attempts on the president's life might "lower the threshhold" when more will act, Inkeles added. Closed societies don't have this contagion problem; "If someone had tried to assassinate Krushchev, no one would know about it," he said.

Psychology Professor Philip Zimbardo agreed it is "more appropriate to assume there's a vast number of potential assasins out there. The administration is underestimating the extent of alienation in society.

"A feeling of social community, not laws or capital punishment, keeps people behaving morally. Once people no longer feel part of society, a kind of law of the jungle can set in."

What was once unthinkable now has become "a viable alternative" for increasing numbers of people who feel they have "Nothing to lose" and perhaps even a measure of fame to gain by killing, Zimbardo said.

Reported plots by officials to kill foreign leaders and newspaper columnists contribute to this problem.

Many of the "get tough" statements on crime assume that a small number of people account for most violence, his colleague in psychology added. "The general public is under the impression we now have very good ways of predicting violence. That's simply not so."

Delusions of persecution, a marked decline in social and economic status and rather bizarre belief systems are common characteristics of those who make assassination attempts. But "you can find hundreds of thousands of others who share these qualities but do not engage in violent behavior," he noted.

Using standard characteristics thus leads to a "tremendous overprediction" of violent individuals in research studies.

Law school professor John Kaplan, author of "The Trial of Jack Ruby," said simply "Once someone starts taking pot shots, all kinds of nuts come out of the woodwork."

Presidents are "much too casual about their own security. The bullet proof vest was a very good idea," he added.

"The only President who had a fool-proof security scheme was Richard Nixon, because he had Spiro Agnew as vice president."

Ford's image is quite different, Zimbardo said. Among most people "the feeling is that he's a good man, personally."

The political pressure on him to make more personal appearances as the 1976 election approaches will be "tremendous." Realistically, "he wants to be president again and if he thinks it will help, he might put his life on the line for it."

While the President should continue to make speeches, to persist in plunging into crowds is "unnecessary and unwarranted," Zimbardo said. "We want our leaders to be strong, but we want them to be alive."

Parking question stalls action on Pomona senior citizen site

By L.T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

The Pomona Planning Commission wants more information before it gives its approval to a proposed 180 unit senior citizens housing complex at 755 N. Palomares Ave.

Representatives for the Greater Pomona Housing Development Corp. appeared Wednesday night before the planners seeking approval of an environmental impact report, conditional use permit and variances to reduce the number of offstreet parking spaces and to waive required recreational vehicle parking.

Following a lengthy discussion in which several persons who reside near the project site discussed an existing problem of parking vehicles on city streets, the planners requested a further study be made on parking requirements for senior citizens who reside in similar complexes.

The planners also wanted more information on the amount of rent to be charged.

Those residents testifying said there isn't room on streets surrounding the project for residents to park their own vehicles. They expressed concern over the need for more parking spaces generated by the complex.

L. V. Malmquist, project architect, said only about one third of the residents moving into the complex would have vehicles. He based this projection on similar senior citizen housing projects.

But should a demand for more parking space develop, the developers would seek to obtain additional property in the area for parking, he added.

Regarding the rent, Robert Kelley, project chairman, said this would depend on the bond market when the bonds to finance the complex are sold. But he estimated the average rent would be $200 a month.

The housing complex will include 138 one-bedroom apartments of 550 square feet each; 32 efficiency apartments of 376 square feet; and 10 two-bedroom apartments of 700 square feet each.

But since the environmental impact report didn't contain information about the rent, the planners agreed this should be included before the report was adopted.

The commission will receive the additional information at its next meeting.

The senior citizens housing complex is proposed on a five acre site bounded by San Francisco, Palomares, Gibbs and Pearl streets. It will be financed through the sale of nonprofit bonds recently authorized by Pomona residents in an election. Cost of the project is estimated at $3 million.

THANKS, GUYS!

Joe Mangrich, a Pomona accountant, shares with a couple of pigs the trophy and the five-pound ham he won Wednesday afternoon in the 14th annual hog-calling contest at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona. And since he won't see the hogs again until the 1976 fair, the appreciative Mangrich croons a few closing bars of his soo-ey song. Mangrich competed unsuccessfully the first 13 years of the contest.

O-M district, staff settle on 7.85% hike

By JOE FIRMAN
PB Staff Writer

At a special meeting this morning, the board of trustees of the Ontario-Montclair School District granted a salary and fringe benefit increase of 7.85 per cent to teachers and nonteaching employes.

The teachers had originally asked for a 9.5 per cent increase; the trustees of the financially beset district had offered 7.75 per cent.

The settlement of the wage dispute with the teachers came about Friday after a day-long arbitration meeting with Thomas V. Vitaich of the California Conciliation Service. Nine teachers of the Certificated Employes Council (CEC) took part in negotiations with Supt. Jack J. Jones, Asst. Supt. Charles F. Robar, and Deputy Supt. George Duerr. The district teachers approved the new pact by a 72 per cent vote Monday.

The agreement provides a salary increase of seven per cent, and with an additional .85 per cent going for fringe benefits. This amounts to a $138 per employe raise for the 1975-76 school year. A similar agreement was reached with the nonteachers following meet-and-confer sessions with the California School Employes Association, represented by Louis Poortinga, chairman. The trustees also approved that pact this morning.

The money for the increased salaries, amounting to $112,000, is one third of the $336,000 the district acquired through the recent Senate Bill 220. Another third of the sum will go into the district reserves, and the remaining third will be used to restore programs cut during the summer-long budget sessions.

The trustees also voted to restore the class size guidelines agreed to with the SEC. These provide a pupil-teacher ratio of 30-1, with 28-1 in the primary classes and 32-1 in grades four, five and six. In junior high schools the ratio will be 30.5-1.

Hog caller wins one after 13 losing years

Thirteen years of frustration ended Wednesday afternoon for Pomona accountant Joe Mangrich who finally won the annual hog-calling contest at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona.

Mangrich brought home to his family the proof of his victory over 25 other soo-ey serenaders — a trophy, and even more valuable, a canned ham.

The frustration had built to fever pitch for Mangrich who was even beaten by his 4-year-old son John in 1964. John's victory made headlines all over the country, and the youngster even appeared on the "I've Got A Secret" television program.

Another of the five Mangrich youngsters, Michael, competed, but didn't fare as well.

Now, flushed with victory, Mangrich is thinking, if only remotely, of putting out a hog-calling album for use by other contestants.

Fair queen Beth Redinius presented the trophy and the five-pound ham to the jubiliant Mangrich who may be ready to retire his old tattered straw hat after 13 years.

Second prize went to Raymond Raza of Rowland Heights. Howard Beardsley of Montclair was third, and winner of the last two contests, Howard Snider of Ontario, placed fourth.

Judges this year were fair publicity director Harry Hofmann, Don Bell, and Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair.

Observers said that the hogs were not too active Wednesday, and only wanted to root for a cool spot in the wet sawdust of the judging ring. But Mangrich's serenade finally got to them after 13 years of trying.

The 100-degree weather kept attendance down to 39,971 persons at the fair Wednesday, compared to 43,724 on a corresponding day in 1974.

Total attendance for the first 13 days of the fair this year is 829,164, still ahead of the 1974 attendance of 825,617.

Fair officials hope to welcome the one millionth visitor to the fair sometime Saturday.

Horse racing Wednesday attracted 8,006 fans to the Grandstand oval where they wagered $888,532 in 11 events.

ROBERT C. GUSTAVESON

New Kiwanis leader named

Municipal Court Judge Robert C. Gustaveson was installed Wednesday night as president of the Pomona Kiwanis Club.

Other officers installed were Bert W. Humphries Jr., first vice president, Sylvester Opbroek, second vice president; Rudolph J. Gregory, secretary; and Fred W. Scrimes, treasurer.

Elected to the board of directors were Don Williams, Ray Forrest, Michael Hiss and Juan Gamboa to two-year terms and the Rev. Ivan C. Walks, Frank Carr, James Turner and Vernon M. Weigand, one-year term.

Honored as "Kiwanian of the Year" was Rudolph Gregory. His selection was based on his dedication to the Kiwanis ideals in the promotion of higher social, business and professional standards and using the "Golden Rule" as a guide for everyday life, said officials.

The ceremony was held at Griswold's Restaurant in Claremont.

Fire ruins A.L. garage, cars, attic

Fire of undetermined origin roared through a two-car garage and attic of a new home at 6326 Moonstone Road in Alta Loma this morning, causing an estimated $20,000 damage.

The Marlin Dickey family was awakened by a neighbor, Ron Heimann, about 2:30 a.m. after he heard several small explosions and saw smoke pouring from their garage. Dickey, his wife and two sons ran out of their house to find that the garage and two cars parked inside were totally engulfed in flames.

When two pumper trucks and 13 Foothill District firemen arrived minutes later the fire had burned into the attic and roof of the new home. Firemen were able to contain the blaze in 20 minutes.

Fire inspectors said that the cause of the blaze has yet to be determined, but highly flammable liquids in the garage caused several explosions, pushing the fire into the attic and roof. A firewall, required in most new homes, prevented the fire from spreading into the living areas of the home, said fire inspectors.

The Dickey family lost a station wagon and an antique car parked in the garage along with camping equipment and other items.

Damaged building fixed

CHP ready to move — again

The California Highway Patrol Monday will try once again to move into its new area headquarters at 1801 E. D St., Ontario.

Officers had previously scheduled the move Aug. 1 but had to delay it when a roof beam broke from the roof ridge support and dropped eight inches.

"We have been looking forward to moving into our new building for a long time," said Capt. Eriks Svede, area commander. "This will provide more room for our officers and better access for the public."

The patrol has been located at 750 S. Indian Hill Blvd., for the past 12 years. The building was constructed to accommodate 60 officers. The staff has expanded to 69 uniformed officers and 14 civilian employes.

The Ontario office, located on three acres of land, represents a $280,000 investment. The Schultz Construction Co. of Sacramento is the builder and owner. The state will lease the facility at $5,000 a month. This compares to $750 paid for the Claremont office.

The new facility with 8,700 square feet of floor space has a gasoline pump, car wash, and large parking lot to accommodate trucks needing clearance or inspections.

2 hurt as car swerves by cow

Two persons were injured Wednesday night when a driver swerved to avoid a cow on Soquel Canyon near Chino and the car hit an embankment.

Lawrence Eye, 19, of 1455 W. Fourth St. and Dave Kostolnik, 18, of 1549 W. Princeton St., both Ontario, were treated at Chino General Hospital. They were passengers in a car driven by Bart Knight, 18, of 1130 Highland Court, Ontario.

Knight was driving west on Soquel Canyon Road about 25 miles an hour when the cow ran across the road in front of him.

Raising price on binding ties

Greeting card publishers, purporting to act on behalf of all customers of the U.S. Postal Service, have filed suit in U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, D.C. to overturn recent Postal Rate Commission rulings that will allow a 30-per cent increase in the cost of a first-class stamp by year's end — from 10 cents to 13 cents.

"We are asking the appeals court to prevent this unreasonable boost in the cost of first-class postage, which further interferes with an individuals' right to communicate," says Robert H. Busler, president of the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers. "We do so not only for our own industry, whose products account for only 10 per cent of first class mail usage, but for the millions of ordinary Americans who buy first-class stamps but have no organization or means of protesting."

While greeting cards may account for only 10 per cent of all first-class mail, they account for 100 per cent of the greeting card business. Since most cards are mailed, a 30 per cent rise in the cost of postage will result in a drastic decline in card sales, the industry fears.

As Busler puts it: "These are the little ties that bind families and friends together across our continent. Every penny increase in the cost of mailing a personal note cuts back dramatically on the inclination — and the ability — of some folks to keep those ties alive."

One hopes the fear is exaggerated. After all, in a few short years Americans have witnessed not only postage stamps more than double but the cost of the average card more than triple. People seem to have learned to live with both changes.

Still, there may be a limit to what the public will absorb. Already, there are predictions in Washington that first-class postage will go as high as 25 cents within two years.

Back in the days when you could mail a card for four cents in an unsealed envelope, the cry was all for efficiency in the Post Office. Editorial writers regularly lambasted the department's annual deficits and demanded that it "pay its own way." Today, for all the increases in postal rates and cutbacks in service, the supposedly revamped Postal Service still can't operate without federal subsidies.

It's rough on all of us, greeting card publishers and unorganized, taxpaying individuals who communicate alike.

Worthless autographs

Your average politician's signature isn't worth much more than the paper it's written on.

Authority for this is Charles Hamilton, professional autograph collector and handwriting expert, who says that the vast majority of the one million people who collect autographs in the United States are under the false impression that signatures of politicians, television, movie, sports and other celebrities are valuable.

Actually, says Hamilton, such signatures are worth "peanuts." Only a few command the price of a Teddy Kennedy, currently one of the most popular signatures — from $10 to $30.

Another factor that diminishes the signature value of Washington politicians is the Autopen, which many senators and congressmen as well as presidents use. This robotlike machine can write as many as 3,000 signatures a day, each one virtually impossible to tell from a real one.

On the other hand, new writing instruments such as the plastic-tipped pen, which combines the fine line of a ballpoint with the vivid colors of a felt tip to give a bold and cleaner appearance, will eventually have a beneficial effect on an autograph's value. If it had been available years ago, many autographs would perhaps be worth a great deal more today, thinks Hamilton.

"Autographs are not just signatures of famous personalities," he points out, "but more properly letters, manuscripts or anything handwritten. An autograph gains most of its value by its historic significance, not just the signature at the end of the paper."

Thoughts

What is man that thou art mindful of him, and the son of man that thou dost care for him? Yet thou has made him little less than God, and dost crown him with glory and honor. — Psalm 8:4, 5.

"I believe that man will not merely endure: he will prevail. He is immortal, not because he alone among creatures has an inexhaustible voice, but because he has a soul, a spirit capable of compassion and sacrifice and endurance." — William Faulkner, American novelist.

Nicaragua Ambassador replies

I would like to refer to an article written by Jack Anderson on the personal activities of President Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua which appeared in the Progress Bulletin on Aug. 19.

May I point out, first of all, that it is a matter of long standing record that President Somoza has never denied his wealth. In fact, the President's ownership of properties and company interests is a matter of public record in Nicaragua as required by Nicaraguan laws which, to say the least, makes it totally unnecessary to "smuggle" such documents out of the country.

Of international importance is the published statement that Mr. Anderson compared his acquired information with "secret" U.S. Government documents. This curious statement is a grave one, if true, and could raise an issue of potential concern to other foreign missions in Washington, D.C. and elsewhere. This is a matter which could clearly fall within the competence of the U.S. Government to deal with.

The assertion made by Mr. Anderson associating the President with certain major international private enterprises in Nicaragua, such as cigarette companies, banks, and others, which is entirely unfounded, might be considered to have serious implications by the third parties alluded to.

Strong objections must be taken to the allegations linking the President to businesses of a questionable moral nature. These allegations, which are hereby emphatically denied and those others which, lacking in total integrity, resort to gross and unsubstantiated innuendoes, merit no respect.

Mr. Anderson's article is a litany of distortions and his gratuitious personal comments are not only in the poorest taste but are unworthy and slanderous.

In dedicating so much space to being critical of President Somoza's personal affairs, it is also to be regretted that Mr. Anderson did not see fit to balance the record by at least making some passing reference to his personal qualities and the many progressive policies and programs of his administration. Fair and balanced criticism is one thing, but it is difficult to see what real constructive purpose is served by this type of reporting.

It is perfectly true that I have been unavailable at the Embassy. As a matter of fact, I was in Managua where I remained to attend the presentation of credentials by your new Ambassador to Nicaragua, His Excellency James D. Theberge.

I would appreciate it if you would extend to me the courtesy of making known the contents of this letter to the readers of the Progress Bulletin.

Shah's arms snafu

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon has dispatched its top efficiency expert to Iran to straighten out a supply snarl, which is rapidly developing into the worst military foul-up in peacetime history.

The trouble shooter, Erich von Marbod, previously was rushed to Saigon during the final hours of the Vietnam War. He managed to salvage or destroy sensitive equipment, which the Pentagon wanted to keep out of communist hands.

Under the noses of the advancing communists, he hauled out uncrated electronic equipment on barges and flew out South Vietnamese planes. He saved the United States hundreds of millions of dollars.

Now von Marbod had been sent to Iran, as Defense Secretary James Schlesinger's personal representative, to work a new miracle.

The problem has been created by the Shah, who has squandered his oil billions on modern weapons faster than his armed forces can assimiliate them. In the past two years, he has ordered a staggering $6.4 billion worth of military hardware from the U.S.

As a result, mountains of munitions are piling up on Iranian docks and fields. Planes, Helicopters and other sophisticated weapons are left in crates for weeks, waiting to be assembled.

Iranian air crews simply can't be trained fast enough to operate all the aircraft that the eager Shah has thrust upon them. They were just learning to fly the F-4s when the Shah began buying F-5Es. Before the F-5E crews are broken in, the still more advanced F-14s will begin arriving.

It will be months before Iranian crews will be able to operate some of the complex new planes and helicopters. It will take even longer to train technicians to repair the intricate equipment when it breaks down. The Iranian Navy won't be able to man some of the new destroyers for two years.

The Pentagon has already assigned 2,000 military advisers, under the command of Maj. Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, to help the Iranians utilize their new equipment. But the U.S. technicians can't teach the Iranians the necessary skills as fast as the supplies are dumped on them.

The accumulation is mounting, meanwhile, with the biggest shipments yet to come. "The Shah has bitten off more than he can digest," said one source. Another conceded: "We are projecting a massive snafu."

It will be von Marbod's mission to save the Shah from his own haste. The Iranians are competent enough to operate a modern military machine once they're properly instructed. But it will take "a lot of show-and-tell," one source told us.

Von Marbod has a staff of eight crack experts, direct access to the top Pentagon brass and a reputation as a man "who gets things done." But this still may not be enough to transform Iran into a major military power overnight.

Footnote: One reason for the massive overbuying, commercial sources confide, is that most Iranian officials are corrupt. The big U.S. munitions makers keep representatives in Teheran. They are paid huge commissions, which they share with the Iranians who approve the purchases. The corrupt Iranians usually get a 10 per cent kickback; the more purchase orders they approve, therefore, the richer they get.

DRUG FILES — The Drug Enforcement Administration has invested heavily in grease pens to black out the sensitive paragraphs from files that they are compelled to divulge under the Freedom of Information law.

Officials explained to us that convicted drug pushers are using the law to try to overturn their sentences and mobsters are demanding file searches to seek the identities of confidential informants.

One active New York drug dealer sent in a formal inquiry, for example, demanding whether he was being investigated by federal agents. The DEA held back the information for the legal time limit, and then arrested him for selling heroin just before his question would have had to be answered.

The officials claim that as high as 90 per cent of the disclosure requests come from individuals directly or indirectly involved in the drug trade. "We can't fabricate a story or fail to respond," a senior DEA official told our associate Bob Owens. "All we can do is draft gobbledygook."

On the other hand, the DEA censors have been using their grease pens freely to keep information from the public. We invoked the Freedom of Information law, for example, to get the DEA file on us.

The file included a Sept. 11, 1973, memo about a column we had written. "The subject article," states the memo, "indicated that Jack Anderson was in possession of classified Justice Department documents." The rest of the memo, including the name of the official who wrote it, was blotted out.

THIEU'S TRIP — The real reason South Vietnam's deposed President Nguyen Van Thieu has applied for a visa to visit Britain, according to diplomatic sources, is to settle there. He, therefore, has reached an understanding with the British that his six-month visa will be considered "open ended."

He would prefer to live in the United States, but U.S. diplomats have talked him out of it. His arrival, they warned him, might touch off demonstrations. So he is now planning to reside in Britain where his son attends school.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Rep. Joe Evins, D.-Tenn., submitted a bill to grant the Energy Research and Development Administration $15,000 for entertainment. As if anticipating the bill's success, ERDA threw a luxury bash five days later at Washington's stylish Mayflower hotel. Cost to the taxpayers: $2,344.94

Savings inflow

Heaviest August lending

NEW YORK (AP) — New money went into the nation's savings and loan association at a slower monthly pace in August, the U.S. League of Savings Associations reported today.

At the same time, the league said the nation's S&Ls made $5.7 billion in new mortgage loans to home buyers, making it the heaviest August lending period in the industry's history.

A league spokesman said mortgage lending had been rising for several months and much of the activity appeared to be in single-family housing.

The August new savings figure, or net inflow, totaled $1 2 billion, sharply lower than the $3.1 billion inflows of both June and July, but higher than the $1.1 billion savings outflow of a year ago.

"Earlier in the summer, savings were coming in in such big lumps it couldn't last forever," the spokesman said. He said the inflow decline in August probably meant that that some savers were putting their dollars to work in higher-yielding money market instruments such as certificates of deposit, where interest rates have been rising lately.

The league estimated that, at current rates, total 1975 savings inflows will reach $40 billion and new mortgage lending will approach $52 billion.

The league's monthly figures are based on reports from 903 savings associations representing about 49 per cent of the industry's total savings.

Just in jest

A reader writes all the way from the Desert Inn in Las Vegas to ask:

"Don't you agree that the perfect example of progressing from the sublime to the ridiculous is scented toilet tissue?"

Well, anyone who will take time out from the fleshpots and jackpots of Las Vegas to seek my advice has either shot his bankroll and has time to kill or else has happened onto something rather interesting in toilet tissue in Fun City's restrooms. In either case the writer is certainly deserving of an answer. So now comes my considered opinion.

Most assuredly scented toilet tissue is a perfect example of progressing from the sublime to the ridiculous. But why stop there? While we are about it why not give it credit for having gone all the way to the asinine?

Tom Tiede

Vets don't die, they rot away

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — While speaking to marine veterans of Guadalcanal during World War II, Eleanor Roosevelt was pelted with coins from an audience not really in the mood for platitudes or deference. Afterwards, the shaken Mrs. Roosevelt wondered aloud whether men subjected so long to war should not — even as the combat K-9's — be given some kind of training to help them readjust to the idea of nonviolent behavior.

The idea, lofty and altogether too idealistic, was rejected. Too bad. We are still learning of soldiers who, without aid, are sometimes tragically unable to readjust to peace. Today we call it the post-Vietnam Syndrome, and the jails, mental wards, bars and unemployment lines are peopled by our "boys" who can't cope.

William McFarland Jr. is one of them. His case has come to the attention of Dr. William Corson, a former marine colonel now coordinating a Vietnam veterans study program for Penthouse magazine. Forget the Penthouse reputation; Corson's program is a sober, if lonely, contribution to a vital matter. And McFarland is a ripe example of the screaming need for some light on the subject.

This then is Bill McFarland's story. It is not uplifting reading.

In 1965, the day after he learned of the death of a friend in Vietnam, McFarland, then 17 years old, enlisted in the army. He went to infantry school, airborne school, canine school, jungle advanced training and did graduate work in hand-to-hand combat.

He learned to kill in a variety of specialized ways.

When he turned 18, in 1966, he was sent to the First Infantry Division in Vietnam, then one of the most action-prone units in the war. The first dead man he saw was an American mutilated by the Viet Cong, "with his genitals sewn in his mouth." After that the sight of the dead became routine.

His sergeant died. His best pal was blown away. McFarland began smoking grass, boozing rotgut, and sniffing dope. Eventually he too was hit, in the legs, and after several months, six medals, and permanent disabilities, was sent home.

The absence of war, however, did not bring peace to McFarland. He claims the pain-killing agents given him while hospitalized were addicting. Also, he could not forget Vietnam (among those he killed, he says, were young children). He suffered blackouts, nightmares; he tried to kill himself. Six months after his discharge the veteran, just 19 years old, was judicially declared mentally incompetent.

A few years later, McFarland got into a squabble with a man on a California street. The man was killed. Bill McFarland was found guilty, given a sentence of five years to life and sent to prison.

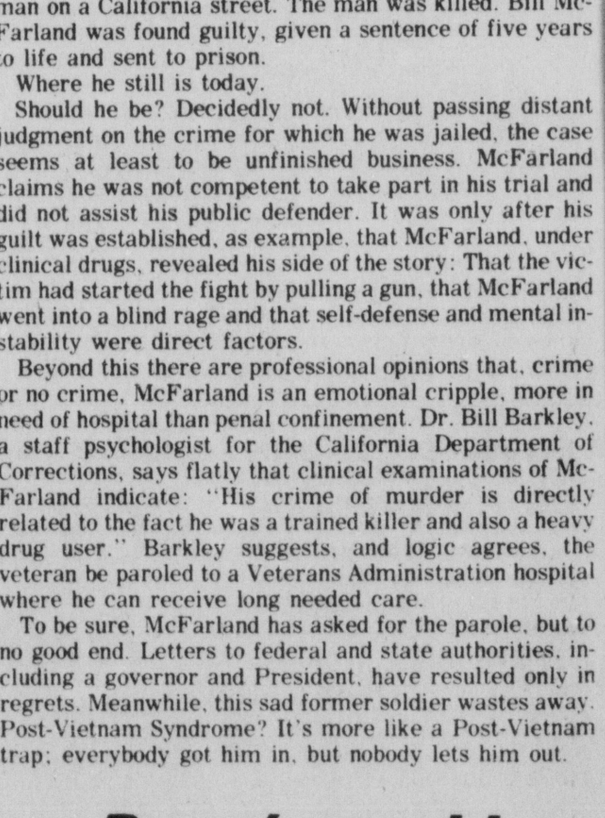

Where he still is today.

Should he be? Decidedly not. Without passing distant judgment on the crime for which he was jailed, the case seems at least to be unfinished business. McFarland claims he was not competent to take part in his trial and did not assist his public defender. It was only after his guilt was established, as example, that McFarland, under clinical drugs, revealed his side of the story: That the victim had started the fight by pulling a gun, that McFarland went into a blind rage and that self-defense and mental instability were direct factors.

Beyond this there are professional opinions that, crime or no crime, McFarland is an emotional cripple, more in need of hospital than penal confinement. Dr. Bill Barkley, a staff psychologist for the California Department of Corrections, says flatly that clinical examinations of McFarland indicate: "His crime of murder is directly related to the fact he was a trained killer and also a heavy drug user." Barkley suggests, and logic agrees, the veteran be paroled to a Veterans Administration hospital where he can receive long needed care.

To be sure, McFarland has asked for the parole, but to no good end. Letters to federal and state authorities, including a governor and President, have resulted only in regrets. Meanwhile, this sad former soldier wastes away. Post-Vietnam Syndrome? It's more like a Post-Vietnam trap; everybody got him in, but nobody lets him out.

Ex-racing dog may be good pet

DEAR DR. MILLER: Because the owner knows I love dogs, and because I have the room for it, I've been offered Big Daddy, a retired racing greyhound. He really seems like a nice dog from what I can tell, but a friend has warned me they're an erratic, treacherous breed that'll go for your throat when they have a chance. Personally, as I say, I liked the dog, but with this kind of a warning, well, can you give me some advice on this? — K. V.

DEAR K. V.: Many greyhounds are hyper, high-strung dogs. They are, after all, bred for racing and have to be turned on to some degree off the track as well as on. This doesn't automatically mean they are neurotic, however. Far from it. Odds are there are a greater percentage of neurotic dogs among the more popular pet breeds today, due primarily to faulty breeding, than there are among greyhounds. The very fact that racing greyhounds are bred to ensure survival of the fittest insofar as athletic capabilities are concerned contributes to their mental soundness as well. A veterinarian can help you check out Big Daddy for psychological stability. He just could be an easy winner in that contest, too.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Stark, our parakeet, has this very unusual habit of eating cat food. I've never heard of a bird doing this before and wondered if it's good or bad for him. He seems very healthy so far. — K. A.

DEAR K. A.: The state of Stark's health might depend less on the nutritional value of cat food than on the cat. Presuming said food was purchased initially for a feline and that one is about, the greatest concern here would be that the cat didn't temporarily substitute fresh parakeet for prepared cat food. Nutritionally, from the parakeet's point of view, cat food would make an excellent supplement since its high protein content would fortify standard fare of parakeet seed which is, unfortunately, low in balanced protein.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I'm passing along a tip for cages with a mousey odor. Mix a teaspoon of oil of eucalyptus in a quart of water and mist this into the cage. It makes a great safe deodorizer. — A. O.

DEAR A. O.: Your deodorant dew can indeed prove helpful. However, a cage with a mousey odor is generally inhabited by mice, and an unsanitary cage is not a healthy one. Therefore daily cleaning with frequent scrubs is vital.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My horse was vaccinated for equine encephalitis this year. Why not? I figured it protected both him and me. Now some joker tells me snakes can give you encephalitis too. You can't go around vaccinating snakes. Is there anthing to do about that besides keeping clear of them — which I do anyway. — M.A.

DEAR M.A.: While snakes are potential carriers of viral equine encephalitis, you needn't worry too much about picking up the virus from one of the critters. Transmission of the virus from snakes to man has never been recorded.

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Friday, Sept. 26, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your promises today will lack your usual sincerity. Remember: You'll hurt someone more by reneging on a pledge than if you didn't make it at all.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You won't have your head together in business today. Because of your lack of awareness, something of value will be lost.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's not like you to carry that little green eyed monster on your shoulder. But he'll be perched there when someone you're fond of casts her eyes elsewhere.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll be very disappointed if you expect things to fall in your lap effortlessly. You get nothing for nothing today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Usually you're very straightforward in conversations with pals. Today, you're apt to try to camoflauge meanings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Self-doubts could sidetrack some influences that would prove very favorable to your career. Have faith in your ability today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're going to make some unfortunate alterations in plans today, because you place more credence in the ideas of others than they deserve.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Avoid trying to pull another's chestnuts out of the fire today. You'll find it costly and unrewarding.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's not wise to expect too much of others today. Even those exceptionally fond of you can only perform within certain limitations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Steer clear today of one who has reason to be jealous of your achievements. This person is inclined to throw stumbling blocks in your path.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you want to accomplish today what you set out to, don't be timid. You must be bold and forthright, but not reckless.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Keep confidential matters within the family today. Loose talk will be played back and it will be distorted in the transmission.

Your Birthday, Sept. 26, 1975

You will make some major changes in your lifestyle this coming year. They'll be well thought through. Someone now distant from you will have a major hand in them.

Ann Landers

How one kid handled pity

Dear Ann Landers: I identified strongly when I read that letter from the mother of the three-year-old child who had to wear a patch over one eye and strangers on the street kept coming over and asking, "What happened to the child?"

Our own youngster is now eight years of age. He had an eye problem last year and had to wear a patch for several weeks. One day when we were at the beach a nosy lady came over and looked at the boy with such pity it made me sick. Finally she asked the child, "What's the matter with your eye, dear?" Without a moment's hesitation he replied, "Nothing, lady. I'm a pirate."

Needless to say, the woman disappeared in no time flat. How's that for a snappy comeback? — From The Mouths Of Babes

Dear Babe: Beautiful. That son of yours sounds as if he's not going to have any trouble making his way in the world.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a harried women's editor for a daily newspaper. Many times you have gone to bat for members of other professions, so how about a little help for some of your own?

You wouldn't believe some of the "Requests To Print" that have hit this office. The handwriting is impossible to read, names misspelled, important facts and dates left out. Then we catch holy hell because the story wasn't "right."

Please ask your readers who send material to newspapers to observe the following rules:

Either type the message (double space) or write so we can read it. The person submitting the item should give his name, address and phone number in case more information is needed.

Stick to the basics in journalism: Who, What, When, Where, Why. Stay with the facts. Don't editorialize or exaggerate. (It isn't necessary to say your daughter is marrying the best-looking boy in his class.)

And please get the material to us in time. Old news is for history books.

Thanks, Ann. — S.D. From Tupelo, Miss.

Dear S.D.: Here are your helpful hints for the public. I hope it makes your job easier.

Dear Ann Landers: It has taken me five days to get up the courage to write this letter. I have also spent several hours looking in the dictionary for words that might make my letter printable. The subject isn't dirty but it isn't one people discuss in polite society. Please help me.

I am a 22-year-old male who plans to be married soon. I have never been circumcised. My fiancee tells me that women who are married to circumcised men have less chance of getting cancer of the cervix. I checked this out and she is correct.

Can the circumcision be done in a doctor's office? I hate hospitals. Is it worth the trouble? — Wish My Folks Had Given Me A Briss

Dear Wish: Circumcision is the cutting away of the male foreskin. It can be done in a doctor's office under anesthetic. Yes, it is somewhat painful but it's well worth the discomfort. In Biblical times it was done as a religious ritual — and like many religious rituals it had a solid basis in hygiene. I agree, it would have been a lot easier if your folks had given you a briss, but forgive them, and vow to do better by your sons.

How young is too young for a child to learn about sex? That's just one thing you'll find in Ann Landers's new booklet, "How, What and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." Send 50 cents in coin, along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Family picnic was no picnic

While sitting in the doctor's office last week awaiting my appointment, I leafed through a magazine that sent a chill down my spine.

It showed the Hemingway clan, Muffet, Puck and Margeaux, at a picnic in the mountains. It seems Muffet just authored a new book called, "The Picnic Gourmet," setting out to prove a picnic could be very special. To perform this miracle she chose a remote mountain spot by a cooling stream, cloth napkins and table cloth, enameled Chinese plates, big wine goblets, and of course a simple menu of cold watercress soup (kept cool in the stream), asparagus-wrapped ham, whole wheat bread baked by Muffet, strawberry daiquiris, chicken roasted and stuffed with wild garlic and herbs, yogurt, cucumbers and mint, banana cake and for a touch of the ordinary, four-bean salad.

You cannot imagine what this does to a woman who thought aspic was a ski resort in Colorado and turkey divan was a bad buy on a sofa.

Putting down the magazine, I couldn't help but remember our last family picnic.

We "chose" the last spot in the park . . . between the "facilities" and a camper full of kids whose father sat in a folding chair without a shirt drinking beer.

As I was cleaning the spilled baked beans out of the car trunk my husband noted the kids had left the lid open on the cooler and the ice had melted. Bacteria was moving in on the potato salad.

The older boy took charge of the hamburgers . . . throwing his body over a grill to reserve it, then yelling back for the charcoal, the charcoal lighter, the hamburger and the matches. We had everything but the matches.

We were seated around a stadium blanket when a motorcycle ran over the Twinkies. A Frizbee landed in the potato salad. Our youngest cut his foot on a flip-top cap and bled on the last two ice cubes. I checked on the Tab I had put in the stream to "chill." Someone had stolen it.

"What seems to be the trouble?" asked the nurse summoning me for my appointment.

"I have just developed a pain back here," I said.

"In the neck?" ("No, lower.")

"Your shoulder?" ("Lower.")

"Your back?" ("A little lower.")

"Here!" ("You got it!")

Dr. Lamb

Salt won't cause constipation

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 50 years old and have been bothered with constipation for a long time. I use a lot of table salt on most everything I eat. My husband says this is the reason for my constipation. Your opinion, please.

DEAR READER — No. The salt is absorbed from your digestive tract and eliminated through your kidneys, as long as you have good kidney function. Too much salt, though, may be harmful to your kidneys or may even be related to developing high blood pressure. Moderation in salt use is a good idea.

Constipation is caused from many factors. The problem is often related to improper eating habits, unwise use of laxatives and poor bowel habits. It is usually possible to overcome these problems by changing your way of living. This involves changing in eating habits and bowel training.

The process is fairly involved but not difficult. If you want more details on constipation, write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Send 50 cents, a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, and ask for The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a stomach disorder which is driving me crazy. After I eat or drink almost anything I have a heavy feeling in my stomach accompanied by indigestion. If left unattended I usually end up belching up undigested food for hours. Although not painful, this is very annoying. To eliminate this discomfort I usually drink a glass of water mixed with baking soda, belch up the contents in my stomach, and find immediate relief.

I went to my doctor in regard to this approximately three years ago. After various tests were given (ulcer check, etc.) I was given a clean bill of health.

Last year I separated from my wife and within days these symptoms completely disappeared. Five months ago we went back together and — you guessed it — the symptoms returned, although our marriage seems much better.

Perhaps the problem is psychological and in turn creating physical havoc on my system, but this is an unprofessional guess, and even if accurate, where do I begin? Please help!

DEAR READER — Your unprofessional guess is probably right. You are describing esophageal or cardio-spasm. The spasm occurs in the muscles in the lower esophagus just where the esophagus joins the stomach.

Why do I think so? Because you said you belched up undigested food hours later. If the food had gotten into your stomach and had been there several hours it would be at least partially digested by the acid digestive juices in the stomach.

That is also why your doctor didn't see anything. The spasm comes and goes, like a muscle cramp. When you see a person with this problem and he doesn't have the spasm during the examination you can't see it or establish the diagnosis. It is like the intermittent rattle in your car. It is always gone when you get to the garage.

Go back to your family doctor and try again. He may be lucky enough to get X ray or fluoroscopy studies of you when you are in spasm. He can also refer you to a mental health clinic or psychologist for some professional counseling. You probably need to resolve some sources of conflict that are causing you anxiety and tension, and you won't be able to do it alone.

Just because something is psychological is no reason not to try to resolve it. The problem is just as real as if you had an irritation in your esophagus from some disease. Meanwhile, stop all cigarettes, coffee, colas and tea.

Opening lead — Q ♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Dinadan, the worst knight and bridge player, knows his limitations. He steers clear of challenges at both sword and card play. When Lancelot opened one no trump, Dinadan raised the peerless one to three instead of showing his five-card heart suit.

The defense started with four club tricks. Then, East shifted to a spade. Lancelot, who had discarded one spade from each hand, rose with his ace and started on diamonds.

He had no reason to try a finesse for the jack of that suit. When it failed to drop, it was all up to the heart suit.

Lancelot stopped to analyze the opening lead and decided that if West had been dealt a five-card major suit he would have led it. Hence, his distribution would be 4-4-2-3.

Thus hearts were going to break 4-2. After that analysis it was no problem to finesse against the jack of hearts and score the no trump game.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Quebec wants to know what he should have led from:

♠ 2 ♥ A Q 8 7 ♦ K Q 3 2 ♣ A Q 9 8

after his partner passed to his takeout double of a one spade opening bid.

There is an old expert convention here. This convention is when your partner passes your takeout double of a one bid, he wants you to lead a trump if you have one. Our correspondent should have opened his singleton trump.

"You mean after forcing me ten blocks out of my way, you're all too broke to buy anything?"

Taller men more successful

Tall men are not more intelligent than short men, everybody knows that. But tall men generally are more successful. For instance, one study has shown that service station owners tend to be taller than the attendants who work for them. Extra height gives the taller fellows the psychological advantage of greater self-confidence, that's clear.

TO HIS LIST of reconditioned proverbs, our Language man has added Mrs. Walter R. Koch's lines: "One swallow does not make a drunk." "A Miss is as good as a Mrs." And: "A Bud in the hand is worth two in the Anheuser Busch."

LUNCH

Q. "What goes into that German sausage known as bockwurst?"

A. Veal, cream and eggs among other things. It's great. Let's break for lunch. Maybe I'll try bratwurst, instead. Its meat is flavored with ginger and coriander. Or polish sausage with its aroma of garlic and marjoram.

COUPLE MORE WORDS, each of which bears two exactly opposite meanings, are citation and sanction.

HOW PEOPLE got around to sleeping pajamas, I do not know. Can only report they were not originally intended to be sleeping attire. They were first used in India as lounging costumes.

JOE PENNER

Consider yourself a Seasoned Citizen, if you remember the burlesque comic Joe Penner, whose routine almost invariably included the query: "Want to buy a duck?" Why was that line funny? Most mysterious. Yet it brought the house down every time. Penner himself never understood it. In building his act, he originally asked: "Want to buy a horse?" Then: "Want to buy an elephant?" And; "Want to buy a giraffe?" Nobody laughed. But the audience always roared over the "duck" line.

CLIENTS CONTINUE to ridicule the claim that no deer killed instantly by a 30-30 bullet ever heard the sound of the shot. How do I know? they ask. Did I interview the dead deer? That's cutting. The velocity of a 30-30 bullet is about 2,200 feet a second. Sound doesn't travel that fast.

What people say

"Fat, whether it is called cellulite or just plain fat, has become America's most important natural resource. It can only be compared to offshore oil in terms of the number of people who are delighted to mine it."
— Harvard nutritionist Jean Mayer, quoted in the National Observer, in a report on "cellulite" reducing clinics that have sprung up recently.

The band includes Irene Freisinger on piano and husband, Mike, on harmonica.

Nothing can be done to stop crime rate?

WASHINGTON (AP) — As robbers, rapists and murderers prey upon more and more Americans, many experts are conceding that little if anything can be done to stop it.

Some suggest that any politician who promises more is a fool but one who dares ignore the issue may be a bigger fool because many, many voters fear that they, too, may become victims.

The politicans and the professional crime-fighters may tinker with the system of police, prosecutors, courts and prisons and they may actually improve it in slow and small ways.

But whatever the improvements, those who deal with the problem say there's hardly a chance in a million that the nation's crime rate will drop significantly, quickly or permanently.

A collection of 15 men and women who have made it their business to fight crime or study it examined the problem with a group of reporters and editors last week in a conference sponsored by the Washington Journalism Center.

This group of liberal and conservative government officials, lawyers and researchers disagreed sharply on the changes that ought to be made in the sluggish and often unfair criminal justice system.

But all were pessimistic that any changes could bring about a swift national decline in those crimes which touch their victims most closely — murder, rape, assault, robbery, burglary, larceny and motor vehicle thefts.

The nation's crime rate, based on the number of those seven offenses reported to police, rose 17 per cent last year and the upward trend is continuing at about the same rate this year. Other studies indicate that the number of crimes actually committed may be two or three times as much as is reported to police.

"I don't feel the crime situation will improve immediately. We're in for a long, hard fight. It's going to get worse before it gets better," said Charles R. Work, deputy chief of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

One by one, they recited a familiar litany of conditions which form the conventional but unproven wisdom about why people rob and kill their relatives, their neighbors, and strangers on the street.

Poverty, unemployment, two hundred years of discrimination by the rich against the poor and whites against blacks. Those conditions lead the list for political liberals.

The conservatives tend to start their recitation with the breakdown of the family, the dwindling influence of the church, and the shattered discipline of the schools.

Perhaps the liberals are closer to the mark, perhaps the conservatives are. But the crime experts at this conference and others say they know of no solid research identifying the causes of crime.

As Georgetown University law professor Sam Dash pointed out, people have offered the same guesses for decades. A Johnson administration crime commission came to about the same conclusions in 1966 as another government crime commission did in 1937.

Though handicapped by the lack of knowledge about what causes crime, the experts suggest some ways of dealing with it.

The most optimistic say the changes they advocate might make a small dent in the frequency of crime. Others argue only that the changes will improve and speed up the way the system treats criminals and their victims.

Restore the death penalty because that is a real deterrent to crime, argue police spokesman King and such political figures as Republican Ronald Reagan and Democrat George Wallace.

No, replies Washington lawyer E. Barrett Prettyman Jr., who has researched the death penalty issue extensively. He says statistics show that the highest murder rates have occurred in states with the death penalty.

Regardless of the effectiveness of capital punishment in deterring crime, perhaps the people will demand it. An Ohio newspaper editor remarks, "I think we're an Old Testament nation. There is something in us, perhaps savage, that is only going to be satisfied by a permanent, visible and drastic punishment."

Prettyman responded, "If we do have these savage impulses, I would hope we could get rid of them in some way other than putting someone to death."

The issue of what to do with criminals once they're in prison provokes sharp disagreement, but more and more policymakers and scholars are leaning toward the view that rehabilitation doesn't work.

"It's a joke to say anybody is getting rehabilitated in prison. We're just putting them in storage," argued Edward Bennett Williams, the high-priced and highly effective Washington lawyer.

"I don't agree with those who say rehabilitation doesn't work because I don't think we've tried much of it," contended Patrick Murphy, who runs the private research-oriented Police Foundation and at one time or another was police chief in New York City, Washington and Detroit.

"I'm not one of those people who think there's no hope for rehabilitation," added Work of the LEAA, which spends nearly $1 billion a year of the taxpayers' money on programs to fight crime.

But those who argue for continued effort to find ways to rehabilitate some offenders agree with their opponents that halfway houses, job training programs and the like probably aren't going to work with the career criminal.

Work said he senses a "remarkable degree of unanimity between the traditional left and right that something ought to be done about the recidivist."

The statistics indicate that most violent crimes are committed by men under 35, many of them repeaters.

There is a trend among the crime experts to argue that those offenders should be locked up, not with any hope of rehabilitating them, but simply to keep them from harming society for at least those months or years they are behind bars.

Santarelli put it as bluntly as anyone. "If you locked up everybody you convicted until age 35, you'd have no recidivism. The drive to commit crime is gone by 35."

This group of thinkers about crime tossed around some other ideas, few of them new, some modest, some outrageous.

Glen King suggested administering a truth serum to defendants at their trial to determine whether they committed the offense charged. Mitigating circumstances and punishment could be considered by the attorneys and the judge later, he says.

"A federal judge ought to make at least $60,000 a year," grand juries ought to be abolished in most cases, and trials should be videotaped to speed up the process, suggested Williams.

There should be some experimenting with a system of requiring offenders to make restitution to their victims, some others said.

"Full employment," Murphy proposed.

But Jerry Wilson, District of Columbia police chief for five years and now a crime researcher and writer, offered the simplest proposal: "I have sort of a gut feeling that if less attention were paid to crime, we'd be better off."

But players' strike unlikely

Owner's offer rejected

By Associated Press

The first three National Football League teams to vote on management's latest contract offer have turned it down. The Philadelphia Eagles joined the Houston Oilers and Buffalo Bills today in taking the action.

And once again the threat of more player unrest looms ever larger in a contract dispute which has been going on for nearly 20 months. Despite the negative reaction to the offer, though, the chances of another players' strike appeared very slim.

The Eagles voted today 24-18 to reject the contract, but insisted the action was not a strike vote. On Wednesday, the Houston Oilers voted unanimously—by a 43-0 count—to reject the latest proposal by the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining arm. And the Buffalo Bills issued a 42-1 vote in opposition.

Thus, the count against the offer stood at 109-19 to reject.

The offer submitted last Monday in a meeting in Chicago between the NFLMC and NFL Players Association was termed by the owners "our best shot." But the NFLPA simply passed it on to its union members without a recommendation—and there were reliable reports that Kermit Alexander, president of the union, and the rest of the NFLPA leaders were almost wholly against it.

The union leaders had said Tuesday, when the talks broke off, that the teams would probably start voting today.

But the Oilers and Bills, clubs which refused to join last week's five-team walkout triggered by the New Englans Patriots, got the jump on the other 24 teams—and it appeared they were setting the tone for the voting.

Spokesmen for several other teams expressed their opinions that, when their ballots were counted today, the votes against the owners' offer would be similarly overwhelming.

"I feel certain it will be rejected because it was not recommended by the union," said Atlanta Falcons' player representative John Zook. But when asked if the Falcons would strike, Zook replied: "I would doubt that."

Brig Owens, the Washington Redskins' player rep, predicted firmly: "It's going to be a cut-and-dried against." But he said nothing about the possibility of a Washington walkout.

Tom Banks, player rep of the St. Louis Cardinals, said he expected a negative vote because "we were disappointed that they (the owners) didn't come in prepared to do any negotiating.

"They didn't come in prepared for any give-and-take on any given subject," Banks said. "Before, they had stated to the Patriots they were going to come into Chicago and have up to three days negotiating."

Player rep Skip Butler said that, despite Houston's blanket rejection of the management offer, the Oilers would still play their home opener against San Diego on Sunday.

"We understood when we went up there (to Chicago) that we had three days to negotiate and then take a vote," Butler said. "But when we got there, this supposedly was their best shot—their final, final, final offer. It amounted to take it or leave it."

Buffalo player rep Reggie McKenzie said simply that the Bills "rejected the contract, but we have no plans to strike at all."

That vote followed presentations by center Mike Montler and team owner Ralph C. Wilson Jr. One Buffalo player said Montler went to negotiations in Chicago "as anti-union and promanagement. But on the basis of what he heard there, he really did a 180-degree turn."

Although there are nearly 1,200 active players in the league, the only ones voting will be the members of the union, the 950 or so who have paid their dues or pledged to do so. The verdict will be determined by a simple majority.

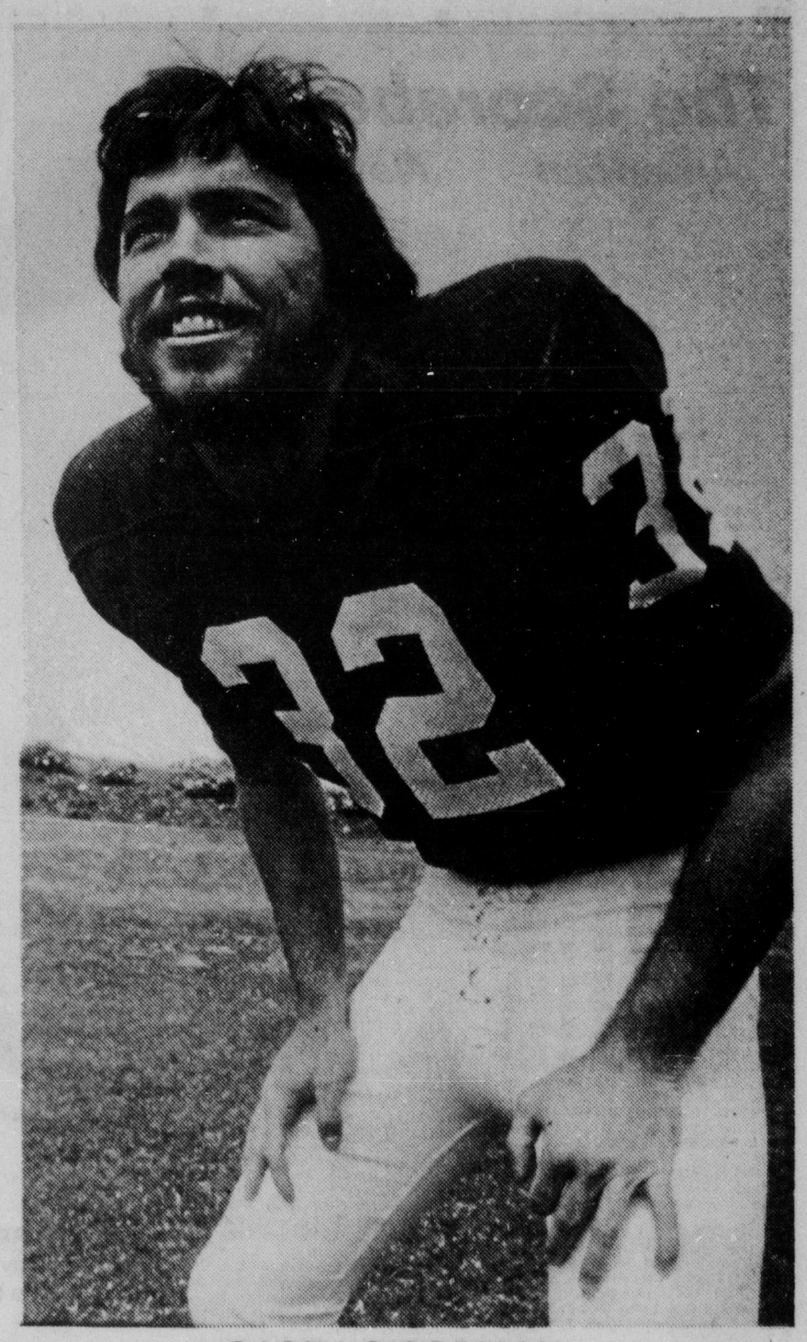

And if that verdict is to reject—as it appears almost certain—the next step will be up to the players. They'll have to decide whether to strike for a third time in 14 months, try to negotiate again or continue to play without a contract as they've done since Feb. 1, 1974.

Ed Garvey, the executive director of the union, has indicated Monday's four-year offer would have been acceptable based on the main economic items such as insurance benefits and pensions. The players' pension fund, by the way, is in danger of going broke if a new contract isn't signed this year.

But it was seven so-called non-economic items which continued the stalemate. They are the Rozelle Rule, impartial arbitration of grievances, representation on the retirement board, squad size, an agency shop, preseason pay and bargaining changes in the league's constitution and by-laws.

If more negotiations are held, it has been learned that management would begin talking with an offer not as good as the one now being voted on.

CASEY O'GORMAN

Fifth A.L. West crown for A's

By The Associated Press

The Oakland A's clinched their fifth straight American League West title Wednesday night, routing the Chicago White Sox 13-2 behind Reggie Jackson's two home runs.

By snapping a three-game losing streak, baseball's three-time world champions eliminated Kansas City, second by five games in the West with four games remaining. The Royals beat Minnesota 4-2 earlier Wednesday night.

In a National League game, the Chicago Cubs were held hitless by Tom Seaver for 8 2-3 innings before rookie Joe Wallis singled, then the Cubs beat the New York Mets 1-0 in 11 innings on reliever Skip Lockwood's bases-loaded walk.

In the rest of the AL, Baltimore belted Detroit 8-1 and Milwaukee ripped Cleveland 10-3. In other NL games, Los Angeles shelled San Diego 14-0, Philadelphia routed Pittsburgh 8-1, Cincinnati topped Houston 6-4, Montreal beat St. Louis 6-2 and Atlanta defeated San Francisco 7-6.

Jackson raised his home run total to 34, tying him with Milwaukee's George Scott for the AL lead, by hitting a two-run shot in the first inning and adding a bases-empty homer in the third. Vida Blue coasted to his 21st victory behind the 13-hit attack. Claudell Washington had a two-run triple and Sal Bando contributed a two-run single.

Paul Blair drove in three runs and Lee May added two RBI to help Jim Palmer notch his 22nd victory as the Orioles moved within 3½ games of first-place Boston in the AL East. Boston was rained out of its twi-night twinbill in New York and the Red Sox' magic number for clinching the AL East title remained at four.

After Wallis' single, Seaver, who twice has come within two outs of a no-hitter, retired the side to complete his fifth one-hitter through nine innings, then gave up two hits in the 10th before being lifted for a pinch-hitter. In the 11th, Lockwood gave up a leadoff single to Monday and walked Wallis. Jose Cardenal sacrificed, then Andy Thornton was intentionally walked before Bill Madlock drew the game-winning walk.

George Brett's tie-breaking single in the eighth inning enabled Kansas City to beat Minnesota. Scott drove in four runs with a double and his 34th homer to power the Brewers past the Indians.

Larry Parrish's homer and Don Carrithers' nine-hitter led Montreal past the Cardinals. Dusty Baker singled in the tying run and scored the winner on a bases-loaded walk in the 11th inning to give the Braves their victory over San Francisco. The second game of the twinbill was rained out and cancelled.

O'Gorman has high goals

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

"Senioritis" is something that never seems to affect football players at La Verne College.

Latest example of this is cornerback Casey O'Gorman. O'Gorman, a three year starter from Pomona High, was credited with 13 tackles and four assists in the Leopards' opener last Saturday.

"I have a goal," the 5-10, 175-pound senior admitted. "I'm trying to make more interceptions and as many tackles as I had last year."

In 1974 O'Gorman was credited with 156 tackles and five interceptions in the Leos' 5-5 season. But Casey is still trying to figure out what happened.

"In my sophomore year, I made 90 tackles and had one interception and made first-team All District," he grinned. "So I wanted to break 100 my junior year. I got 156 tackles and five interceptions, made All-SCIAC first team but was DROPPED to second team on the All-District selections."

O'Gorman, a P.E. and Social Science major, is enthused about the 1975 Leos.

"I think offensively we are stronger than any year since I've been here," he said. "Defensively, we're not quite as strong as in the past right now because of losing people through graduation.

"But we've got the players and after one or two more games, I think we'll jell. I think we have the best chance to win the conference title since I've been here. We don't open conference play until Oct. 25 and we'll be at our peak by then."

When he finishes college, O'Gorman wants to teach and coach and eventually get into administration.

"I work two days a week (eight hours a day) as a proctor at Charter Oak High," he said. "I hope through athletics I can get into coaching and through coaching get on as a substitute teacher in this district and work up to vice principal or something like that."

O'Gorman, whose family owns horses, likes riding, snow skiing and most outdoor activities. The last two summers he played Civic League softball in Pomona.

His team, the "Rookies," won their "C" League title with a 15-0 record this summer. Casey played first base and led the team in hitting with a .600 average.

"I played Colt League baseball as a kid," he said, "but I never went out for any varsity sport but football in high school. We had spring football practice and that was at the same time as the baseball and track seasons. I did play a couple games of soccer when they needed someone to fill in."

Asked about playing football at La Verne where the philosophy on football is different than at most schools, O'Gorman reminded the writer that he plays defense.

"With Ben (Hines) as defensive coach, we work a little harder and there's a little more discipline than there is on offense," he said. "But we still have fun and we get a lot accomplished.

"This year the offense is working harder and is getting more discipline because they have another coach, Joe Davalos, who is a La Verne grad and an ex lineman. He's helped the line a lot and I think the work of the offensive line is our big improvement."

Discipline is something Casey imposes on himself. Wednesday was Beach Day at La Verne and the whole school including the football team usually takes part.

But it was O'Gorman's day to work as a proctor at Charter Oak. He missed the trip to the beach but was at La Verne for football practice.

That's discipline.

Garvey goes for long ball

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Los Angeles first baseman Steve Garvey says he is going for the long ball even though he leads Pete Rose and Dave Cash, 207 to 205, in their three-cornered battle for the most hits in the National League this season.

"A couple of days ago, after I got my 200th hit, I decided to try and hit some more home runs," Garvey said Wednesday night after he drove in six runs with two homers, a single and double in the 14-0 rout of the Padres.

The homers were his 16th and 17th and raised his RBI total to 93.

"Still, the hit race is important to me for the simple reason that the leader shows that consistency pays off. I'm in a race with two great competitors (Rose and Cash)—two people I admire offensively and defensively.

"I haven't gone for home runs this year," added last year's most valuable player in the NL, "because I've concentrated on getting on base for the people hitting behind me."

Third baseman Ron Cey, who bats behind Garvey, raised his RBI total to 101 Wednesday night when he hit a two-run homer, his 25th of the year. That's a Dodger record for a third baseman.

Lee Lacy, who had four hits, and Jim Wynn also knocked in two runs apiece to spearhead an 18-hit Los Angeles attack that enabled Dodger lefthander Doug Rau to breeze to his 15th victory in 24 decisions.

"I really was concentrating on winning No. 15," said Rau, who hurled a six-hitter, "and I was going for a shutout, even with the big lead I had."

The Dodger hit and run totals off Rich Folkers, 6-11, Jerry Johnson, Butch Metzger, Dave Tomlin and Joe McIntosh were both season highs. By salvaging the finale of this series, the Dodgers finished with an 11-7 edge over San Diego for the year.

However, the Padres are three games ahead of fifth-place Atlanta as they prepare for their final four games, all here against San Francisco.

Bill Greif, 4-6, is to work tonight's series opener against Giants lefthander Pete Falcone, 12-11.

The Dodgers, idle tonight, will begin their final series Friday night at home against Houston as righthander Burt Hooton, (17-9), bids for his 12th straight victory.

Ryan calls season a frustrating time

HOUSTON (AP) — The average major league pitcher would consider a 14-12 record and pitching his fourth career no-hitter a satisfying season.

California Angels no-hit artist Nolan Ryan considered it frustrating because of painful bone chips in his elbow that caused his season to end prematurely on the operating table.

"It was the most frustrating season in my career because I got off to such a good start," said Ryan, who is recovering at a hospital here from surgery to remove four bone chips.

"It got to the point that my arm wasn't coming back after four days rest," recalled the fireballer, who pitched his fourth career no-hitter on June 1 to equal the major league record held previously by Sandy Koufax.

"Then I started getting other injuries because I was favoring the arm," Ryan said. "All I knew was I couldn't continue pitching like I did this summer. It was only a matter of time before I would injure my shoulder or something else from favoring my arm."

Ryan's 1975 no-hitter against the Baltimore Orioles gave the Alvin, Tex. resident a 9-3 record. But the pain, which had been there from the first game, grew worse and Ryan won only five of his next 14 decisions before doctors decided on surgery.

Ryan's problems started in spring training with a pulled calf muscle that allowed him to pitch only 11 innings during spring training.

"It would bother me the next day (after pitching) and my arm would draw up some," said Ryan, who holds the major league one-season strikeout record of 383.

Gary Davis has big day

Gary Davis, a graduate of Pomona's Garey High, was selected the CCAA's Co-Offensive Player of the Week after rushing for 141 yards and three touchdowns for Cal Poly San Luis Obispo in the opening 35-29 loss at Boise State.

Davis, a senior, led the CCAA in rushing last year with 880 yards.

He shares offensive honors with Butch Johnson, UC Riverside flanker, who caught 12 passes for 247 yards in 31-22 loss to UC Davis. Johnson set UCR career record with 97 receptions.

Cal Poly Pomona's Jim Poettgen earned defensive honors for intercepting two passes — one for a touchdown — in the Broncos' 41-17 whippnig of Cal State Hayward.

ABA teams want to join NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Nets and Denver Nuggets, the most attractive teams in the American Basketball Association, applied today for admission to the more established National Basketball Association in moves that could seriously damage the ABA's future.

The Associated Press learned of the developments Wednesday, and the NBA and the Nets, in similarly worded statements, confirmed them in the morning.

"We have received applications from the Denver Nuggets and New York Nets for admission to the NBA," Commissioner Larry O'Brien said in a statement read to reporters.

'Our constitution specifically provides for an investigation by the commissioner and the submission of any other information the commissioner deems relevant.

"We intend to give these applications the serious consideration they deserve and we will proceed expeditiously with full cognizance of the ramifications involved, including applicable court orders."

Following the NBA announcement, Nets owner Roy Boe issued a prepared statement: "We have on Wednesday, Sept. 24th, delivered a letter to Commissioner O'Brien of the NBA requesting an application to join the NBA for the 1976-1977 season.

"We expect our application to be processed expeditiously by the NBA in accordance with its normal procedure and consistent with applicable federal court orders."

Both O'Brien and Boe then refused to answer any questions beyond what was in the prepared statements. The Nuggets scheduled a 1 p.m., EDT, press conference.

Sources high in both leagues said the NBA hierarchy has supported and helped formulate the moves which are designed to bring the Nets and Nuggets into the league as expansion franchises in 1976.

In another development, attorneys for the Nets and Nuggets met this morning with U.S. District Court Judge Robert L. Carter in New York. It was not known what transpired in that meeting, but Carter has made rulings which would block a merger of the two leagues and the two ABA clubs were anxious to claim their moves are expansion, not merger.

The moves, if successful, would strike a serious blow at the ABA when it is beginning to challenge the NBA on most fronts.

The scenario, which could result in the expansion of the 18-team NBA into four five-team divisions next year and move such players as Julius Erving, David Thompson and Marvin Webster into the league, began unfolding at least one month ago. As told by sources in both leagues, this is what happened:

—Boe and Scheer, wishing to reopen negotiations on a merger of the two leagues, approached the NBA about making an application for membership. Their intent at the time was to try to force a merger.

—They invited the ABA champion Kentucky Colonels to join them. Brown confirmed that and said he and his wife Ellie, who owns the club, declined.

—Boe and Scheer were told by the NBA that a merger was not possible. At the same time, they were told it was entirely possible they could join the league, that, indeed, the NBA would like to have them.

—Then negotiations began on possible fees the two clubs would pay to join as expansion franchises. Denver and New York balked at paying the $6.15 million sum charged the last expansion club because most of that fee was to reimburse other clubs for supplying players. Denver and New York don't need players.

No agreement has been reached on a fee schedule, the sources said. Among the alternatives discussed, they said, were payments of $500,000 a year for several years by each club and-or agreement that the teams would not share in television revenue for several years.

Goodrich, Lakers far apart on contract

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More than $100,000 a year is separating veteran guard Gail Goodrich and the Los Angeles Lakers, the Los Angeles Times says.

Quoting an unnamed reliable source, the Times said in its Thursday editions that Laker owner Jack Kent Cooke has offered Goodrich a five-year contract for $1 million. But Goodrich, who reportedly received about $140,000 last year, wants the $1 million in a three-year pact.

That leaves a gap of about $133,000 a year.

Goodrich is not expected in camp as the Lakers begin training today. Another Laker guard, Pat Riley, is reportedly unsigned, as well.

Larry Fleisher, an attorney representing Goodrich, said, "We're not close to an agreement, but we're as close as a 30-second phone call."

Laker general manager Pete Newell said, "We are apart right now, but I'm hopeful Gail will be here very soon."

Although he said he did not want to become involved in contract disputes, Laker Coach Bill Sharman said, "I always remember that the only year we had everyone here from the beginning (1972), we won the championship."

With the addition of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who came to the Lakers in a trade from the Milwaukee Bucks, the Lakers have been mentioned as a prime contender for the National Basketball Association championship this year.

Public asked to workouts

ARCADIA — The public is invited to the free morning workouts at Santa Anita Park beginning Saturday, as the Thoroughbreds prepare for the upcoming Oak Tree racing season. Oak Tree opens one week later, Saturday, Oct. 4.

Highlighting the workout program is the free stable tour aboard open air trams hosted by former rider Ken Church. The tours run approximately every 20 minutes and are featured each weekend throughout the meeting.

Defensive tackle Wayne Baker of the San Francisco 49ers says he worked six summers as a lumberjack in Montana.

GETTING READY — MSAC water poloists Dave Correa and Dave Talley battle for the ball in a scrimmage in preparation for Mountie Invitational water polo tourney, Friday and Saturday at MSAC.

MSAC poloists host tourney

For the first time San Jose City College and UC Santa Barbara will travel to Walnut to compete in the Mountie Invitational Water Polo Championships, Friday and Saturday at Mt. San Antonio College.

Fullerton College will be defending the state title it has monopolized for the past two years.

San Jose, Golden West and Orange Coast were all in the top six places in the state championships last year. MSAC missed the 1974 state championship by an overtime loss to Golden West in the regionals, elevating the Rustlers to the state finals.

No. 1 seeded Fullerton will be looking to All-American Rheet Price and defensive men Joe Cote and Kevin Hopp to lead the Hornets. Coach Ernie Polte's team will be playing its season opener against Orange Coast's "B" team in the first game of the tournament Friday at noon.

MSAC is expected to field as strong a team as the college has ever had. All-American Chris Vargas and Phil Sanchez have looked sharp on offense and Dave Correa and Scott Trautz have been anchor men on defense. The 19-man team has been training twice a day since school opened.

San Jose City College mentor Bob Jones rates his team, which finished fourth in the state last year, as certainly as strong as Golden West and Orange Coast were last year.

Don Caskey, picked to the All-Tournament team at the state championships last December, will lead Tom Hermstad's Golden West team into the tournament.

Orange Coast has seven returning sophomores led by forward David Lund who scored 44 goals for the Pirates in 1974. Lund is supported by teammates Craig Farmer, Mike Bobrott, Steve Smith, Mike Mitchell and Mike Swenson.

Admission is $1 for adults, free for all children. The tournament starts promptly at noon Friday and runs continuously until 10 p.m. Saturday morning MSAC and San Jose meet at 8 a.m. with other games starting almost hourly until 7 p.m.

Punter won't go

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA's regular punter will not accompany the team to play Air Force this Saturday because of a new NCAA rule limiting the size of visiting teams to 48 men.

A team spokesman said Bruin Coach Dick Vermeil decided Wednesday that place kicker Brett White would also handle the punting, and punter John Sullivan will not make the trip.

The spokesman said defensive back Oscar Edwards would return to action in the Air Force game after missing last week's game because of a puled leg muscle. Also, Jack DeMartinis, a starting offensive tackle, is reported to be recovered from a pulled thigh muscle.

Pistons obtain Clark

DETROIT (AP) — Veteran guard Archie Clark, who has averaged 17.4 points per game in nine National Basketball Association seasons, has been acquired by the Detroit Pistons from the Seattle SuperSonics.

In return for the 6-foot-2 Clark, the Pistons gave the SuperSonics their No. 1 draft choice in 1978.

The Pistons are expected to officially announce the deal at a news conferece today.

Detroit will be Clark's fifth NBA team since graduating from the University of Minnesota in 1966. Previously, he played for Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Seattle.

His best season was 1971-72 when he averaged 25.2 points per game.

Hoople revamps forecast system

By MAJOR HOOPLE
Peerless Prognosticator

Jove, when that immortal bard Willie Shakespeare wrote about "the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" he must have had your humble football handicapper in mind!

Modesty dictates that I point out to you readers the fact that, har-rumph, the Hoople system did less than its usual outstanding best last week in predicting the local high school grid results. (Editor's note: What the old windbag is trying to say is that he tabbed only four high school games correctly out of the 17 played!)

However, never fear dear followers! I have revamped my prediction system for this week's picks, and can state unequivocally that I'm fully recovered from my opening week jitters. Here is how the Hoople system sees 'em:

Look for plenty of excitement once again on the high school scene, and some eye-opening upsets as well. For starters, look for the American Christian Minutemen to win their first game ever, downing Calvary Baptist 36-24. Paul Revere would have been proud of you, boys!

In contests involving the bigger schools, the Hoople magic foresees Damien, Chino, Montclair, Walnut and Ontario Christian continuing on the winning side of the ledger this weekend.

The spiffy Spartans will turn in their second straight shutout, this one a 17-0 blanking of Duarte. Chino's Cowboys will have it a little tougher, but figure to prevail over Sierra Vista 16-12. Also a narrow winner will be Montclair, a projected 21-19 winner over valley rival Ontario.

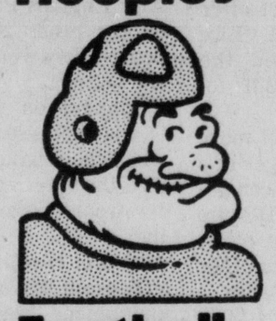

The Mustangs from out Walnut way look to get past Rowland 28-21 in another local war, while in yet another game pitting two area prep squads the Ontario Christian Knights will crown Webb School 14-13. Kaff-kaff!

However, feel sorry dear readers for Claremont, Ganesha, Pomona and Bonita. All four squads square off against top-flight competition this time around and figure to take it on the chin.

Moving along now to the colleges, our local lads should be in higher spirits than a leprechaun on St. Pat's day following Saturday's results.

Cal Poly, pointing towards its best year since my dear spouse Martha had her own teeth (I'll regret that in the morning!), will be on the winning track again, outscoring Northern Arizona in a wild and wooly 33-28 contest at Kellogg Field.

Major Hoople's

Football Forecast

Egad, Vinci's troops just might be for real!

Our Claremont-Mudd Stags also will provide plenty of action, as they figure to outscore St. Mary's 30-27. Only foreseeable loser among the six area colleges in action this weekend is Pomona-Pitzer. The Sagehens will cackle and crow enough to give USIU a fight of it, but in the end it will be visiting San Diego school egging them on 34-21. That prediction will ruffle a few feathers among P-P grid followers!

Our other four-year school, La Verne, should remain unbeaten as the Leos will stop the University of San Diego 36-18.

On the JC level, both Chaffey and MSAC should be able to hit the win column for the first time this season. The Hoople charts predict a 24-21 win for the Mounties over Golden West and a 27-21 victory for the Panthers over Imperial Valley.

Saturday is loaded with prime engagements starting with UCLA's invasion of Colorado to meet the Air Force Falcons. The Bruins aerial attack triggered by John Sciarra will shoot down the Falcons, 28-12. The North Carolina Tar Heels have the unenviable task of hosting the mighty Ohio State Buckeyes. The Hoople System gives the nod to Archie Griffin and Company by a 38-14 count.

We see another big day for John McKay's Trojans as they romp over Purdue, 42-21.

Diamond Bar team enjoys 10-0 victory

The Pacific Soccer League season began last weekend with two of the four valley teams recording wins.

In a Division IV match, the Diamond Bar Kickers shut out the Claremont Stars 10-0. Scoring for the Kickers were Paul Caligiuri (3), Michael Brocki (2), Jeff Hooker (2), Robert Beaird (1), Guy Pagan (1), and Jeff Ratajczak (1).

In Division III play the Claremont Stars defeated the Pomona Renegades, 8-1. Allen Pitts, Henry Gonzalez, and Chris Jollymour each scored twice for the Stars with the other two goals being scored by Teddy Swick and Jesse Albert. Andy Sorian scored the Renegade goal.

The Torrance South Bay Gunners defeated the Claremont Kings, 4-1, in a Division II match. Matt Smith scored the lone goal for the Kings.

This Saturday, the Kickers play the Torrance South Bay Arsenal at 12:30 p.m. and the Renegades play the Torrance Vikings at 2 p.m., both games at El Roble Intermediate School. Division III Claremont Stars play the Palos Verdes Rovers. Division IV Claremont Stars play the Torrance Vikings, and the Claremont Kings play Artesia in away games.

Meeting set for softball

The Claremont Parks and Recreation Department will hold an organizational meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the Memorial Park office for a men's slow-pitch softball league.

All entries will be accepted on a first-pay basis.

The fee is $60 a team, with a maximum of 12 teams.

The league season will start Oct. 4 and end Dec. 13, with Saturday games played at 11 a.m., 1 and 3 p.m. at Cahuilla Park.

The league will be called the Turkey League because teams finishing first in three divisions will receive turkeys as trophies.

The city will not sponsor a women's league because of lack of staff.

MSAC coach feels first win is near

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

Mt. San Antonio College is still looking for its first football victory after two outings into the 1975 season but head Coach Mal Eaton thinks this may be his team's week.

The Mounties make their home debut Saturday night against Golden West, a team which was highly touted in pre-season polls, but which has lost twice also.

Both the Mounties and the Rustlers have played two very good teams so it's probably too early to judge them harshly.

Eaton noted last week's improvement in a 28-6 loss at Pasadena City College in which MSAC gained 200 more yards in total offense than it was able to muster against Citrus in a 37-12 loss in the season opener.

Eaton, in his fifth season as head coach at the valley's largest community college, is taking every opportunity to give his players a chance to win a job and win some games.

Against Pasadena, Eaton stationed himself above the field in the pressbox, directing the action on the field with a set of head phones.

"The worst seat in the house is on the sidelines," Eaton pointed out early this week. "I wanted to get a better perspective on what we were doing. I was able to see things and call plays to correct them that I ordinarily wouldn't have seen first hand until the films."

What the coach saw was an inexperienced squad making a lot of mistakes, but not giving up, which was encouraging.

"I think things are beginning to fall into place. The kids are starting to get used to each other and used to college football. If we improve as much this week as we did last week, we're going to do something."

Eaton was pleased with the play of his three quarterbacks who were alternated on each play.

Flavio Garcia, a freshman from Rowland High, probably earned this week's start against Golden West with a 12 for 15 performance passing. He accumulated 156 yards with his tosses and has been the most productive thrower in two games with a .720 percentage (18 of 25) for 204 yards and one TD. Greg Gano of West Covina is not far off that pace with 10 of 17 completions for 91 yards. Steve Taylor who has been the starter in each game has completed 4 of 11 for 23 yards and one touchdown.

"We haven't given up on any of the quarterbacks yet," Eaton emphasized. "When we've had a breakdown offensively, it's usually been because of a missed blocking assignment, not the quarterback's fault."

Because the passing game has begun to work for the Mounties, they have an edge over Golden West, which has been vulnerable through the air. Last weekend in a 31-14 loss to Orange Coast, the Rustlers gave up 258 passing yards, including touchdowns of 67, 52 and 46 yards.

The Rustlers' first loss was to 1974 state JC champion East L.A., which had to struggle, 17-13.

While unbeaten Citrus takes a week off before meeting highly regarded Rio Hondo, Coach Willie Richardson and his Chaffey Panthers hope to regroup from last week's opener, a 51-8 walloping administered by Santa Barbara.

"We really didn't know much about them when we went in," said Richardson this week. "We know a little more about Imperial Valley. They took the measure of Grossmont in a scrimmage."

The Panthers face the desert team Saturday night at Chaffey Stadium in Alta Loma at 7:30 p.m.

Undeterred by the one-sided loss to Santa Barbara, Richardson sees hope for the Panthers.

"I still think we have a good football team," he says. "We had some good individual performances and I think we'll come around as a team."

Richardson made mention of quarterbacks Jamie Broecker and Bill Childress, wide receiver Greg Lester and running backs Marcus Jennings and Randy Campbell.

Pomonan likes chances at Poly

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Bobby Costeldia has great hopes of finally playing for a winner.

That is why the big (6-foot-6, 285 pounds) offensive tackle is delighted about Cal Poly's easy wins in the opening two games.

"I have never played on a winning team" Costeldia said Wednesday while awaiting evening practice at Poly. "This is a new experience for me. It really feels great to run over a team like we did against Chico."

The Garey High and Mt. San Antonio College product is looking forward to Saturday night's home game against Northern Arizona.

"This is a very important game for us," Costeldia explained. "We know Northern Arizona will give us more of a test. This game should serve as the key to our season. We have to go out and show them."

Like most of the Broncos, Costeldia has big goals.

"Our goal is to go all the way to the national championship," he exclaimed.

Costeldia says he enjoys football a lot more than his high school days at Garey.

"I've always been big," he explained. "I was never that outstanding in high school because the players were smaller and I couldn't move that well."

It looked like his football career was over after Garey. But after being on the sidelines for two years working, Costeldia decided to give football a try again and contacted MSAC Coach Mal Eaton.

"Eaton switched me to the offensive line," Costeldia said. "I got a little quicker and learned to like the sport even more. Eaton didn't make any promises to me but I was able to make it."

After a good season with the Mounties, the big tackle considered offers from Oregon State, Utah and Hawaii before deciding to stay home at Poly.

"Coach Andy Vinci encouraged me to go to Poly," Costeldia explained. "He convinced me it would be to my advantage later to stay home."

Costeldia arrived last spring at Poly weighing 330 pounds but he is now down to 285.

"Bobby has really worked on getting in shape," offensive line coach Tom Hoffman says. "He has worked on his flexibility and is a definite pro prospect if he keeps improving. He can really move now and makes our offensive line go."

Costeldia is majoring in physical education and enjoyed his summer work as a counselor at Boys Republic.

"I enjoyed working with the kids," he said. "They need help."

Playing for a winning team plus being away from it for two years, Costeldia loves football. "It has helped me a lot of ways," he said. "It has made me more of a man."

BRONC BUSTERS — Northern Arizona comes to Pomona with an 1-1 record. The Lumberjacks defeated defending CCAA champion UC Riverside, 34-30, and lost to Idaho, 22-12.

NAU, a member of the Big Sky Conference, is Division II in football but Division I in basketball. The university, located in mountain country at Flagstaff, is building a domed stadium for football, basketball, hockey, track and other activities.

Cornerback Jim Poettgen was named the CCAA Defensive Player of the Week for his two interceptions in the 41-17 win over Cal State Hayward. He returned the first one 28 yards for a touchdown.

Vinci is hoping the Broncos will start getting some national recognition. He is basing his hopes on comparative scores with Boise State, which is rated third in this week's AP small college poll. Boise beat Hayward, 42-20, the week before.

The Broncos are well ahead in total offense in the first CCAA statistics with 494.5 yards per game and rate second behind Northridge on defense.

Vinci felt the kicking game was much better against Hayward. Punter Kim Crockett, a product of Pasadena City College, averaged 41.4 yards a kick.

Kicking around

With Adrian Mercado & Willy Keo

"COOPERATION OR HAVOC . . . SOCCER OR SHAM?"

Last week we had lunch and a long talk with Kendall Webb of the CIF Administration at its Artesia headquarters. Kendall saw one of our articles concerning the application of the CIF rule restricting high school players from playing with an outside team during the high school season.

Our articles have appeared in the national weekly SOCCER AMERICA, the YOUTH SPORTS monthly and at various times in our KICKIN' AROUND column in the Pomona Progress Bulletin and the Ontario Daily Report, and on our soccer radio show over KSOM-FM.

Kendall's invitation was the first notice we had that CIF was aware of our efforts to get into this problem.

The CIF rule says no CIF player may play with an outside team during the high school season . . . in the same sport. In other words, a soccer player may not play soccer with an outside team at the same time he is playing with a CIF team.

Organizations like the California Youth Soccer Assn. South, the Pacific Soccer League and the vast AYSO offer playing opportunity to well over 150,000 kids from 7 to 19 years in this game supposedly alien-to-the-American sports scene . . . plus a multitude of ethnic leagues operating all over Southern California.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE SOCCER PLAYER occurs in the early years as he progresses thru the age divisions. Suddenly around age 15 the soccer player is told he can no longer play with his outside team if he wants to TRYOUT for his high school team. Only a percentage make the high school team due to the overbalance of youth players and the limited number of high school teams available.

Coaches in the Pomona Valley have already told their high school players they cannot play outside soccer starting Nov. 1st, altho the first league games don't get going till the first week of January. Players who don't make the high school team must give up their outside team while trying out.

This restriction decimates the top two divisions of AYSO, for example, which involves players of ages 15-16 and 17-18. One AYSO team lost 10 of its regulars to three different high schools last year. Spotting the problem in advance the Pomona AYSO Commissioner quickly obtained the use of a field with lights, and doubled the schedule of the divisions involved and its schedule was played in half the time by utilizing weeknights and Saturdays.

The residue of players from that division who did not try for or make the high school team were left idle from December on, defeating the purpose of the league . . . that of keeping the players busy . . . the essence of all youth programs.

THE SITUATION OCCURRED LAST SPRING wherein a youth team from Hamburg, Germany was touring the U.S. and requested a game vs the Pomona Valley players.

A group of AYSO players was selected but notice came quickly from the CIF office to coaches of high school teams in the area that none of their CIF players would be permitted to play on any allstar team until the school season was over. The CIF said no CIF player could play outside or allstar till after June 1st, the official end of the CIF season. The last game of the CIF season had been played two months earlier!

Conscientious CIF coaches dutifully pulled their players from the allstar team rather than risk ineligibility rulings against their schools. CIF seniors ignored the ruling and played the game.

It is our contention that the CIF ruling does not apply FAIRLY to soccer and its situation. Youth soccer commences in September and goes into March playoffs. The CIF soccer season is from January 1 thru February. Soccer people argue that soccer players need a much longer season than the high school period of play to teach ball control and the understanding of strategies in a floating game like soccer.

Organizers and coaches from Washington, Missouri and Virginia have offered to contribute money to assist in taking the situation to court, saying that no governing body should be able to tell its taxpayers what their sons and daughters can or cannot do after school hours or on weekends . . . this on the basis of violation of a civil right.

The youth league is agreeable to allowing its players to play with the high schools but the CIF wants to restrict the youth player from playing with his youth club. Any adult with a memory of childhood can recall the feeling of social status and herodom that comes with participating in high school athletics. We're for that, but our soccer players need far more soccer action than the high schools can provide. Yet the high school syndrome is the gateway to scholarships and we want our youth to play high school soccer. Is it asking too much to request they play with their own youth team on Saturdays?

The result of all this is that many players are playing outside incognito. Some in three or four different ethnic leagues, plus high school. Nothing is done unless an opposing coach submits a protest. The same coaches are continually violating the training rules by having their team out practicing earlier than the CIF rules allow. Will these same coaches have the gall to protest on ineligibility? It makes the outside team rule restriction appear as sham. What harm could come from allowing a player to play with whomever he cares to play . . . as long as there is not a direct conflict in gametime?

How can this be accomplished and who can do it? The key man is the high school principal who has voting power in CIF rule changes . . . not the coach, the athletic director, or player or parent . . . but the parent can sure put some pressure on the principal to look deeply into the "outside team" ruling in the CIF.

We know three individual parties who are prepared to sue CIF on the grounds of civil rights violation. There is an easier way. Get to your high school principal and tell

Claremont Sun wins Pop Warner game

In a key Pop Warner game last week in the Mt. Baldy Conference, the Claremont Sun blanked the Pomona Bruins, 18-0, at Pomona-Pitzer's Alumni Field.

Dan Sanders led the Sun to its Junior Midget Division victory by carrying the ball 17 times for 140 yards and one touchdown and catching two passes from Trak Sims for 25 yards.

Sanders was also outstanding on defense with 10 tackles and four sacks while teammate Duwan Franklin had seven tackles and three sacks. Buddy Matthews intercepted a Pomona pass for a touchdown.

Matthews also rushed for 100 yards on 10 carries while Gary Williams had 80 yards on 10 tries.

In a Pee Wee Division game, the Claremont Buccaneers also enjoyed a shutout in a 19-0 win over the San Bernardino Rebels.

The Bucs rolled up 223 total yards with Steve Perez (122, one TD), Brice Vaughn (68, one TD) and Paul Schlick (18, one TD) leading the way.

Outstanding defensive players were Perez (nine tackles), Ricky Hermosillo (seven), John Weimann (seven), Schlick (five) and James Perry (five).

The Pomona Bengals enjoyed a 28-0 shutout win over the Montclair Marauders in a Midget Division contest. Gary White led the defending Western Division champions by rushing for 189 yards and two touchdowns.

The defense scored a TD when tackle Robert Sabin ran 30 yards on a pass interception return. Rodney Dixon scored the final TD. Felix Jones and Ernie Gregorire scored a pair of extra points apiece.

In Pee Wee action, the Pomona Sharks defeated the Fontana Lions, 13-6, thanks to the blocking of the offensive line.

Marc Pruitt scored the first Sharks' TD on a 40-yard run while Kitrick Taylor passed to Brian Turner for the second score. Ricky McConnell scored the extra point on a pass from Taylor. Jerry Campbell led the ground attack with 107 yards on six carries.

The Pomona Razorbacks fell to the Ontario Bears, 19-6, in a Junior Pee Wee game. Roderick Carter scored the Razorbacks' TD on a 45-yard run. Lewis Raymond and Joseph Stein recovered fumbles.

Outlook up for WFL

NEW YORK (AP) — World Football League owners concluded a two-day meeting here Wednesday, and league President Chris Hemmeter said that "no problem exists as to our present 10 teams completing the 1975 season.

"Our meeting discussed future 1976 and 1977 franchising and merchandising. Certain irregularities of a minor nature were adjusted at this meeting."

The WFL presently is averaging just under 14,000 paid admissions per game, slightly under the break-even point required in the Hemmeter plan of league financing. At Shreveport, about 20 of the players are working on a new contract with a minimum per-game salary guarantees of $250 as opposed to the original guarantee of $500.

Hemmeter said the WFL has received four expansion applications for 1976 and 1977 and expects to make a siginificant announcement either later this week or early next week. At present, no definitive action has been taken on a prospective New York franchise.

Chargers sign Stein

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Veteran linebacker Bob Stein signed Wednesday with the San Diego Chargers, his third National Football League team since being drafted in the fifth round in 1969.

Stein, 6-foot-2, 235, played for the Kansas City Chiefs until they traded him with two future draft choices to Los Angeles in 1972 for running back Willie Ellison and quarterback Pete Beathard.

Stein was a victim of the Rams' final cut of the 1975 season.

A graduate of the University of Mississippi, Stein earned a law degree at Missouri. He signed as a free agent with the Chargers after showing up at practice.

U.S. earns two medals

ROME (AP) — Charles Foster won the 110-meter hurdles in 13.83 seconds and Jane Frederick took the pentathlon with 4,442 points, giving the United States its only two gold medals in the World University Track and Field Games which ended Sunday.

The Americans also picked up a silver medal when Kathy Schmidt finished second in the javelin with a toss of 198 feet.

Lavish spending by Jacqueline Onassis cited

CHICAGO — (BW) — A comprehensive analysis of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis' finances by MONEY Magazine in its october issue indicates that when her late husband's will goes into effect, she might be operating her household in the red.

The magazine estimates Mrs. Onassis' annual income will amount to about $34,000 next year, or a little less than $241,000 after taxes — some $40,000 short of keeping up with her current level of spending.

(The author of the article, Peter Bird Martin, said Mrs. Onassis' new job as a consulting editor for a book publisher, which was announced as MONEY went to press, "probably will not make up the anticipated shortfall between her income and outgo.")

The article also reveals the following:

—Money has learned from sources close to Aristotle Onassis' family in Athens that Mrs. Onassis now is negotiating with Onassis' executors for an additional $100,000 payment for not contesting the will. The Onassis will shows he "clearly expected that his wife might challenge the will, and several of its provisions are designed to fend her off," the magazine says, adding that the billionaire "made no provision for total defeat by Mrs. Onassis' lawyers.

—The luxurious yacht and island left to Jacqueline and Onassis' daughter, Christina, are an expensive, mixed blessing. Maintenance of the properties costs $500,000 and $100,000 a year, respectively. Moreover, they cannot be sold. If given up, the yacht must be donated to Greece for the chief of state's use, and the island must be offered to Greece as a resort for the chief of state or for Olympic Airlines employes.

—Mrs. Onassis will receive only $37,050 in tax exempt income from the trust of John F. Kennedy which now is valued at $570,000. These figures never before published, are based on the publicly disclosed value of the Kennedy estate — $1.8 million in 1965 — half bequeathed to Jacqueline and on representative portfolio performances since that time.

Working from public records and an analysis of investment performances, MONEY figures that Mrs. Onassis' 1976 gross income of $341,000 includes $100,000 from a tax exemp prenuptial trust (which reverts to the Onassis estate on Jacqueline's death), $100,000 of fully taxable income under the Onassis will, and a possible $100,000 from the Onassis estate for not challenging the will.

The remainder of her income is comrised of $37,050 from the Kennedy trust and a $4,160 in income from an inheritance left by her father, John Vernou Bouvier III.

Exceeding Mrs. Onassis' income by $40,000 is an outgo estimated to be $381,600. The major items are $100,200 for income taxes, $85,000 for staff and servants, $50,000 for home decoration and renovation and $30,000 each for clothes and the maintenance of her Fifth Avenue apartment.

Mrs. Onassis reportedly spent up to $120,000 a year on clothes when Onassis was alive, but has cut down lately. MONEY says its estimate of $30,000 for clothes could be "on the skimpy side."

The value of Mrs. Onassis' assets is put at $14.4 million. Her two largest assets are her jewelry, worth about $7 million and a 25 per cent share of the art and antique aboard the Onassis yacht that is worth about $6.25 million.

The will permits Mrs. Onassis, if her stepdaughter agrees, to sell some of the yacht's artworks, which include an el Greco painting, an ancient jeweled Buddha and priceless icons, worth at least $25 million.

At the invitation of MONEY, tax specialists and investment counselors examined Mrs. Onassis' finances and offered solutions that might help her make ends meet. To reduce her taxes, one expert suggests that the $100,000 she might get for not challenging the Onassis will could be produced by tax-exempt investments.

Instead of seeking tax shelters, it was thought that Mrs. Onassis should develop tax deductions, such as a gift of her jewelry to a museum with the stipulation that she be allowed to use the jewelry until she dies.

"Diamonds might be a girl's best friend, but she needs more money coming in than she seems to be getting right now," another expert said of Mrs. Onassis' "asset rich and cash poor" position.

He advises her to persuade Christina to divide up the artworks aboard the yacht as a "sweetener" to the agreement not to claim more of the inheritance. It also was pointed out that Mrs. Onassis could get nothing if she loses her lawsuit, while a possible $6.25 million in artworks awaits her in the future.

Mrs. Onassis could solve her problem simply by trimming her lavish spending, which reached about $450,000 a year while Onassis was alive. But if she cannot change her life style, MONEY'S advisers feel she could perhaps convert about $4 million of her jewelry and art to tax exempt investments and another $1 million to a diversified portfolio of growth stocks.

Sacramento rejects Warren's name on community center

SACRAMENTO (AP) — In a loud chorus, Sacramento voters say they don't want the late Earl Warren's name on their new Community Center.

With the votes from 215 of the 229 precincts in Tuesday, the count was 26,615 to 9,848 in favor of changing the name of the Sacramento Earl Warren Community Center to the Sacramento Community Center.

The center had been named by the city council.

Proponents of the measure contended the voters should be consulted before the name of a politician is placed on any municipal building.

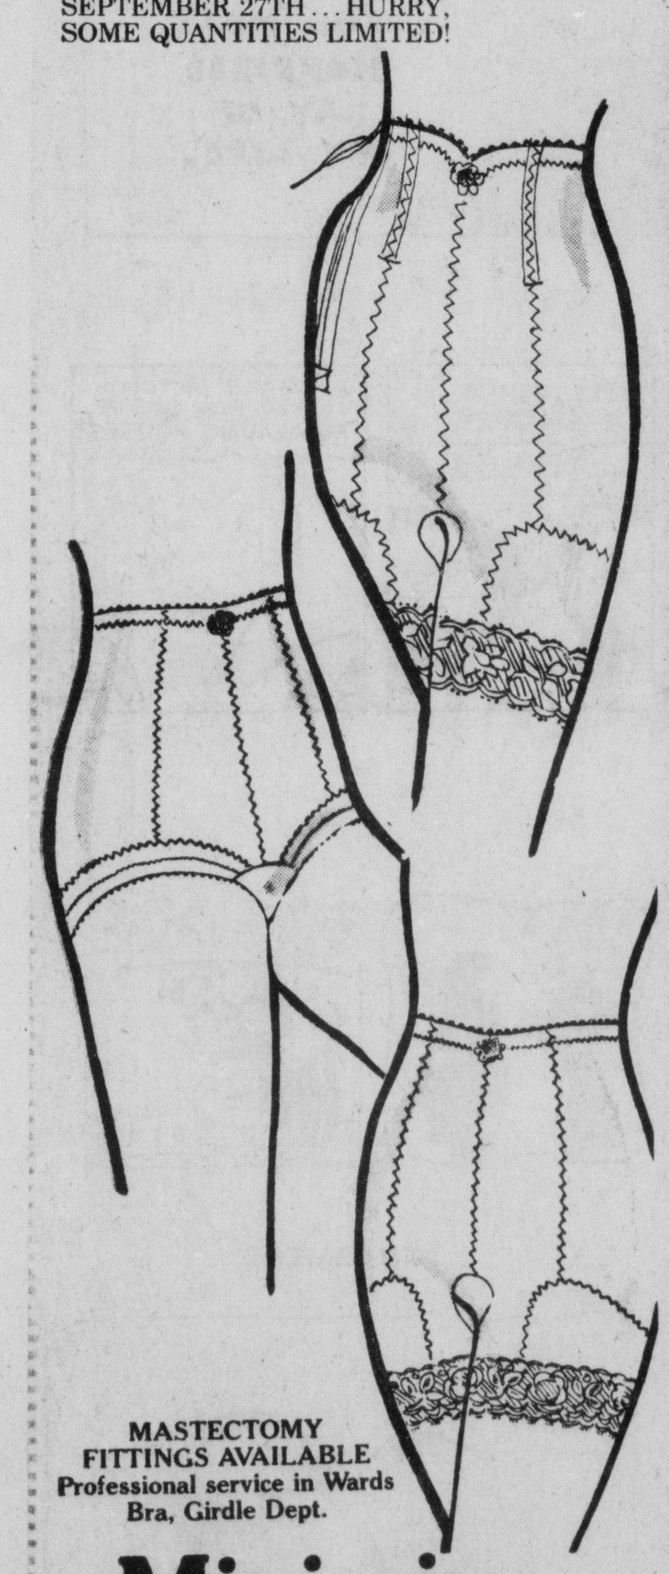

Opponents said Warren, a former governor of California, was responsible for preserving Sacramento as the state capital and was "Sacramento's most illustrious citizen."

Warren, a Republican, was also a U.S. Supreme Court justice.

If you own a pocket-size radio, you may know that it contains parts called transistors.

Transistors are electronic devices that do the work of electronic vacuum tubes in many radio and television sets.

One of the jobs a vacuum tube does in a radio and television set is to amplify, or strengthen, the weak electrical signals picked up by the antenna and change the current into one which can operate the loud speaker or picture tube.

Transistors also amplify electrical signals, but they use much less power than vacuum tubes and take up much less space.

Tiny transistors have made possible smaller television sets, computing machines and many other electronic devices that once depended on vacuum tubes.

Transistors are made in many shapes and sizes, but all consist of materials called semiconductors, such as germanium and silicon. These materials carry electrical current.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Ex-Pomonan returns, promoting Indian book

Henry E. Kirkpatrick, former Pomona piano teacher, returned to Pomona last week from his home in Montague to promote his book, "The Unquenchable Spirit of the Modok Indians."

Kirkpatrick taught piano in Pomona from 1945 to 1957. He still gives a few private lessons, marking his 66th year as a musical educator. He is the author of "Modern Musical Pedagogy" and numerous short stories and poems.

HENRY KIRKPATRICK

"The Unquenchable Spirit" is written in what Kirkpatrick calls "measured prose." He uses the pen name Vern L. Webster. The 104-page work was published by the Yreka Historic Preservation Committee.

The book traces the origin, struggles, triumphs and eventual downfall of the Modoks, a Northern California tribe. Kirkpatrick researched the work for 15 years. The Modok Indian War, 1872-73, was the only major Indian war fought in California. It ended when the tribe surrendered to the U.S. Calvary June 1, 1873. The California Legislature urged observance of the centennial of the war with a resolution in 1971.

Silent movie series put off

The silent film series at the Claremont Colleges has been postponed because of the ill health of professor emeritus of music William G. Blanchard, who accompanies the films on the organ.

The series may be resumed in the second semester of the school year, according to Jay Doty, director of auditorium events.

San Francisco enjoys a high credit rating

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — While New York City is having trouble getting anyone to spare it a dime, San Francisco — even with its $17,000-a-year streetsweepers — enjoys a high credit rating.

"The investor perception of San Francisco ranks probably higher than any other city in the United States," says Merrill Ring, vice president and securities analyst at the Bank of America.

The city can even get away with paying relatively high salaries to its streetsweepers and other employes without scaring off bankers fond of tight-fisted fiscal policies, says Ring.

"That has been taken by the financial community as a curiosity, not as a sin of irresponsibility," Ring says. "What might be viewed as a surrender if it took place in Philadelphia is regarded here as an accommodation."

San Francisco and five other cities have a triple-A rating from Moody's Financial Service. The others are Los Angeles, Houston, Dallas, Milwaukee and Indianapolis.

But a Wells Fargo Bank vice president, John P. Caulfield, cautions: "What we're really saying is that San Francisco is in no danger of falling into a gray area so long as it conducts its affairs as it has in the past."

Prospector broke, eyes new fortune

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)— Charlie Steen, who made and lost a multimillion-dollar Utah uranium fortune, says he's returned to his favorite pasttime—prospecting, primarily in California's Death Valley.

Twenty-three years ago, geologist Steen discovered one of the richest uranium mines in history in southeastern Utah, triggering a uranium boom and accumulating a $15 million fortune.

He says bad investments and tax problems dissolved his fortune. His former $400,000 mansion on a hill overlooking Moab, Utah, is being operated as a museum by one of his sons.

At the height of his wealth, Steen had a $1.9 million mansion in Reno, Nev.

He says he is now nearly broke and still has not settled with the Internal Revenue Service.

"I'm not bitter," Steen says.

RESOLUTION NO. 75-235

A RESOLUTION OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF POMONA, CALIFORNIA, DECLARING ITS INTENTION TO ADOPT AN ORDINANCE AMENDING ORDINANCES 2257 and 2557, WHICH GRANTED A FRANCHISE FOR NATION WIDE CABLEVISION, INC., FOR A CATV SYSTEM IN THE CITY OF POMONA AND SETTING A HEARING DATE THEREON.

SECTION 1. That the Council intends to make an amendment to its Ordinance 2257 and Ordinance 2557 which granted a CATV system franchise to Nation Wide Cablevision, Inc. Such amendment, if adopted, would establish a franchise fee rate of 3 per cent of gross annual receipts with no minimum franchise fee as of March 31, 1977; and which would postpone construction of a city wide cable television system until such time as the service would appear to be marketable in the City of Pomona; and which would delete the present requirement in the franchise that Nation Wide Cablevision, Inc. must install the city fire alarm system and water service telemetering system in the city, except for the Holt Avenue undergrounding district which is presently under construction; and which would reduce the performance bond to $10,000.

All persons interested in such matters may attend a Council meeting of the Pomona City Council on the 6th day of October, 1975, at 8:00 p.m. in the Pomona City Council Chambers, located at 505 S. Garey Avenue, Pomona, California.

SECTION 2. The City Clerk shall publish this resolution in a newspaper of general circulation in the City of Pomona not less than ten (10) days before the hearing referred to herein.

SECTION 3. The Clerk shall certify to the passage and adoption of this resolution, and it shall thereupon be in full force and effect.

Wounded inmates beaten, stabbed at Attica

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A National Guardsman has testified that guards and state troopers pulled wounded inmates from stretchers, then beat and stabbed them in the hours following the retaking of Attica Prison in 1971.

James O'Day, 28, now an Amherst high school biology teacher, then a stretcher-bearer, was the fifth witness Wednesday at a hearing ordered by State Supreme Court Justice Ann T. Mikoll.

The hearing is to determine if the state is engaging in selective prosecution of crimes committed during the four-day prison rebellion in which 43 men were killed.

O'Day cried Wednesday as he told of helping to carry a wounded black inmate from a prison hospital to his cell. The man had been shot.

A small white man wearing a green hunting jacket accosted the stretcher-bearers, he said.

"He picked up the end of the stretcher and he dumped the man off and he fell onto his shoulder and head and bounced off the floor," O'Day testified.

"Then the man came over, pulled out a screwdriver and said, 'If you don't get up....'"

"He stabbed him five or six times right in the buttocks."

O'Day said he told state investigators about this incident and others but was never called before a Wyoming County grand jury investigating the prison uprising. Thus far, 62 former inmates but no law enforcement officers have been indicted.

The hearing was requested by lawyers for Eric (Jomo) Thompson, who is accused of kidnaping and killing Kenneth Hess, another inmate, during the riot.

Thompson is asking Justice Mikoll to dismiss the case against him if she should find that selective prosecution was practiced.

Gov. Hugh L. Carey said Wednesday that amnesty may be the only way to give equal justice to those accused of committing crimes during the uprising because it has taken so long to prosecute the charges.

FIREMEN RESCUED

A helicopter comes to the aid of firemen momentarily trapped on a ridge in Glendale where a fire burned brush-covered hillside and caused damage to six houses. The helicopter also dumps a chemical on the flames. Brush fires in the Southland, fed by dry temperatures and strong Santa Ana winds have burned 50,000 acres. See story on page 2.

Pomona killing is linked with earlier knifing

Bloody footprints of slayer?

The murder late Tuesday morning of Mrs. Myrna Van Klaveren in the office of a Pomona optometrist where she worked has been linked to the apparent attempt Friday to kill a young woman outside the restroom of a nearby savings and loan association building, police said today.

Meanwhile, they reported, there have been no arrests made despite an intensive investigation of the fatal stabbing of Mrs. Van Klaveren, 36, in the office of Dr. Milton Penner at 240 S. Main St. Mrs. Van Klaveren, secretary-receptionist there, was working alone Tuesday when she was slain.

Police also said they have obtained several bloody footprints, believed those of the killer, from the carpeting inside the optometrist's office. The prints were raised through a chemical process.

The knife attack on Mrs. Van Klaveren resembled the attack Friday on Mrs. Deborah Ann Lantz, 21, who was stabbed just above her throat by a man outside the lavatory in the Pomona First Federal Building at 256 S. Garey Ave. That building is two blocks from Dr. Penner's office.

Mrs. Lantz said the man grabbed her, threw her to the ground and said nothing before stabbing her. She began screaming and her screams apparently routed her attacker. She was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where she was released after treatment.

A Pomona Police Department artist is preparing a sketch of the man who attacked Mrs. Lantz, based on details given by her and by a Pomona man who reported seeing a man of a similar description loitering near Dr. Penner's small office shortly before Mrs. Van Klaveren was killed. Mrs. Lantz described her attacker as a Negro about 6 feet and 170 pounds.

Mrs. Van Klaveren was found lying dead on the office floor at noon Tuesday by a patient of the optometrist. She had suffered multiple stab wounds.

The victim, who had daughters 11, 13 and 15 years old, was the wife of a Chino dairyman.

ARRIVE IN L.A.

Emily Harris, top, smiles as she is escorted into Los Angeles County Jail today. At bottom, husband William, enters jail for meeting with attorneys prior to arraignment.

Report tells of SLA diary

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A handwritten diary detailing the day-to-day activities of the Symbionese Liberation Army was found by the FBI in the apartment occupied by William and Emily Harris, the San Francisco Chronicle said today.

An FBI spokesman said he could not confirm the newspaper account, which said the diary described the actions of the SLA in dodging law enforcement officers.

The diary reportedly refers to the Hibernia Bank robbery in which newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst was photographed holding a rifle and to a scuffle outside an Inglewood sporting goods store in which Harris narrowly escaped capture.

The Chronicle said the source of the story, who was not named, had refused to say whether the diary described the Feb. 4, 1974, kidnaping of Miss Hearst.

The Chronicle reported that its source said the diary contains many details about the incident at the Inglewood store in which witnesses reported that Harris escaped under the cover of shots fired by Miss Hearst from across the street.

The Chronicle also reported that it had learned from a Hall of Justice source that the FBI will check out slugs and shell casings from the 9mm pistol that killed prison reformer Wilbert "Popeye" Jackson against two 9mm guns seized after the arrests of Miss Hearst and the Harrises.

One of the pistols reportedly was found in the apartment occupied by Miss Hearst and Wendy Yoshimura.

Shot at Ford was a protest against system—Mrs. Moore

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The woman accused of firing a shot at President Ford earlier this week says she did it as "a kind of ultimate protest against the system."

From her San Francisco jail cell Wednesday, Sara Jane Moore tried to explain her actions in a two-hour interview with Los Angeles Times reporter Ellen Hume. It was Mrs. Moore's first press interview since she was jailed following Monday's shooting incident.

"I did not want to kill somebody," the 45-year-old divorcee said, "but there comes a point when the only way you can make a statement is to pick up a gun."

She also alluded to her need to prove herself to radical comrades in the Bay Area, who shunned her when they discovered she was an informant for the FBI.

Mrs. Moore said her reasons for the attempted assassination were "complicated."

She wanted to "do something to break off with (my) insidious relationship with the FBI," she said.

Although her public defender advised her against it, Mrs. Moore summoned Ms. Hume, saying she wanted the reporter to help her draft a statement outlining her political motives for the shooting. The reporter has interviewed Mrs. Moore many times over the past six months in connection with a series on the radical movement.

Ms. Hume, who prefers the feminist designation, said in the previous interviews that Mrs. Moore spoke frequently of her feeling of isolation. She was rejected as a security risk by radicals she sought to befriend and regarded as "flaky" by news people she said could interview her.

". . . all the avenues of taking action were being closed, one at a time," she said Wednesday night. "The FBI has thrown me out the window and to the dogs."

She said the capture of Patty Hearst "made a tremendous impact on me."

Miss Moore said she was hopeful her dramatic gesture would "forge some kind of unity between the rage that led to the formation of the SLA combined with the theoreticians."

Yet she also said she expected to be caught and was glad no one was hurt.

"I did want to be prevented," she said. "I don't like to kill people."

She repeated her earlier statement that she couldn't believe it was so easy to take a shot at the President.

It was "like target practice," she said. "The security was so stupid ... it was like an invitation."

She said she was not influenced by the attempt on Ford's life made 17 days before her own by Manson follower Lynette Fromme, whom she called "insane."

Of herself, the nightgown-clad defendant said: "I am not a berserk woman," adding that she expects "to go to prison for a long time."

Still no thanks from President

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Oliver "Bill" Sipple, the 32-year-old ex-Marine who deflected a gun as a woman fired a shot at President Ford last Monday, says he hasn't had a word of thanks from the White House.

"Nobody's said nothing to me about it, nothing," he said Wednesday at the Tenderloin district apartment he shares with a merchant seaman. "I haven't heard anything from the White House."

"But he's a very busy man, too," he said of President Ford.

A White House spokesman said in Washington that he did not know whether Sipple had been contacted by the President.

Patty no longer 'urban guerrilla'

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Patricia Hearst is no longer listed as an "urban guerrilla" on a jail booking slip.

San Mateo County Sheriff John McDonald said Wednesday that Miss Hearst had conferred with her attorneys and now lists herself as "not employed."

Miss Hearst had described herself as an "urban guerrilla" when she was booked into the jail after her capture. Her attorney said later she picked that designation because she felt pressured and couldn't think of anything else.

Continued hot and dry today, slightly cooler Friday. High today 101, low tonight 63, high Friday 97. The high Wednesday was 102 and the overnight low was 65. Friday's sunrise 6:42, sunset 6:43.

Stubborn heat wave hangs on: cooling due

A stubborn heat wave, the hottest and longest of the year, was expected to push temperatures past 100 degrees once more today. Once more the weatherman is predicting a cooling trend for tomorrow.

The heat wave began Monday with a high of 103 and has remained near that level for the past three days, recording mercury readings of up to 105 in the valley.

Highs at weather stations Wednesday were 102 in Pomona, 103 in Ontario and 100 in Walnut, with lows in the mid 60s.

Although most of the fires which erupted in the Southland Monday were under control, firemen warned once more of highly dangerous conditions, particularly in the mountains.

The weatherman said the heat wave was prolonged by Santa Ana conditions, with hot winds blowing seaward from the inland deserts. The winds also heated up the coastal regions with Long Beach recording a high of 105, a record for September, and the Los Angeles Airport area chalking up a 102.

Friday's forecast calls for a high of 97, and an overnight low of 63, with very low humidity readings.

Dollar rises in Europe

LONDON (AP) — Pushed upward by America's recovering economy, the U.S. dollar surged to new highs for the year on European foreign exchanges today.

"Everyone's jumping on the dollar bandwagon," a London dealer reported amid heavy buying of the U.S. currency.

The ailing pound sterling plunged to an all-time low, and gold hit a 20-month low in London.

The pound dropped to $2.0565 by midmorning after closing Monday at $2.0708.

The dollar bought 4.5897 French francs in Paris, its highest mark since Dec. 13; 2.6785 marks in Frankfurt, the highest level there since last September, and 690 lire in Milan, the best price this year.

Closing prices Monday had been 4.5555 francs, 2.6588 marks and 684.90 lire.

Harrises booked in L.A. on 18 counts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Symbionese Liberation Army members Bill and Emily Harris were booked here early today on 18 state felony counts after a secrecy-shrouded flight by commercial jet from San Francisco.

The transfer was made under strict security, with officials mute as to travel and arrival plans in an effort to avoid incidents, police said.

The 18 felony counts against the Harrises, traveling companions of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, include assault with intent to murder, armed robbery, kidnaping and auto theft. Federal firearms violation charges against the two were dropped to clear the way for prompt state prosecution. Bail was set at $500,000 each.

The Harrises were to be turned over to the Sheriff's Department and arraigned today on charges stemming from a shootout involving three suspects at a suburban Inglewood sporting goods store May 16, 1974, and the alleged escapades of the trio — including Miss Hearst — in the hours after the incident.

Miss Hearst faces 19 charges in connection with the spree, but it is not known yet if she will be transferred to Los Angeles to face trial. She is undergoing psychiatric tests in the San Mateo County jail in Redwood City.

The Harrises, accompanied by four officers, took a regularly scheduled Western Air Lines jet from San Francisco to Los Angeles late Wednesday night. Other passengers were either unaware of their presence, or showed no notice of it, an airline spokeswoman said.

Layoffs continue in key industries

By G. G. LaBELLE
Associated Press Writer

Layoffs are continuing in many major industries despite a slight easing of unemployment. Numerous workers who lost jobs remain without work and their prospects of being rehired are questionable.

An Associated Press check of major industries shows some — notably steel, aerospace and, in some cases, construction — are still dropping employes. Many other employers remain uneasy enough about the economy to not rehire all workers and some apparently have no plans to return to the peak employment of before the recession.

"The ball may have bounced back a little bit, but it didn't bounce very high," was the way Warren Smith, an Ohio ALF-CIO official, characterized the situation.

Government employment experts had expected employment to lag behind economic recovery because employers tend to cancel abbreviated work weeks and even pay overtime before rehiring or hiring new workers.

The latest Labor Department unemployment figure was 8.4 per cent in August, down from the peak of 9.2 per cent last May. The work week averaged 39.8 hours in August, up an hour from last spring.

Of those industries rehiring, the auto industry seemed typical. It hit its nadir last March, with 213,000 of its 712,000 workers on indefinite layoff. Now, 81,000 remain indefinitely laid off, with the number expected to decrease to 77,000 by the end of the September.

The same pattern was seen in the textile industry. In South Carolina, a major textile area, a spokesman for the state Textile Manufacturers Association said that last month 159,000 persons were employed in textile mills and related synthetic fiber plants, down from the low point of 144,000 last March.

However, that was still well below the peak employment of 180,000 in June 1974.

And a spokesman for the Celanese Fiber Co. in Rome, Ga., which has cut layoffs from 700 to 450 since March, was not optimistic about the prospects of laid-off workers.

"We've done most of the rehiring we plan to do, within a small percentage," he said.

Another example is the appliance industry. At General Electric's Appliance Park complex near Louisville, Ky., a spokesman says 5,400 of 24,000 workers were laid off between September 1974 and last May. Two thousand have been rehired, he said.

What happens to those workers not rehired? Again, the auto industry may be an example.

Layoffs in the industry began earlier than in other fields because car makers were stung by the 1973 Arab oil embargo before other manufacturers began to suffer under recession. That means the 712,000 figure used as the base during the recent layoffs was already down from the 803,000 hourly workers employed before the embargo.

Of the nearly 100,000 workers not rehired, many on layoff for more than a year were dropped from employment lists because they were no longer eligible for rehiring under union contracts. Others were recalled but never appeared because they'd gotten other jobs.

One California auto worker, Louise Betts, was skeptical about how many in the auto industry had found other work.

"Everyone has it bad," she said. "It's almost impossible to find a job anywhere. I'm just glad I have GM to go back to."

Mrs. Betts, who has received most of her salary since her layoff last December in unemployment and supplemental benefits, says she expects to be rehired in January.

A United Steel Workers official in Utah says much the same thing when asked about workers who leave the industry.

"Some have found jobs in construction, though that's been badly hit too," he said. "Some are working in service stations and driving cabs, but the bulk of them still are getting unemployment compensation and supplemental unemployment."

Over-all, the number of employes in the steel industry is still dropping. The American Iron and Steel Institute says 447,500 workers were employed in steel mills in August, the latest month for which it has figures. That was down from a peak of 524,000 in July 1974.

However, a spokesman noted that the 4,400 drop in employment from this July to this August was the lowest drop this year, and others noted that production is now increasing because a price hike has been announced for October. Where that will leave production — and employment — after October remains to be seen.

Employment is also still falling in the aerospace industry. A spokesman for Boeing Aerospace Co. says the company now has 48,300 workers, down from 54,700 last January. The company had predicted it would lay off from 2,000 to 8,000 this year, and the spokesman says:

"Our assumption now is that we will hit the 8,000 level by the end of the year."

Parts of the construction industry provide another example of still slipping employment. In Florida, with a big construction industry because of its population growth, state figures show 263,000 workers employed in August 1974, compared to 175,700 in August.

However, the drop of 2,100 from July to August was the smallest since the slide began, a state spokesman noted Florida's economy lags about six months behind the nation as a whole, and a spokesman for Florida builders had an optimistic forecase also.

"It's starting back up," said Tom Becker of the Florida Homebuilders Association. "We can look back and cry a little bit, but look forward with a little bit of a smile on our faces."

Generally, spokesman in most industries were optimistic about the economic and employment outlook. But Newton A. Brockaw of the Columbus, Ohio, Industrial League saw one possibility that could cut short any improvement in the economy: a fuel shortage this winter.

"That's when we get hell kicked out of us," he said.

'Gentleman farmer' tax loophole closed by law

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The "gentleman farmer" tax break that enabled former Gov. Ronald Reagan to legally avoid state income taxes in 1970 will end Jan. 1 under a bill signed into law.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. signed the measure Wednesday. It had been introduced by Assemblyman Dan Boatwright, D-Concord.

The new law will eliminate $25 million in tax deductions claimed by 6,000 wealthy Californians.

The old law allowed nonfarmers to invest in farming and deduct their losses from other income.

Boatwright's measure also increases minimum taxes for preferential income such as stock options, capital gains and accelerated depreciation.

The author said more than 70 per cent of the taxpayers affected by the bill earn between $50,000 and $500,000 a year.

In his signing statement, Brown said the bill completes the promise in his inaugural address to "end special tax privileges of the few."

He said other loophole closers included a bill ending most of the state's oil depletion allowance, and two measures on next June's ballot. One of those would eliminate the $23-million home office tax deduction for insurance companies. The other would allow business taxes to be raised by a simple majority of the legislature rather than two-thirds majority.

The Democratic governor also signed a bill Wednesday requiring parental consent before a school can take a paddle to a student.

Introduced by Assemblywoman Leona Egeland, D-San Jose, the bill requires schools to send a consent form home at the start of the year. A student whose parent does not return the form may not be paddled.

Brown signed a measure by Assemblyman Art Torres, D-Los Angeles, allowing police to arrest men as prostitutes. Current law applies only to women.

But Brown vetoed a measure by Assemblyman Bill Lockyer, D-San Leandro, which would have required legislative confirmation of a governor's appointment to fill a vacancy in the office of lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer, controller or attorney general.

Said Brown: "The present method of filling vacancies for constitutional officers has worked well for over a century. Why change it now?"

Brown also:

—Approved an addition of $1.9 million to the Educational Opportunities Program for low-income students and the University of California and community colleges. The bill was introduced by Assemblyman Ken Meade, D-Berkeley.

—Allowed two bond issues to be placed on next June's ballot. One by Assemblyman Leroy Greene, D-Sacramento, would raise $200 million for school construction. The other by Assemblyman Ken MacDonald, D-Ojai, is a $175-million water bond.

—Vetoed a bill by Assemblyman Walter Ingalls, D-Riverside, which would have called for limits on truck driving hours. Brown said the issue should be left to agency regulation or collective bargaining.

STRIKE ULTIMATUM

Tucson Mayor Lewis C. Murphy, right, issued an ultimatum Wednesday to striking police and firemen. At a news conference, he said the 800 strikers must return to work tonight or lose their jobs. The strikers want an immediate 30 per cent wage increase. The city has offered 7½ per cent now and 5 per cent next July.

SOUGHT

The ramifications of the Patty Hearst case have now shifted to this woman, Kathy Soliah, shown in a May 1974 photo. Federal officials want to question her in connection with a brutal bank robbery-murder in the Sacramento suburb of Carmichael April 21. She is the sister of Steven Soliah who was indicted Wednesday on a charge of harboring fugitive Patty Hearst.

U.S. delays coast oil, gas leases

WASHINGTON (AP)—The sale of oil and gas leases on 1.6 million acres off the Southern California coast has been tentatively pushed back two more months, the Interior Department says.

The department said Wednesday it needed more time to consider public comments on environmental impact statements.

According to the announcement, department officials would use "this additional time to consult further with California state and local officials and to weigh their views before a final decision is made on whether or not to hold the sale."

The sale, postponed twice before, was scheduled for next month. The controversial ocean tracts are from Point Mugu to Dana Point.

Many state and local officials have urged delay or abandonment of the lease sale.

Experts mull RFK killing, 2nd gun idea

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Using a highly sophisticated comparison microscope, seven experts are sifting through evidence in the 1968 assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The seven worked all day in a locked jury room Wednesday. Assistant County Counsel Robert Lynch said, "they pretty much set their own hours, but they work most of the time."

Lynch, who heads a committee of lawyers representing the various interests in the case, said he did not know how long the evidence investigation would last.

The panel was assembled and ordered to conduct a "miniprobe" of evidence after the Columbia Broadcasting System and Paul Shchrade filed suit to reopen the investigation. Schrade was injured during the assassination as Kennedy walked through the pantry of the Ambassador Hotel after winning the state's Democratic primary.

A Palestinian national, Sirhan B. Sirhan, was convicted of the assassination and is serving a life sentence at San Quentin. His conviction did not quiet criticism of the investigation, however, with some saying the evidence indicated a second gun was involved.

The experts are looking into that "second gun" theory.

2 arrested in Pomona heroin case

Pomona police today planned to seek felony complaints against two Pomona men arrested in connection with an undercover narcotics purchase Tuesday afternoon at 1020 Murchison St.

The suspects, Reyes Francisco Rios, 25, and Luis Angel Baez, 39, were arrested at the Murchison Street address after an agent of the state Bureau of Narcotics Enforcement bought three ounces of high-grade heroin there, according to Pomona Police Detective Lorenzo Zambrano Jr. Zambrano said the heroin had a street value of $22,000.

Rios and Baez are suspected of dealing in a "moderate" amount of heroin on a daily basis in Pomona, according to Zambrano and Pomona detective Larry Todd. The investigation of the pair began about a month ago.

The detectives said they would seek complaints from the district attorney charging Rios and Baez with possession of heroin for sale and with selling heroin. The suspects remained in jail in lieu of $50,000 bail each.

Riverside blaze halted

Brush fires in Southland burn 50,000 acres

By The Associated Press

Firefighters reported gaining an edge over a rash of brush fires which have injured 14 persons, scorched some 50,000 acres and forced over 200 Southern Californians to flee their homes.

The state's largest brush fire of the year was brought under control Wednesday in the Badlands area near Riverside, leaving 20,250 acres of brushland and six persons with minor injuries. Two trailers and a home were destroyed, the U.S. Forest Service reported.

Fifty miles to the south, more than 1,000 men achieved 45 per cent containment of a 10,000-acre blaze in northern San Diego County, seven miles northwest of Fallbrook. The state Division of Forestry predicted full containment by Friday night.

The fire swept through the 831-acre Arteberry ranch, forcing 10 persons to flee for their lives and destroying more than $600,000 worth of property.

The $500,000 Arteberry ranch home was reduced to ashes; only the stone chimney remained. A Le Mans racing car valued at $100,000 also was consumed by flames.

Four other dwellings and four utility sheds were lost to the fire and a 10,000-gallon tank of diesel fuel exploded, but forestry officials reported no injuries from the blast.

A bulldozer operator at another section of the fire suffered third-degree burns on one arm. The unidentified victim was reportedly hospitalized but there was no word on his condition.

The fire cut a black swath through De Luz Canyon and burned its way into Camp Pendleton, where Marines were battling a 12,000-acre blaze of their own. Base firemen expected to contain the fire by late Thursday.

Four Marines were injured Tuesday when one stepped on an explosive device while fighting a small fire on the Pendleton machine gun range. Three were treated and released while a fourth man was flown to Balboa Naval Hospital in San Diego.

Half a mile from the Mexican border near Tecate, some 200 men slowed the spread of a 2,000-acre holocaust that moved northward at a rate of one square mile an hour. A trailer and two ranch buildings were overrun by the flames.

Sheriff's deputies prepared to evacuate ranchers and residents of the community of Barrett, but officials later said no evacuation was ordered. More than 200 area residents left on their own, firemen said.

State Highway 94 was closed both by the fire and by heavy equipment trying to reach the scene.

Early Wednesday, fire fighters claimed control of the 3,480-acre Clevinger fire in San Pasqual Valley in northeast San Diego County. The fire started Monday only 2½ miles from the San Diego Wild Animal Park, but the wildlife sanctuary was never threatened.

It took 600 men to quell the blaze, including 19 engine companies from the city of San Diego.

Ritual slayer gets life term

SANTA MONICA (AP) — Albert Sidney Ward, who admitted the ritualistic murder of an elderly woman, was sentenced to life imprisonment Wednesday.

Ward pleaded guilty to the murder and burglary charges arising from the death of Gay Ramsdan, 86, of West Los Angeles. The body was found last May 19 with numerous knife wounds and a handwritten note praising the devil on her bedspread. The body was covered with an American flag.

Two hundred doctors from Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange counties will attend a two-day medical symposium Friday and Saturday at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The meeting will officially dedicate the Russell K. Pitzer Auditorium in the hospital's new addition, according to DR. John A. Gius, director of medical education at the hospital and symposium general chairman.

Three major medical topics to be discussed in depth are: "The Diagnosis and Treatment of Life-Threatening Trauma in the Emergency Room." "Management of Acute and Chronic Pulmonary Problems," and "1975 Update of Cancer Management."

Participants from the USC Medical School are Dr. Robert Eisenberg, associate clinical professor of medicine and medical director of pulmonary therapy department at Huntington Memorial Hospital; Dr. Robert F. Scharf, coordinator of emergency division residency at Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center; and Dr. Joel Solomon, assistant clinical professor of medicine and senior physician, department of hematology, City of Hope Medical Center.

Also participating are Dr. Robert Rosen, clinical professor of pediatrics at Loma Linda School of Medicine and chairman of the department of Pediatrics at City of Hope; Dr. Daniel Simmons, professor of medicine and physiology and chief of pulmonary diseases at UCLA Medical Center; and Dr. Robert H. Yonemoto, associate clinical professor of surgery at UC Irvine and associate director of general surgery at City of Hope.

Panelists from the staff at PVCH participating are Dr. David N. Brown, neurosurgeon; Dr. Robert W. Dukes, director of emergency services; Dr. D. Frederick Knudsen, general and thoracic surgeon; Dr. Morton Kolber, cochairman of the tumor board, internist and oncologist; and Dr. Shirley W. Martin, medical director of cardio-respiratory services.

Dr. Fritz Moser, president of the PVCH medical staff, and Robert W. Burwell, hospital administrator, will open the symposium at 8:30 a.m. Friday.

GOP worried about Demos' dominance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders are worried that complacent House and Senate GOP members may lose next year's election and that Democrats will expand their already swollen two-to-one majority on Capitol Hill.

"I feel there is a general reluctance on the part of some Republicans to face up to the issues of 1976," Senate Republican campaign chairman Ted Stevens of Alaska said in an interview Wednesday.

In the House, a Republican political committee issued a bluntly worded report saying GOP congressmen have enveloped themselves in a "smugness ... (that) borders on arrogance."

Focusing on the traditional American political belief that an incumbent president carries many senators and House members with him to election, the report said, "the coattail theory is a myth."

The pessimistic report was prepared by the House Republican Research Committee, a branch of the GOP leadership, and was written at the direction of chairman Rep. Louis Frey Jr. of Florida.

The House Republican report said 25 GOP seats easily could be lost in the 1976 voting. The current party division following heavy GOP losses in the 1974 off-year election is 289 Democrats to 145 Republicans.

One vacancy, previously held by a Democrat, is currently contested and will be filled by a special election in Tennessee.

While Republicans were running up a series of successful congressional votes sustaining President Ford's vetos and Democrats were unable to organize coherent legislative leadership, the report said a wave of political optimism ran through Republican ranks.

Then came Democrat John A. Durkin's surprising 27,000-vote victory over Republican Louis C. Wyman in a rerun of the New Hampshire senatorial election.

"They elected a Democrat in a state where even the independents outnumber the Democrats," the committee said.

Even campaign visits by President Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan were not enough to elect Wyman, the report said.

For coming congressional and senatorial elections, the committe declared, "the handwriting is on the wall. Can we read it?"

Stevens and a spokesman for Republican National Chairwoman Mary Louise Smith both disagreed with the House report conclusion that the New Hampshire vote has national implications.

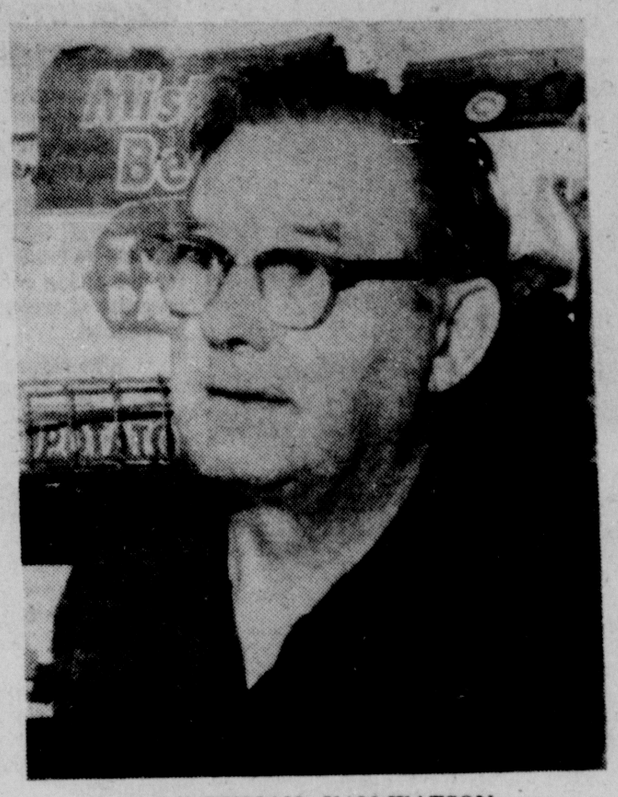

Stevens said Wyman had serious organizational problems while Durkin was able to make sure that all his supporters cast ballots.

Spokesman Norman Bishop of the Republican National Committee said Durkin received immense help from labor union political activists.

Stevens said Wyman was perceived as part of a government which has done little to solve the major problems of energy and the economy.

"There is a sort of anti-incumbency feeling around the country," Stevens said.

The senator said that could work against the Democratic majority, but unless Republicans seeking re-election make specific proposals on energy, gasoline and other issues, they are equally vulnerable.

CANDYMAN: VAN WATSON

Candyman fed Sara, Charles

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Sara Jane Kahn and Charles Manson bought a lot of candy from Van Watson when they were children.

Sara Jane was a serious pupil, but Manson "liked to play a little hooky," says Watson.

Sara Jane, now Sara Jane Moore, is in jail charged with trying to kill President Ford. Manson is serving life in prison for the 1969 murder of actress Sharon Tate and six others.

And one of Manson's followers, Lynette Fromme, also is charged with trying to kill the President, in a separate incident.

"Kathleen Manson, Charles' mother, was a clerk in my store for three or four months," Watson said in an interview Wednesday.

"Charles was about 9 or 10 years old, then, around 1942. He was just an ordinary boy, nothing outstanding. I sold him a lot of candy.

"He'd come in two or three times a day, whenever he got a penny."

Watson said he was shocked to learn that Sara Jane Kahn was the person accused of shooting at the President.

"I knew her from childhood," he said. "She came in the store to buy candy on her way to school. She was a loner — almost always by herself. She never had much to say about anything. She always had a couple of books under her arm and seemed to take school seriously."

The Kahns lived in a log house up Woodward Drive from his store and the Mansons lived in a house across the street from the store.

"I was very much surprised at the way those two children turned out," Watson said. "Charles wasn't much good at going to school — he liked to play a little bit of hooky.

"But I expected Sara Jane to grow up and become somebody with a good education and a responsible position in life.

"I never dreamed she would be somebody who'd try to kill the President."

Watson said he was certain that Manson and Mrs. Moore did not know each other in Charleston. Mrs. Moore is 45 years old and Manson is 40.

Mail-opening by CIA disclosed

Nixon was among list of victims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate intelligence committee hearings have raised the issue of whether the CIA is above the law because it is a secret intelligence agency.

The panel also plans public hearings next month on the CIA's mail-opening program following the disclosure Wednesday that the agency opened the mail of some prominent Americans, including a letter to Richard M. Nixon before he became president.

The CIA's mail-surveillance program, which operated from 1952 to 1973, also intercepted letters to or from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the committee.

The committee was scheduled to take testimony today from Richard Ober, former head of the agency's Operation Chaos, which spied on domestic dissidents, and Charles Brennan, former head of the FBI's domestic intelligence division.

The question of the CIA's responsiblity under the law was raised by testimony given in closed session on Sept. 12 by James J. Angleton, former chief of counterintelligence for the CIA. The transcript of that hearing quoted him as saying:

"It is inconceivable that a secret intelligence arm of government has to comply with all the overt rules of the government."

Several members of the committee pressed him about that statement Wednesday. At first Angleton replied: "If the transcript is accurate, it shouldn't have been said."

Then he said, "I'd been rather impertinent in making those remarks."

Church asked: "Do you withdraw the statement?" Eventually, Angleton replied: "I do."

Then Church asked: "Did you mean it when you said it?"

Angleton: "I don't know how to respond ... My speculation should not have been indulged in."

The disclosures about the CIA's mail-opening program first came Wednesday with a statement by Church which offered no detail but implied a wider scope to the Nixon mail surveillance than he later outlined.

ASKING WHY

Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, of the Senate Intelligence Committee, questions James Angleton, right, former chief of counter-intelligence at the Central Intelligence Agency, during the panel's Wednesday hearing in Washington. Church, who said the CIA secretly and illegally read the mail of many prominent Americans, asked Angleton why the agency found it necessary to open a letter to Richard Nixon before he became president.

Patty faces a few more problems?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A growing net of evidence of murder, robbery and bombings is touching the radical comrades of Patricia Hearst, threatening to draw the newspaper heiress into more legal troubles.

Authorities want to find three of her companions for questioning about a brutal bank robbery that ended in murder, a source close to the investigation confirmed Wednesday.

There were also reports that marked money taken in that April bank robbery near Sacramento was found in the apartment where Miss Hearst and fellow fugitive Wendy Yoshimura were arrested here last week.

Other law enforcement officials said that the Symbionese Liberation Army — which kidnaped Miss Hearst and then, she said, converted her — and its allies were responsible for a series of terrorist bombings in the San Francisco Bay area and were planning more attacks.

The three radicals federal agents want to question are James Kilgore and Kathy and Josephine Soliah. With the Soliahs' brother, Steve, now in custody, the three have been linked with the April 21 holdup of a Crocker Bank branch in the Sacramento suburb of Carmichael.

Santa's shop toys stolen

Because of some burglars, Christmas will not shine as bright this year for local needy children.

Thieves broke into Santa's workshop on the Pomona Mall this week and stole an assortment of toys ready for distribution.

These included 20 "Hot Wheel" sets, 10 large cars and trucks, seven electric road race sets, 30 stuffed animals, 20 dressed dolls, six "Jim and Barbie" camper sets, six marble games and a box of material used for making doll dresses.

The burglars entered the structure through a glass door, said Mrs. Ella Bockover, Santa Claus Inc. vice president. She estimated the loss at $200.

The none-profit organization works all year preparing toys for distribution to needy children each Christmas. All work is volunteer, and toys are given free to those who qualify.

Local law enforcement agencies are searching for four prisoners who have escaped from CHINO prisons this week.

California Institution for Women inmate Sharron Opal Adriance, 23, serving a life sentence on conviction of armed robbery and a prior escape, escaped about 8:30 p.m. Monday by stealing a guard's truck.

Miss Adriance, according to CIW authorities, had climbed a fence on the perimeter of the women's institution and hid herself until a perimeter guard in a pickup truck drove by. Authorities said the guard apparently left his truck, with the engine running and a 12 guage shotgun on the seat for a moment and the inamte jumped into the seat and drove away towards Chino-Corona Road south of CIW.

The truck was located in Venice Wednesday, along with the shotgun. Officers believe she may be traveling to Tacoma, Wash., where she has friends.

At the Youth Training School Monday, 19-year-old Joseph Lopez, committed to the institution by the Youth Authority on conviction of assault with a deadly weapon, turned up missing at a regular count.

Two California Institution for Men inmates disappeared from the minimum security section of the Chino prison Sunday afternoon.

Inmates John Wessely Beach, 37, serving a term for first degree robbery, and Tom Bill Young, 33, serving a term of burglary and assault were both found missing from their work stations Sunday about 4:45 p.m., prison officials said.

Beach, according to officers was on duty as a prison firemen when he disappeared while Young was missing from his work detail. Both of the men are presumed to be traveling together and possibly have access to weapons, according to law enforcement officers.

A gunman with a bandana or rag wrapped around his right hand robbed the Circle K Market at 603 S. Euclid Ave. in ONTARIO of a small amount of cash Wednesday morning, according to police.

Market clerk Alice C. Michaud, 41, told officers that the robber walked into the store, came behind the counter and displayed a small handgun. She said the robber ordered her to hand him the cash from the two registers and threatened to shoot her if she called police.

The gunman, wearing a blue Levi jacket with the insignia "Burger" and a small embroidered gun on the back, ran outside to a waiting car driven by a Caucasian with short black collar length hair. The gunman was described as a Negro, 18 to 20, 5 feet 11, 6-feet wearing a blue and white bandana around his head.

A man armed with a small pistol waited for customers to leave and robbed Dominic's Pizza Restaurant at Pipeline Avenue and Carbon Canyon Road in LOS SERRANOS of a small amount of cash Wednesday night.

West End sheriff's deputies said the robbery was reported by restaurant owner Vance Stearns about 7:30 p.m. Stearns told deputies that the robber entered the restaurant and went into the restroom. When other customers had left the man came out of the restroom and displayed a small pistol under his sweatshirt, ordering Stearns to hand over the cash from the register.

Stearns described the robber as a Caucasian, 20, 5 feet 9, of thin build with blond hair and sideburns. He had acne scars on his face and was wearing a blue long-sleeved, zippered sweatshirt and light colored pants.

Hospital deaths

MARION, Ill. (AP) — As many as eight patients may have been poisoned with deliberately adulterated drugs at Marion Memorial Hospital, a state's attorney investigating the case says. Two died.

State's Atty. Robert Howerton said Wednesday that at least three and possibly eight persons were poisoned at the hospital from August 1974 to last January.

He confirmed reports that a 3-year-old boy and a 21-year-old man died last fall after emergency room treatment with local anesthetics adulterated by a muscle relaxant.

Lie detector tests have been given several persons but results were inconclusive, Howerton said. He added, "Virtually everyone at the hospital is a suspect."

Hospital officials first alerted Howerton to the poisonings on Feb. 18, although they had become suspicious by Oct. 3, 1974.

Auto sales

DETROIT (AP) — An early buying spree for 1976 models despite higher prices pulled mid-September domestic car sales to within six-tenths of one per cent of strong year-ago levels.

Auto analysts say a good initial consumer response to the new cars, combined with a continued upswing in over-all car buying, gave the U.S. industry its fifth best performance for the period in history.

Climbers make it

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Two British climbers have made the first ascent of Mt. Everest by the Southwest Face, the Nepalese Foreign Ministry announced today.

A spokesman said Dougal Haston, 32, and Doug Scott, 33, reached the top of the world's highest mountain by the previously unclimbed route at 6 p.m. Nepalese time Wednesday.

Considine critical

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert B. "Bob" Considine, columnist for King Features Syndicate who suffered a stroke in his Manhattan apartment Monday, was reported in critical condition today.

Considine, 68, was found lying on the floor of his apartment Monday morning. He was taken to New York Medical Center University Hospital.

Planes crash

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Four Italian air force Starfighters crashed in the Eifel Mountains near the West German-Luxembourg border today, the West German Defense Ministry said. The fate of the crewmen was not immediately known.

Luxemburg Airport and state police said one of the planes exploded in flight and the three accompanying jets crashed with it on the West German side of the Luxembourg border.

Action is taken this time on Ford threat

OCALA, Fla. (AP) — An unemployed service station attendant has been arrested on a charge of conspiracy to kill President Ford after first being freed when he told FBI agents about the plan, authorities say.

John Clayton Massey, 32, was arrested Wednesday night at a truckstop near this North Florida town after an all-state alert.

"He came to the FBI office in Ocala and gave some information about supposed plans of himself and others to hit the President and Sen. (Edward M.) Kennedy," said Asst. U.S. Atty. Robert Yerkes.

Yerkes said Massey was allowed to leave after he told about the plot. Arthur Nehrbass, agent in charge of the Jacksonville regional FBI office, said he couldn't explain why Massey wasn't detained then.

"I don't have an answer right now," Nehrbass said. "There was an investigation underway. He did not make an overt threat that he would kill the President.

"The answer may come out, but I can't answer it tonight even though I know it makes us look bad."

Neither Yerkes nor Nehrbass would describe the alleged assassination plot or say how many others might be involved.

Poll shows Wallace first

NEW YORK (AP) — In a sampling of Democrats and independents, 39 per cent say they could not vote for Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace if he received the Democratic presidential nomination, pollster Louis Harris says.

Of 19 names turned up as possibilities for the Democratic nomination, Wallace led as first choice for 14 per cent of the 973 Democrats and independents quizzed.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota was second with 12 per cent, followed by Sens. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Edmund S. Muskie of Maine with 10 per cent each.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts was taken at his word that he would not be a candidate and was not included in the survey.

Intruder kills 2 in L.A. home

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An intruder armed with a shotgun killed an employe of the Los Angeles County Probation Department and his wife in their View Park area home, sheriff's deputies said.

Killed shortly after 1 a.m. Wednesday were John L. Peck, Jr., 23, and his wife, Pamela, 22.

They were then ferried by helicopter to separate jails here.

When he was taken from the San Mateo County Jail near San Francisco on Wednesday evening, Harris, clad in a bright orange prison jump suit, greeted about 100 spectators who cheered him and his wife. He nodded, smiled and said: "I'll be seeing ya." Emily just smiled.

Immediately after arrival at Los Angeles International Airport, the two were hustled aboard a police helicopter for the 10 minute flight to the roof of the highrise downtown police headquarters here, where Harris, 30, spent the night.

The chopper then ferried his wife Emily, 28, to the nearby Sybil Brand Institute for women prisoners, an officer said.

The power was briefly cut off in Parker Center elevators after the 11:51 arrival, preventing reporters from observing Harris as he emerged from the helicopter and was taken downstairs in shackles and handcuffs.

His chains were removed for a skin search, however, and he remained unhandcuffed for the booking, said Lt. E.D. Guinn, jail watch commander.

Asked if Harris had said anything, Guinn replied:

"He just answered the routine questions. He was very polite — no problem."

Closing rural postal sites could save millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $100 million annual saving that the Postal Service might make by closing many of its smallest offices works out to a fraction of a penny on postage rates, but it could have cut the service's deficit last year by 12 per cent.

The proposal for closing 12,000 third-and fourth-class post offices in rural America came from the General Accounting Office, which recommended that rural route service be substituted instead. The net saving would be $100 million per year, the GAO estimated.

The GAO said interviews that its investigators conducted in areas where similar post offices have already been eliminated showed that nine out of 10 customers had concluded that the replacement service was as good or better than the service they had been receiving.

When a person has rural route service, his delivery carrier also acts as a traveling post office authorized to sell stamps and provide other postal services.

The Postal Service agreed to consider the GAO proposal, but only with congressional guidance. Two House Post Office subcommittees began taking testimony on the plan Tuesday.

The projected $100 million annual saving would equal one-sixtieth of the $6 billion that the Postal Service receives from first-class mail — or about 1½ mills out of the 10 cents now paid to mail a letter.

But when viewed in terms of the Postal Service deficit that totaled $850 million in the fiscal year that ended June 30 and is expected to be higher this year, a $100 million saving would have yielded a 12 per cent reduction in red ink last year.

Although the GAO report doesn't spell out which of the nation's rural post offices should be closed, there is reference to offices in at least 28 states. There are a total of 18,000 of the tiny offices, many of them operated in general stores, service stations or homes.

In Tuesday's hearing before the House subcommittees, at least one tiny community won a battle to retain its post office.

The Postal Service said it would allow Darlene Pliscott to continue operating the station in Crest, Calif. She will receive $700 this year to run the community post office in her own home.

The Postal Service made the announcement about an hour after Rep. Clair W. Burgener, R-Calif., testified that all his efforts to save the Crest station had been in vain.

"The post office will close tomorrow and I'm very frustrated about it because I don't know what more I can do to save it," Burgener told the joint meeting of the two subcommittees.

Burgener had a sympathetic audience in his fellow congressmen.

"I agree with you completely. In fact, I will call the Postal Service today and plead with them to keep the Crest post office open," said Rep. James M. Hanley, D-N.Y., who chaired the hearing.

Later, telephone calls came to Capitol Hill from the Postal Service saying that a new contract had been agreed to with Mrs. Pliscott.

"As far as I can tell there was no relationship between the new contract and what happened in Congress," a Postal Service spokesman said.

Released hostage calls for tighter security

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — An Indiana State Prison guard who was one of eight persons held hostage at knife point by two inmates, says the incident would not have happened if his request for a complete shakedown had been acted upon.

"We have inflicted upon us a very lax policy of security," Sgt. Guy Tate, who is in charge of security at the prison hospital, said after he and the other hostages were freed unharmed late Wednesday.

"It's not Warden (Leo) Jenkins' fault — but the commissioner's office in Indianapolis," said Tate, 66, an 11-year veteran of the maximum security institution's guard force.

Tate said he wrote his immediate superior as well as Jenkins and Custody Supervisor G. D. Wilkins two days ago and asked for the shakedown but "I got no reply."

Tate said he met inmates David T. Erikson, 33, and James C. Kelley Jr., 28, at the hospital entrance about 2:45 p.m. He said the two were seeking some "cold-type medication."

Tate said he opened the door and told the men to wait in a hallway.

"The next thing I knew, one of them said, 'Give me the keys,'" Tate added. "The inmate put a knife against my throat and naturally I complied."

He said the two men apparently were under the influence of drugs.

With Tate their prisoner, the two inmates went to a room where members of the hospital staff were meeting with Dr. Rodger Saylors, general prison physician. All were taken hostage.

Two hostages, one whose wife had died recently and another who suffered from a heart ailment, were release shortly afterward.

Three others, including Tate, were released about 6:30 p.m. Saylors, 50; Ronald E. Warner, 25, a medical technician; and Timothy F. Quigley, 25, a physician's assistant, were set free about 7:30 p.m.

The two inmates surrendered without a fight after they gave Jenkins a list of nine demands, including requests for more lenient visiting privileges, better hospital conditions, better food, better recreation facilities and reassignment of a tower guard.

Jenkins told reporters he promised the inmates he would review the demands but had already begun to consider most, if not all of them.

Jenkins said the knives used by Kelley and Erikson were fashioned within the prison. He said one appeared to have been made from material used for Indiana license plates.

Saylors said the two inmates broke into a medicine locker in the hospital and that both took several doses of phenobarbital, a barbiturate, and Demerol, a synthetic narcotic used as a pain killer and sedative.

He said they calmed down considerably after taking the drugs and were "glassy eyed when they surrendered."

Erikson is serving a one-to-10-year sentence for possession of dangerous drugs. Kelley is seving a 21-year term for voluntary manslaughter in a Fayette, Ky., slaying. He was transferred to the Indiana prison under a reciprocal agreement between the two states.

Hayes said that interview sessions of the eight finalists will begin Monday.

Mushroom poisoning hits Italy

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Ten persons have died and hundreds have been hospitalized in Italy's worst epidemic of mushroom poisoning in a decade, health officials say.

An unusual September, with rain followed by a warm sunshine, produced a bumper crop of edible and poisonous mushrooms, and Italians have flocked to the countryside to pick the delicacies that are selling for $4 to $10 a pound in the stores.

A number of persons have picked a common, highly toxic mushroom, amanita phalloides, that is easily mistaken for safe varieties. Fifty grams, or less than 2 ounces, is lethal.

Newspapers are publishing pictures of poisonous species, and authorities recommend all handpicked mushrooms be taken to special centers for checking.

AS SIMPLE AS A COMPUTER — A young woman demonstrates the use of an automatic blood pressure test. The machine is called the Automatic Electronic Sphygmomanometer. Within 60 seconds, it flashes a pressure reading on a digital dial.

Blood pressure test: now it's do-it-yourself

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A futuristic-looking electronic machine developed by a company here may make life easier for the 30 million Americans suffering from high blood pressure.

The device, known as an Automatic Electric Sphygmomanometer (AES) Computer, is the first machine to allow a person to take his blood pressure by himself, its developers say.

Instead of the inflatable wrap-around cuff and mercury contraption now used by physicians, the AES computer has a tiny computer system with a television-like screen and thick metal hoop.

A person simply puts his arm through the hoop, presses a button and reads his blood pressure on the screen.

The idea for the AES Computer was conceived by Dr. Jack Bauman, an anaesthesiologist at St. John's Hospital. He is a director of the manufacturing company, Medical Monitors, Inc.

"Many years ago I noticed how interested people are in their blood pressure," Bauman said. "I had in mind an automated machine, like a penny scale, so a person could take his own blood pressure."

Bauman took his idea to a computer microcircuitry expert who eventually developed the 30-pound machine now marketed by Medical Monitors.

The firm says it now has more than 7,500 orders, mostly from hospitals and clinics, for the device, which retails for $2,500.

High blood pressure is directly related to health problems such as heart attacks, strokes, kidney failure and eye trouble, Bauman said.

He hopes that by allowing more frequent monitoring of blood pressure levels, his device will help doctors in treating patients through special diets and drugs.

Medical Monitors President Harry Shuster said the firm received "tens of thousands of inquiries" about the AES Computer after a magazine article on the device appeared last year.

"We heard from universities, hospitals, clinics, health clubs...even banks who wanted to use it as a customer service," Shuster said. "We had a lot of senior citizens' homes write us saying they wanted one for their lobby."

Shuster said the firm is planning on producing about 10,000 units a year and hopes to further reduce the size until the AES Computer becomes as small as a pocket calculator. More than $2 million has been spent so far on research and development costs, Shuster said.

Medical Monitors also plans to install units in supermarkets, drugstores and other retail outlets, Shuster said, so that people can simply insert a coin and take their own blood pressure.

High blood pressure can be controlled, Bauman said, and the AES Computer may make treating it easier.

"It's like being overweight and having a scale or not," he said. "With the AES Computer, you can see what the effects are of the treatment you're getting."

Police try hand at shoplifting

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Three policemen who pretended to be thieves and carried off $459 in loot, including a boat motor from a department store, say it was a hard way to make a point.

"All of us had nervous stomachs the whole time," Patrolman Jack Schnell said Thursday. "We were worried about what might happen to us."

But they never got caught in what Police Chief C. W. "Jake" Miller described as an attempt to emphasize how easy it was to shoplift.

"Police make the worst type of criminals," Miller said. "You know if they can get away with this much, it can't be difficult."

Schnell, Lt. Burt Sellers and Patrolman Bill Woodward said they spent only about one hour over a two-day period as shoplifters. Their take included men's shirts, bowling balls and sleeping bags.

"We acted as a team only once," Schnell said. "And that was by using a lookout when we were taking the outboard motor. Mostly, it was a matter of keeping your eyes open.

"Woodward lifted a coffee maker and was carrying it out the door when a clerk stopped him. He said she never challenged him, but instead tried to sell him some other merchandise."

Miller said the officers will meet with the store clerks to advise them how to approach a suspected shoplifter and on precautions to take to prevent shoplifting.

"The only way you're going to fight this thing is through education and enforcement," he said. "The managers are going to have to train their employes better and they're going to have to become more aggressive."

Miller said the officers will give back the loot.

Key Eastern drug figure convicted in valley court

Fred Hill, 31, of Decatur, Ga., identified as a major narcotics dealer on the East Coast by federal authorities, has been convicted in West Valley Superior Court of sales of heroin and transportation of heroin.

Hill, after hearing the jury's guilty verdict read by Judge Clifton L. Allen, was ordered into the custody of the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department until sentencing on Oct. 10.

Hill, along with Cheryl Dumas, 21, of Atlanta, Ga., and Jerry Walker, 31, of Hartford, Conn., was arrested on the San Bernardino Freeway on May 28 by California highway patrolmen and agents of the Federal Drug Enforcement Detail.

Patrolmen and agents searching Hill's car found heron valued at $500,000 and $8,700 in cash.

The three were arrested on charges of illegal sales and transportation of heroin.

Federal agents who had been investigating narcotics activities on the East Coast had followed Hill to Los Angeles suspecting that he would make a narcotics buy. They asked the local Highway Patrol office to make the stop and check out the suspects.

A short time after the arrests were made, Walker was released without charge when agents learned he had no knowledge of the narcotics activity. Miss Dumas also was released from custody when the court determined there was insufficient evidence to hold her for trial.

Hill, however, was brought to trial on the basis of his own admissions to federal officers the day of his arrest.

Agents Paul Clayton and John Peoples called to the stand by West Valley Deputy Dist. Atty. Wayne Gomez testified that during a May 28 interview at West End jail Hill admitted that he was carrying the heroin to the East Coast. The agents said the defendant told them that he had come to Los Angeles to straighten out a heroin deal that had gone sour.

Hill on the stand denied that he had made any admission to the federal agents and hinted that someone had set him up.

RESIGNS CLAREMONT POST — Architect William Abbott has announced his resignation from the Claremont Architectural Commission after serving for five years, nine months.

Abbott was appointed in November 1969, and served as commission chairman from July 1971 to July 1973. He was re-appointed to a four-year term in July this year.

Abbott said he found it difficult recently to maintain a "decent" attendance record at commission meetings. In addition, "I have given much thought to the new limitation on myself regarding speaking to the commission on behalf of my clients when their projects are before the commission," Abbott commented.

Abbott said that he hoped he had contributed something, "because it has been an educational experience for me."

GRAND CHAMPION ANGUS — Richard and Ronald Kruse of O. H. Kruse Grain and Milling Co., Ontario, stand by their prized possession. The animal was chosen grand champion angus at the Los Angeles County Fair junior livestock auction. Their bid was $3 a pound for the 1,134-pound animal. It was raised by Steve DeRose of San Luis Obispo. The reserve grand champion, a Charolais crossbred, was bought by Carr Paper Co. of Pomona for $1 a pound.

Diet advice available at health center for high-risk heart cases

A coronary prevention class at the Pomona Health Center offers dietary instruction for the public, especially those who are considered a high risk for heart disease.

The next series of six free classes will begin on Oct. 7 from 7 to 9 p.m., according to the district director of nutrition, Sheila Jelly.

The educational course which combines demonstrations and lectures is designed for persons who are overweight, have elevated blood pressure, have high blood cholesterol or triglyceride levels or who need instruction for diabetic or sodium control diets.

"Overweight is the No. 1 health problem in the country and heart disease is the No. 1 killer," said Mrs. Jelly. "Health departments feel we must do something about these epidemics.

"Unfortunately, the first indication of heart disease may be sudden death.

"All too often, the doctor tells a patient that he must lose weight, but doesn't tell him how."

All individuals who enter the course are personally interviewed by Mrs. Jelly. Included is a history of eating habits and intake, medical history of the person and the family, medication being taken and other related information.

After six months, Mrs. Jelly again interviews the participant to compare changes in eating habits, weight and general health. Class members obtain a free serum cholesterol check at the Pomona Health Center.

Members of the class monitor their intake and keep records of eating habits.

"Through positive feedback, we can see what types of changes are needed," Mrs. Jelly explained.

Mrs. Jelly prepares three weeks of recipes and brings samples of foods to the class for tasting by the members. In addition to providing basic recipes, the class members learn how to make these foods appealing.

Menus are designed for various caloric intakes and stress foods which are in season or easily obtainable.

Members are taught to select low calorie foods from the four basic food groups so that good nutrition is maintained.

The next series of classes will be on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at the Pomona Health Center, 750 S. Park Ave., Pomona. A well lighted parking lot is adjacent to the center.

Additional information may be obtained by calling 623-6811, extension 525.

Said 50 years ago he wanted to visit U.S.

Hirohito's wish to come true

By KAY TATEISHI
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Emperor Hirohito of Japan, the world's longest reigning sovereign, will make his first tour of the United States starting next week. It will be the fulfillment of a wish made 50 years ago.

The trip with Empress Nagako starting next Wednesday and running to Oct. 13 will afford Americans in Washington, New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Hololulu a first hand look at the little, mild-mannered man that many of them remember from pictures during World War II.

Those were the days that Hirohito was pictured in full military uniform and plumed hat as he sat astride a white charger reviewing Japan's military forces.

Hirohito, now 74, was considered by his subjects then as the divine son of the sun goddess.

But time has untangled a knotty problem involving the Japanese imperial system and today he is regarded as an ordinary human being, friend and a symbol of the West's hope for peace in Asia.

Hirohito's U.S. visit is to return a visit last fall by President Ford, the first American President in office ever to travel to Japan.

It was during a courtesy call on the commander of the U.S. Atlantic Fleet aboard the flagship Pittsburg in Gibraltar in 1921 that Hirohito, then crown prince, remarked that he regretted he couldn't accept a presidential invitation to go to the United States from his tour of Europe. He told the admiral he would plan an American visit upon his return from Europe, but subsequent turns in Japanese-American relations robbed him of his wish.

Although World War II was declared in his name, following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, Hirohito 44 months later personally announced Japan's surrender. The aggressive Japanese adventure had reduced his island empire to a shambles, including atom-bombed Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Faced with defeat, devastation and degradation, Hirohito asked to be held responsible for Japan's war crimes. But the allied powers under the late Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur felt a humanized emperor retaining his throne would have greater psychological impact on the people and help restore peace and democraticize their one-time enemy.

Hirohito to visit U.S.

So Hirohito was stripped of his prerogatives and former power under the MacArthur-inspired constitution of 1947. He was made the "symbol of state and unity of the people," barred from active involvment in government affairs.

The emperor met with MacArthur on 11 occasions between Sept. 27, 1945 and April 15, 1951, and the American general later described Hirohito as "the first gentleman of Japan."

After disavowing his divinity on Jan. 1, 1946, Hirohito removed the awe and mystery surrounding him as he emerged from behind the spiritual fastness of his moated palace. He made a series of extended tours of Japan.

Although he cut an awkward figure at the start, the unprepossessing man with glasses and moustache was greeted warmly wherever he went.

For a long time, Hirohito, the 124th emperor of Japan, had been a prisoner of protocol and tradition. Not until 1971 was he able to make his first trip outside of Japan as emperor under special legislation enacted by the Diet, Japan's parliament. The trip turned out to be a sentimental journey, as he had visited Europe in 1921 as crown prince and heir-apparent to the 2,600-year-old gold chrysanthemum throne.

Commenting on that 1921 trip, he once said: "I felt like a little bird in a little cage until I visited Europe. The experience gained enriched my life."

Upon his return he had hoped to introduce modern ways to the centuries-old imperial court. But that was denied him as he got drawn into Japan's rising militarism.

This year Hirohito spent part of his summer vacation at the Nasu imperial villa, about 75 miles north of Tokyo, where he hiked about the mountains for four to six hours a day to build up his stamina and physical fitness for his U.S. trip. He later returned to the imperial palace, where he sat through a series of lectures by Japanese experts on life in the United states, its history, diplomacy and other American facets including racial problems and Watergate.

Prof. Masakazu Yamazaki, 41, author-playwright of Kansai University, back from a trip to the United States, said he was surprised that the emperor "asked very articulate questions."

Both the emperor and the empress, 72, are in good health. Neither smokes nor drinks. On Sundays they stroll about the palace grounds for about two hours. The afternoons are usually spent with visiting children and grandchildren who stay over for dinner.

Hirohito's regular days begin at 7 a.m., after he scans the newspapers, which are disinfected before they are brought to him. He and the empress then have breakfast which usually consists of oatmeal, bacon and eggs, toast and coffee, a taste for which he acquired during his 1921 tour of Europe.

EMPEROR HIROHITO

EMPRESS NAGAKO

He also prefers Western-style clothing, dislikes brown and wears suspenders, but is seldom seen in imperial court robes and hardly ever in a kimono. The empress whose wardrobe includes both Western and Japanese clothing, selects his neckties.

At 10 a.m. Hirohito doffs his hat to the empress, who gives him a bow at the doorway. He then leaves for the office a short distance away. At the palace he reads documents sent by the Cabinet for his signature, receives visitors, sends messages, attends official functions and performs a variety of duties prescribed in the new constitution.

His work days ends at 5 p.m. but he usually stays on to clear up paper work. On Saturday he spends half the day in his research laboratory pursuing his favorite subject: biology. He is an internationally recognized biologist and has written books on hydrozoa, deep-sea coelenterate animals, such as jellyfish.

Following dinner, he and the empress watch television or listen to recorded music. His favorite sport is sumo, Japanese wrestling, which he watches on television and once a year joins the spectators at the sumo arena.

They retire at 10 p.m.

The emperor and empress have two sons and two daughters-in-law, Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko, and Prince Hitachi and Princess Hanako, and three daughters. They have nine grandchildren.

Hirohito's U.S. visit will be long on formality, with no activities which would run counter to Japanese customs and tradition. It is expected to be all smiles, bows and exchanging of formal greetings.

Boy's arm sewn back on in 7-hour surgery

BOSTON (AP) — A Pennsylvania boy is reported in good condition at Massachusetts General Hospital here after a 7-hour operation by three surgeons to replant his right arm, severed by a freight train.

The action of a nurse in the accident in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is credited with saving the life of Scott Cormier, 13.

The boy reportedly jumped on the ladder of a passing freight train, but was knocked off by a signal light. His right arm was severed three inches below the elbow.

Helen Igoe, a nurse who lives in the area, put a tourniquet on his arm, placed him in a shock position and called an ambulance after spotting the eighth-grader, who had walked about a block after the accident.

The boy and the severed portion of his arm were put on a plane for Boston, and young Cormier wound up by chance next to Dr. W. Hardy Hendren, chief of pediatric surgery at Massachusetts General, who gave the boy medical attention on the flight.

Hendren later joined with Dr. Ronald A. Malt, who made the first known successful replantation in 1962 after a similar accident, and Dr. Richard J. Smith, chief of hand surgery, in replanting Cormier's limb.

A hospital spokesman said the success of the operation will not be known for several days until it can be determined if proper circulation returns to the arm. A far longer period will be required to determine if the nerve endings will regenerate and restore the arm's normal functions.

A Different Kind of Mother

Books on child-rearing abound, but few experts have explained the interplay between mother and daughter with as much clarity and intelligence as this week's cover story — Norwegian actress Liv Ullmann. Her personal account of motherhood is as disarming as her incomparable beauty and talent as an actress. This week, Liv Ullmann talks candidly about her greatest joy, eight-year-old daughter Linn. Read why Liv feels that not having "all the answers" is a mother's blessing, and why she feels that freedom for children produces healthier family relations if supplemented by consistent behavior by the parent. It's a different point of view from a different kind of mother.

Wild animals airlifted to safety

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Monkeys, cheetahs, lions, panthers, poisonous reptiles and even a hyena found wandering the city streets have found happier homes because of a unique "Animal Airlift" program here.

Wild critters native to Southern California are captured and loaded aboard a helicopter that flies them north into the Angeles National Forest for release in their natural habitat.

Exotic animals are turned over to zoos and other interested facilities.

Robert I. Rush, Department of Animal Regulation general manager, initiated the program six years ago. It not only removes a source of irritation for homeowners — few like a snake slithering across the front yard — but benefits the animals, forced to struggle for survival in an unnatural, hostile urban environment.

Rush said the program is unique. He knows of no other cities which have initiated similar programs.

In the six years since its inception, "Animal Airlift" has returned more than 2,400 animals, birds and reptiles to the wild.

"I believe we even have a better trapping record than Hudson Bay," said Rush. "And in our program, the animals retain their pelts."

Rush said the airlift program owes its "tremendous" success to public response.

"The program really works because the public supports us," he said. "The people know they can trust us not to blast the animals. They receive new, safer homes."

Native California animals which qualify for the flight back home include raccoons, opossums, foxes, rabbits, squirrels, snakes, predatory birds such as hawks and owls and an occasional deer.

Deer, because of their size, are trucked into the forest for release.

The program is carried out by two full-time department employes who capture the animals in harmless box-type traps. The traps are slung beneath a city helicopter for airlifting into various parts of the Angeles Forest.

Rush said that the animals are freed in selected areas where food, water and cover are naturally available to ease the transition back into a wild environment.

Owl blamed for power shortage

CHICO, Calif. (AP) — It's certain that a muskrat cut off electric service to 1,385 customers of the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. for more than an hour Monday night.

The question is: Did an owl put him up to it?

The muskrat's body was found about 9:30 p.m. across three circuits at a substation in Durham, nine miles south of Chico.

But since the muskrat was 10 feet off the ground, and muskrats don't climb, workmen think an owl dropped him off.

Brown inks law to put gun users in crime behind bars

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has signed a bill requiring mandatory prison sentences for persons who use firearms in serious crimes.

In his signing message Tuesday, Brown said, "Recent events underscore the appropriateness of swift and sure punishment for those who use guns to commit crimes," the Democratic governor said.

He also signed a bill extending from 5 to 15 days the waiting period before which a firearm purchaser may receive delivery.

His action came after the use of pistols twice in 17 days in California in alleged attempts to kill President Ford. Both laws go into effect Jan. 1.

The serious crimes in the mandatory prison sentence bill range from robbery to attempted murder.

"In signing this bill, I want to send a clear message to every person in this state that using a gun in the commission of a serious crime means a stiff prison sentence," Brown said.

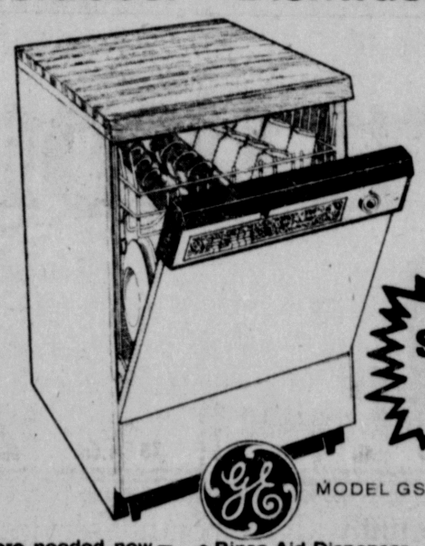

"Whatever the circumstances, however eloquent the lawyer, judges will no longer have discretion to grant probation even to first offenders. This may not rehabilitate nor get at the underlying causes but it will punish those who deserve it. The philosophy of this bill is based not on sociology or Freudian theory, but on simple justice," he added.

The bill was introduced by state Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach.

Ford should have moratorium on appearances, say experts

STANFORD — (BW) — President Ford's determination to continue his open public appearances might add greatly to his risks in the near future, several Stanford experts warned in separate interviews.

A one- or two-month moratorium on open contact with large crowds could reduce the contagious effect of recent attempts on his life, they added.

The President's commitment to "stand tall" and continue his direct contact with the public is understandable and reassuring to the vast majority of Americans, they noted. But it also could provoke another assailant.

Extensive mass media coverage of would-be assassins can have the same effect, however unintentional this might be.

Prof. David Hamburg, a psychiatrist specializing in violence, said, "basically it's a great mistake for candidates to go out and press the flesh. There are a large number of seriously disturbed, violently oriented people in society, and an immense amount of weaponry available to them.

"There's no really adequate way to protect the President from such people and weaponry except by minimizing his exposure.

"Change in the behavior of candidates — and, above all, of Presidents — is essential. The real issue is whether we let voters decide who will be President or let assassins decide."

Hamburg studied Robert Kennedy's assassination and persuaded George McGovern to modify his campaigning to reduce the risk of a similar tragedy.

"The President certainly does not gain any meaningful exchange of information or ideas by pressing the flesh," Hamburg added. "It comes down to some intangible exhiliration. On the whole, that's bad for presidents. It gives them a god-like sense. It addicts them to a high level of adulation which no human being deserves."

What to do? "Hold meetings in relatively secure places," Hamburg suggested. "Handle this problem like skyjacking, which was highly contagious for a while. Take simple security measures with those going to meeting halls. Once there you can have all kinds of discussion.

"For larger numbers of people, rely very heavily on radio and TV. Have spontaneous, unrehearsed interviews with experienced, high caliber, independent journalists not picked by the candidates. Actually, people would see much more meaningful exchanges that way than by pressing around the President.

"Such programs could involve exchanges with a wide variety of people — lawyers, consumer groups, ordinary citizens, for example — without exposing candidates to a whole array of weapons. Strong public input is essential. It can't just be something in charge of the campaign committee."

While "standing tall" can be provocative to potential assailants, a nationally prominent psychologist added, "There might be a difference between what the President says and what he does."

Where the President ordinarily might have walked a block between two hotels in San Francisco, for example, he took a limousine between them Monday.

"One incident often serves as a stimulus for others. If a brief period of time elapses, it helps curtail the spread. It would be an awfully good idea to 'Cool it' for a while," he added.

For media to go beyond reporting the news to provide an international forum for would-be assassins to dramatize their cause is "irresponsible."

This expert asked not to be identified to avoid further publicity. He has studied skyjacking and the effect of media in the contagion of violence.

Prof. Alex Inkeles, a sociologist and educator, said profiles of people who attempt to assassinate presidents are "extremely consistent."

They tend to be "extremely isolated, given to fantasies," with no corrective influences on their personal system of belief. Words used in normal criticism of the president therefore can "take on a very different meaning" to them.

The pool of potential assassins is "considerable." Attempts on the president's life might "lower the threshhold" when more will act, Inkeles added. Closed societies don't have this contagion problem: "If someone had tried to assassinate Krushchev, no one would know about it," he said.

Psychology Professor Philip Zimbardo agreed it is "more appropriate to assume there's a vast number of potential assasins out there. The administration is underestimating the extent of alienation in society.

"A feeling of social community, not laws or capital punishment, keeps people behaving morally. Once people no longer feel part of society, a kind of law of the jungle can set in."

What was once unthinkable now has become "a viable alternative" for increasing numbers of people who feel they have "Nothing to lose" and perhaps even a measure of fame to gain by killing, Zimbardo said.

Reported plots by officials to kill foreign leaders and newspaper columnists contribute to this problem.

Many of the "get tough" statements on crime assume that a small number of people account for most violence, his colleague in psychology added. "The general public is under the impression we now have very good ways of predicting violence. That's simply not so."

Delusions of persecution, a marked decline in social and economic status and rather bizarre belief systems are common characteristics of those who make assassination attempts. But "you can find hundreds of thousands of others who share these qualities but do not engage in violent behavior," he noted.

Using standard characteristics thus leads to a "tremendous overprediction" of violent individuals in research studies.

Law school professor John Kaplan, author of "The Trial of Jack Ruby," said simply "Once someone starts taking pot shots, all kinds of nuts come out of the woodwork."

Presidents are "much too casual about their own security. The bullet proof vest was a very good idea," he added.

"The only President who had a fool-proof security scheme was Richard Nixon, because he had Spiro Agnew as vice president."

Ford's image is quite different, Zimbardo said. Among most people "the feeling is that he's a good man, personally."

The political pressure on him to make more personal appearances as the 1976 election approaches will be "tremendous." Realistically, "he wants to be president again and if he thinks it will help, he might put his life on the line for it."

While the President should continue to make speeches, to persist in plunging into crowds is "unnecessary and unwarranted," Zimbardo said. "We want our leaders to be strong, but we want them to be alive."

Parking question stalls action on Pomona senior citizen site

By L.T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

The Pomona Planning Commission wants more information before it gives its approval to a proposed 180 unit senior citizens housing complex at 755 N. Palomares Ave.

Representatives for the Greater Pomona Housing Development Corp. appeared Wednesday night before the planners seeking approval of an environmental impact report, conditional use permit and variances to reduce the number of offstreet parking spaces and to waive required recreational vehicle parking.

Following a lengthy discussion in which several persons who reside near the project site discussed an existing problem of parking vehicles on city streets, the planners requested a further study be made on parking requirements for senior citizens who reside in similar complexes.

The planners also wanted more information on the amount of rent to be charged.

Those residents testifying said there isn't room on streets surrounding the project for residents to park their own vehicles. They expressed concern over the need for more parking spaces generated by the complex.

L. V. Malmquist, project architect, said only about one third of the residents moving into the complex would have vehicles. He based this projection on similar senior citizen housing projects.

But should a demand for more parking space develop, the developers would seek to obtain additional property in the area for parking, he added.

Regarding the rent, Robert Kelley, project chairman, said this would depend on the bond market when the bonds to finance the complex are sold. But he estimated the average rent would be $200 a month.

The housing complex will include 138 one-bedroom apartments of 550 square feet each; 32 efficiency apartments of 376 square feet; and 10 two-bedroom apartments of 700 square feet each.

But since the environmental impact report didn't contain information about the rent, the planners agreed this should be included before the report was adopted.

The commission will receive the additional information at its next meeting.

The senior citizens housing complex is proposed on a five acre site bounded by San Francisco, Palomares, Gibbs and Pearl streets. It will be financed through the sale of nonprofit bonds recently authorized by Pomona residents in an election. Cost of the project is estimated at $3 million.

THANKS, GUYS!

Joe Mangrich, a Pomona accountant, shares with a couple of pigs the trophy and the five-pound ham he won Wednesday afternoon in the 14th annual hog-calling contest at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona. And since he won't see the hogs again until the 1976 fair, the appreciative Mangrich croons a few closing bars of his soo-ey song. Mangrich competed unsuccessfully the first 13 years of the contest.

O-M district, staff settle on 7.85% hike

By JOE FIRMAN
PB Staff Writer

At a special meeting this morning, the board of trustees of the Ontario-Montclair School District granted a salary and fringe benefit increase of 7.85 per cent to teachers and nonteaching employes.

The teachers had originally asked for a 9.5 per cent increase; the trustees of the financially beset district had offered 7.75 per cent.

The settlement of the wage dispute with the teachers came about Friday after a day-long arbitration meeting with Thomas V. Vitaich of the California Conciliation Service. Nine teachers of the Certificated Employes Council (CEC) took part in negotiations with Supt. Jack J. Jones, Asst. Supt. Charles F. Robar, and Deputy Supt. George Duerr. The district teachers approved the new pact by a 72 per cent vote Monday.

The agreement provides a salary increase of seven per cent, and with an additional .85 per cent going for fringe benefits. This amounts to a $138 per employe raise for the 1975-76 school year. A similar agreement was reached with the nonteachers following meet-and-confer sessions with the California School Employes Association, represented by Louis Poortinga, chairman. The trustees also approved that pact this morning.

The money for the increased salaries, amounting to $112,000, is one third of the $336,000 the district acquired through the recent Senate Bill 220. Another third of the sum will go into the district reserves, and the remaining third will be used to restore programs cut during the summer-long budget sessions.

The trustees also voted to restore the class size guidelines agreed to with the SEC. These provide a pupil-teacher ratio of 30-1, with 28-1 in the primary classes and 32-1 in grades four, five and six. In junior high schools the ratio will be 30.5-1.

Hog caller wins one after 13 losing years

Thirteen years of frustration ended Wednesday afternoon for Pomona accountant Joe Mangrich who finally won the annual hog-calling contest at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona.

Mangrich brought home to his family the proof of his victory over 25 other soo-ey serenaders — a trophy, and even more valuable, a canned ham.

The frustration had built to fever pitch for Mangrich who was even beaten by his 4-year-old son John in 1964. John's victory made headlines all over the country, and the youngster even appeared on the "I've Got A Secret" television program.

ROBERT C. GUSTAVESON

Another of the five Mangrich youngsters, Michael, competed, but didn't fare as well.

Now, flushed with victory, Mangrich is thinking, if only remotely, of putting out a hog-calling album for use by other contestants.

Fair queen Beth Redinius presented the trophy and the five-pound ham to the jubiliant Mangrich who may be ready to retire his old tattered straw hat after 13 years.

Second prize went to Raymond Raza of Rowland Heights. Howard Beardsley of Montclair was third, and winner of the last two contests, Howard Snider of Ontario, placed fourth.

Judges this year were fair publicity director Harry Hofmann, Don Bell, and Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair.

Observers said that the hogs were not too active Wednesday, and only wanted to root for a cool spot in the wet sawdust of the judging ring. But Mangrich's serenade finally got to them after 13 years of trying.

The 100-degree weather kept attendance down to 39,971 persons at the fair Wednesday, compared to 43,724 on a corresponding day in 1974.

Total attendance for the first 13 days of the fair this year is 829,164, still ahead of the 1974 attendance of 825,617.

Fair officials hope to welcome the one millionth visitor to the fair sometime Saturday.

Horse racing Wednesday attracted 8,006 fans to the Grandstand oval where they wagered $888,532 in 11 events.

Fire ruins A.L. garage, cars, attic

Fire of undetermined origin roared through a two-car garage and attic of a new home at 6326 Moonstone Road in Alta Loma this morning, causing an estimated $20,000 damage.

The Marlin Dickey family was awakened by a neighbor, Ron Heimann, about 2:30 a.m. after he heard several small explosions and saw smoke pouring from their garage. Dickey, his wife and two sons ran out of their house to find that the garage and two cars parked inside were totally engulfed in flames.

When two pumper trucks and 13 Foothill District firemen arrived minutes later the fire had burned into the attic and roof of the new home. Firemen were able to contain the blaze in 20 minutes.

Fire inspectors said that the cause of the blaze has yet to be determined, but highly flammable liquids in the garage caused several explosions, pushing the fire into the attic and roof. A firewall, required in most new homes, prevented the fire from spreading into the living areas of the home, said fire inspectors.

The Dickey family lost a station wagon and an antique car parked in the garage along with camping equipment and other items.

New Kiwanis leader named

Municipal Court Judge Robert C. Gustaveson was installed Wednesday night as president of the Pomona Kiwanis Club.

Other officers installed were Bert W. Humphries Jr., first vice president, Sylvester Opbroek, second vice president; Rudolph J. Gregory, secretary; and Fred W. Scrimes, treasurer.

Elected to the board of directors were Don Williams, Ray Forrest, Michael Hiss and Juan Gamboa to two-year terms and the Rev. Ivan C. Walks, Frank Carr, James Turner and Vernon M. Weigand, one-year term.

Honored as "Kiwanian of the Year" was Rudolph Gregory. His selection was based on his dedication to the Kiwanis ideals in the promotion of higher social, business and professional standards and using the "Golden Rule" as a guide for everyday life, said officials.

The ceremony was held at Griswold's Restaurant in Claremont.

2 hurt as car swerves by cow

Two persons were injured Wednesday night when a driver swerved to avoid a cow on Soquel Canyon near Chino and the car hit an embankment.

Lawrence Eye, 19, of 1455 W. Fourth St. and Dave Kostolnik, 18, of 1549 W. Princeton St., both Ontario, were treated at Chino General Hospital. They were passengers in a car driven by Bart Knight, 18, of 1130 Highland Court, Ontario.

Knight was driving west on Soquel Canyon Road about 25 miles an hour when the cow ran across the road in front of him.

Damaged building fixed

CHP ready to move — again

The California Highway Patrol Monday will try once again to move into its new area headquarters at 1801 E. D St., Ontario.

Officers had previously scheduled the move Aug. 1 but had to delay it when a roof beam broke from the roof ridge support and dropped eight inches.

"We have been looking forward to moving into our new building for a long time," said Capt. Eriks Svede, area commander. "This will provide more room for our officers and better access for the public."

The patrol has been located at 750 S. Indian Hill Blvd., for the past 12 years. The building was constructed to accommodate 60 officers. The staff has expanded to 69 uniformed officers and 14 civilian employes.

The Ontario office, located on three acres of land, represents a $280,000 investment. The Schultz Construction Co. of Sacramento is the builder and owner. The state will lease the facility at $5,000 a month. This compares to $750 paid for the Claremont office.

The new facility with 8,700 square feet of floor space has a gasoline pump, car wash, and large parking lot to accommodate trucks needing clearance or inspections.

Raising price on binding ties

Greeting card publishers, purporting to act on behalf of all customers of the U.S. Postal Service, have filed suit in U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, D.C. to overturn recent Postal Rate Commission rulings that will allow a 30-per cent increase in the cost of a first-class stamp by year's end — from 10 cents to 13 cents.

"We are asking the appeals court to prevent this unreasonable boost in the cost of first-class postage, which further interferes with an individuals' right to communicate," says Robert H. Busler, president of the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers. "We do so not only for our own industry, whose products account for only 10 per cent of first class mail usage, but for the millions of ordinary Americans who buy first-class stamps but have no organization or means of protesting."

While greeting cards may account for only 10 per cent of all first-class mail, they account for 100 per cent of the greeting card business. Since most cards are mailed, a 30 per cent rise in the cost of postage will result in a drastic decline in card sales, the industry fears.

As Busler puts it: "These are the little ties that bind families and friends together across our continent. Every penny increase in the cost of mailing a personal note cuts back dramatically on the inclination — and the ability — of some folks to keep those ties alive."

One hopes the fear is exaggerated. After all, in a few short years Americans have witnessed not only postage stamps more than double but the cost of the average card more than triple. People seem to have learned to live with both changes.

Still, there may be a limit to what the public will absorb. Already, there are predictions in Washington that first-class postage will go as high as 25 cents within two years.

Back in the days when you could mail a card for four cents in an unsealed envelope, the cry was all for efficiency in the Post Office. Editorial writers regularly lambasted the department's annual deficits and demanded that it "pay its own way." Today, for all the increases in postal rates and cutbacks in service, the supposedly revamped Postal Service still can't operate without federal subsidies.

It's rough on all of us, greeting card publishers and unorganized, taxpaying individuals who communicate alike.

Worthless autographs

Your average politician's signature isn't worth much more than the paper it's written on.

Authority for this is Charles Hamilton, professional autograph collector and handwriting expert, who says that the vast majority of the one million people who collect autographs in the United States are under the false impression that signatures of politicians, television, movie, sports and other celebrities are valuable.

Actually, says Hamilton, such signatures are worth "peanuts." Only a few command the price of a Teddy Kennedy, currently one of the most popular signatures — from $10 to $30.

Another factor that diminishes the signature value of Washington politicians is the Autopen, which many senators and congressmen as well as presidents use. This robotlike machine can write as many as 3,000 signatures a day, each one virtually impossible to tell from a real one.

On the other hand, new writing instruments such as the plastic-tipped pen, which combines the fine line of a ballpoint with the vivid colors of a felt tip to give a bold and cleaner appearance, will eventually have a beneficial effect on an autograph's value. If it had been available years ago, many autographs would perhaps be worth a great deal more today, thinks Hamilton.

"Autographs are not just signatures of famous personalities," he points out, "but more properly letters, manuscripts or anything handwritten. An autograph gains most of its value by its historic significance, not just the signature at the end of the paper."

Thoughts

What is man that thou art mindful of him, and the son of man that thou dost care for him? Yet thou has made him little less than God, and dost crown him with glory and honor. — Psalm 8:4, 5.

"I believe that man will not merely endure: he will prevail. He is immortal, not because he alone among creatures has an inexhaustible voice, but because he has a soul, a spirit capable of compassion and sacrifice and endurance." — William Faulkner, American novelist.

Nicaragua Ambassador replies

I would like to refer to an article written by Jack Anderson on the personal activities of President Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua which appeared in the Progress Bulletin on Aug. 19.

May I point out, first of all, that it is a matter of long standing record that President Somoza has never denied his wealth. In fact, the President's ownership of properties and company interests is a matter of public record in Nicaragua as required by Nicaraguan laws which, to say the least, makes it totally unnecessary to "smuggle" such documents out of the country.

Of international importance is the published statement that Mr. Anderson compared his acquired information with "secret" U.S. Government documents. This curious statement is a grave one, if true, and could raise an issue of potential concern to other foreign missions in Washington, D.C. and elsewhere. This is a matter which could clearly fall within the competence of the U.S. Government to deal with.

The assertion made by Mr. Anderson associating the President with certain major international private enterprises in Nicaragua, such as cigarette companies, banks, and others, which is entirely unfounded, might be considered to have serious implications by the third parties alluded to.

Strong objections must be taken to the allegations linking the President to businesses of a questionable moral nature. These allegations, which are hereby emphatically denied and those others which, lacking in total integrity, resort to gross and unsubstantiated innuendoes, merit no respect.

Mr. Anderson's article is a litany of distortions and his gratuitious personal comments are not only in the poorest taste but are unworthy and slanderous.

In dedicating so much space to being critical of President Somoza's personal affairs, it is also to be regretted that Mr. Anderson did not see fit to balance the record by at least making some passing reference to his personal qualities and the many progressive policies and programs of his administration. Fair and balanced criticism is one thing, but it is difficult to see what real constructive purpose is served by this type of reporting.

It is perfectly true that I have been unavailable at the Embassy. As a matter of fact, I was in Managua where I remained to attend the presentation of credentials by your new Ambassador to Nicaragua, His Excellency James D. Theberge.

I would appreciate it if you would extend to me the courtesy of making known the contents of this letter to the readers of the Progress Bulletin.

Shah's arms snafu

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon has dispatched its top efficiency expert to Iran to straighten out a supply snarl, which is rapidly developing into the worst military foul-up in peacetime history.

The trouble shooter, Erich von Marbod, previously was rushed to Saigon during the final hours of the Vietnam War. He managed to salvage or destroy sensitive equipment, which the Pentagon wanted to keep out of communist hands.

Under the noses of the advancing communists, he hauled out uncrated electronic equipment on barges and flew out South Vietnamese planes. He saved the United States hundreds of millions of dollars.

Now von Marbod had been sent to Iran, as Defense Secretary James Schlesinger's personal representative, to work a new miracle.

The problem has been created by the Shah, who has squandered his oil billions on modern weapons faster than his armed forces can assimiliate them. In the past two years, he has ordered a staggering $6.4 billion worth of military hardware from the U.S.

As a result, mountains of munitions are piling up on Iranian docks and fields. Planes, Helicopters and other sophisticated weapons are left in crates for weeks, waiting to be assembled.

Iranian air crews simply can't be trained fast enough to operate all the aircraft that the eager Shah has thrust upon them. They were just learning to fly the F-4s when the Shah began buying F-5Es. Before the F-5E crews are broken in, the still more advanced F-14s will begin arriving.

It will be months before Iranian crews will be able to operate some of the complex new planes and helicopters. It will take even longer to train technicians to repair the intricate equipment when it breaks down. The Iranian Navy won't be able to man some of the new destroyers for two years.

The Pentagon has already assigned 2,000 military advisers, under the command of Maj. Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, to help the Iranians utilize their new equipment. But the U.S. technicians can't teach the Iranians the necessary skills as fast as the supplies are dumped on them.

The accumulation is mounting, meanwhile, with the biggest shipments yet to come. "The Shah has bitten off more than he can digest," said one source. Another conceded: "We are projecting a massive snafu."

It will be von Marbod's mission to save the Shah from his own haste. The Iranians are competent enough to operate a modern military machine once they're properly instructed. But it will take "a lot of show-and-tell," one source told us.

Von Marbod has a staff of eight crack experts, direct access to the top Pentagon brass and a reputation as a man "who gets things done." But this still may not be enough to transform Iran into a major military power overnight.

Footnote: One reason for the massive overbuying, commercial sources confide, is that most Iranian officials are corrupt. The big U.S. munitions makers keep representatives in Teheran. They are paid huge commissions, which they share with the Iranians who approve the purchases. The corrupt Iranians usually get a 10 per cent kickback; the more purchase orders they approve, therefore, the richer they get.

DRUG FILES — The Drug Enforcement Administration has invested heavily in grease pens to black out the sensitive paragraphs from files that they are compelled to divulge under the Freedom of Information law.

Officials explained to us that convicted drug pushers are using the law to try to overturn their sentences and mobsters are demanding file searches to seek the identities of confidential informants.

One active New York drug dealer sent in a formal inquiry, for example, demanding whether he was being investigated by federal agents. The DEA held back the information for the legal time limit, and then arrested him for selling heroin just before his question would have had to be answered.

The officials claim that as high as 90 per cent of the disclosure requests come from individuals directly or indirectly involved in the drug trade. "We can't fabricate a story or fail to respond," a senior DEA official told our associate Bob Owens. "All we can do is draft gobbledygook."

On the other hand, the DEA censors have been using their grease pens freely to keep information from the public. We invoked the Freedom of Information law, for example, to get the DEA file on us.

The file included a Sept. 11, 1973, memo about a column we had written. "The subject article," states the memo, "indicated that Jack Anderson was in possession of classified Justice Department documents." The rest of the memo, including the name of the official who wrote it, was blotted out.

THIEU'S TRIP — The real reason South Vietnam's deposed President Nguyen Van Thieu has applied for a visa to visit Britain, according to diplomatic sources, is to settle there. He, therefore, has reached an understanding with the British that his six-month visa will be considered "open ended."

He would prefer to live in the United States, but U.S. diplomats have talked him out of it. His arrival, they warned him, might touch off demonstrations. So he is now planning to reside in Britain where his son attends school.

Savings inflow

Heaviest August lending

NEW YORK (AP) — New money went into the nation's savings and loan association at a slower monthly pace in August, the U.S. League of Savings Associations reported today.

At the same time, the league said the nation's S&Ls made $5.7 billion in new mortgage loans to home buyers, making it the heaviest August lending period in the industry's history.

A league spokesman said mortgage lending had been rising for several months and much of the activity appeared to be in single-family housing.

The August new savings figure, or net inflow, totaled $1.2 billion, sharply lower than the $3.1 billion inflows of both June and July, but higher than the $1.1 billion savings outflow of a year ago.

"Earlier in the summer, savings were coming in in such big lumps it couldn't last forever," the spokesman said. He said the inflow decline in August probably meant that that some savers were putting their dollars to work in higher-yielding money market instruments such as certificates of deposit, where interest rates have been rising lately.

The league estimated that, at current rates, total 1975 savings inflows will reach $40 billion and new mortgage lending will approach $52 billion.

The league's monthly figures are based on reports from 903 savings associations representing about 49 per cent of the industry's total savings.

Just in jest

A reader writes all the way from the Desert Inn in Las Vegas to ask:

"Don't you agree that the perfect example of progressing from the sublime to the ridiculous is scented toilet tissue?"

Well, anyone who will take time out from the fleshpots and jackpots of Las Vegas to seek my advice has either shot his bankroll and has time to kill or else has happened onto something rather interesting in toilet tissue in Fun City's restrooms. In either case the writer is certainly deserving of an answer. So now comes my considered opinion.

Most assuredly scented toilet tissue is a perfect example of progressing from the sublime to the ridiculous. But why stop there? While we are about it why not give it credit for having gone all the way to the asinine?

Vets don't die, they rot away

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — While speaking to marine veterans of Guadalcanal during World War II, Eleanor Roosevelt was pelted with coins from an audience not really in the mood for platitudes or deference. Afterwards, the shaken Mrs. Roosevelt wondered aloud whether men subjected so long to war should not — even as the combat K-9's — be given some kind of training to help them readjust to the idea of nonviolent behavior.

The idea, lofty and altogether too idealistic, was rejected. Too bad. We are still learning of soldiers who, without aid, are sometimes tragically unable to readjust to peace. Today we call it the post-Vietnam Syndrome, and the jails, mental wards, bars and unemployment lines are peopled by our "boys" who can't cope.

William McFarland Jr. is one of them. His case has come to the attention of Dr. William Corson, a former marine colonel now coordinating a Vietnam veterans study program for Penthouse magazine. Forget the Penthouse reputation; Corson's program is a sober, if lonely, contribution to a vital matter. And McFarland is a ripe example of the screaming need for some light on the subject.

This then is Bill McFarland's story. It is not uplifting reading.

In 1965, the day after he learned of the death of a friend in Vietnam, McFarland, then 17 years old, enlisted in the army. He went to infantry school, airborne school, canine school, jungle advanced training and did graduate work in hand-to-hand combat.

He learned to kill in a variety of specialized ways.

When he turned 18, in 1966, he was sent to the First Infantry Division in Vietnam, then one of the most action-prone units in the war. The first dead man he saw was an American mutilated by the Viet Cong, "with his genitals sewn in his mouth." After that the sight of the dead became routine.

His sergeant died. His best pal was blown away. McFarland began smoking grass, boozing rotgut, and sniffing dope. Eventually he too was hit, in the legs, and after several months, six medals, and permanent disabilities, was sent home.

The absence of war, however, did not bring peace to McFarland. He claims the pain-killing agents given him while hospitalized were addicting. Also, he could not forget Vietnam (among those he killed, he says, were young children). He suffered blackouts, nightmares; he tried to kill himself. Six months after his discharge the veteran, just 19 years old, was judicially declared mentally incompetent.

A few years later, McFarland got into a squabble with a man on a California street. The man was killed. Bill McFarland was found guilty, given a sentence of five years to life and sent to prison.

Where he still is today.

Should he be? Decidedly not. Without passing distant judgment on the crime for which he was jailed, the case seems at least to be unfinished business. McFarland claims he was not competent to take part in his trial and did not assist his public defender. It was only after his guilt was established, as example, that McFarland, under clinical drugs, revealed his side of the story: That the victim had started the fight by pulling a gun, that McFarland went into a blind rage and that self-defense and mental instability were direct factors.

Beyond this there are professional opinions that, crime or no crime, McFarland is an emotional cripple, more in need of hospital than penal confinement. Dr. Bill Barkley, a staff psychologist for the California Department of Corrections, says flatly that clinical examinations of McFarland indicate: "His crime of murder is directly related to the fact he was a trained killer and also a heavy drug user." Barkley suggests, and logic agrees, the veteran be paroled to a Veterans Administration hospital where he can receive long needed care.

To be sure, McFarland has asked for the parole, but to no good end. Letters to federal and state authorities, including a governor and President, have resulted only in regrets. Meanwhile, this sad former soldier wastes away. Post-Vietnam Syndrome? It's more like a Post-Vietnam trap; everybody got him in, but nobody lets him out.

Ex-racing dog may be good pet

DEAR DR. MILLER: Because the owner knows I love dogs, and because I have the room for it, I've been offered Big Daddy, a retired racing greyhound. He really seems like a nice dog from what I can tell, but a friend has warned me they're an erratic, treacherous breed that'll go for your throat when they have a chance. Personally, as I say, I liked the dog, but with this kind of a warning, well, can you give me some advice on this? — K. V.

DEAR K. V.: Many greyhounds are hyper, high-strung dogs. They are, after all, bred for racing and have to be turned on to some degree off the track as well as on. This doesn't automatically mean they are neurotic, however. Far from it. Odds are there are a greater percentage of neurotic dogs among the more popular pet breeds today, due primarily to faulty breeding, than there are among greyhounds. The very fact that racing greyhounds are bred to ensure survival of the fittest insofar as athletic capabilities are concerned contributes to their mental soundness as well. A veterinarian can help you check out Big Daddy for psychological stability. He just could be an easy winner in that contest, too.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Stark, our parakeet, has this very unusual habit of eating cat food. I've never heard of a bird doing this before and wondered if it's good or bad for him. He seems very healthy so far. — K. A.

DEAR K. A.: The state of Stark's health might depend less on the nutritional value of cat food than on the cat. Presuming said food was purchased initially for a feline and that one is about, the greatest concern here would be that the cat didn't temporarily substitute fresh parakeet for prepared cat food. Nutritionally, from the parakeet's point of view, cat food would make an excellent supplement since its high protein content would fortify standard fare of parakeet seed which is, unfortunately, low in balanced protein.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I'm passing along a tip for cages with a mousey odor. Mix a teaspoon of oil of eucalyptus in a quart of water and mist this into the cage. It makes a great safe deodorizer. — A. O.

DEAR A. O.: Your deodorant dew can indeed prove helpful. However, a cage with a mousey odor is generally inhabited by mice, and an unsanitary cage is not a healthy one. Therefore daily cleaning with frequent scrubs is vital.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My horse was vaccinated for equine encephalitis this year. Why not? I figured it protected both him and me. Now some joker tells me snakes can give you encephalitis too. You can't go around vaccinating snakes. Is there anthing to do about that besides keeping clear of them — which I do anyway. — M.A.

DEAR M.A.: While snakes are potential carriers of viral equine encephalitis, you needn't worry too much about picking up the virus from one of the critters. Transmission of the virus from snakes to man has never been recorded.

How one kid handled pity

Dear Ann Landers: I identified strongly when I read that letter from the mother of the three-year-old child who had to wear a patch over one eye and strangers on the street kept coming over and asking, "What happened to the child?"

Our own youngster is now eight years of age. He had an eye problem last year and had to wear a patch for several weeks. One day when we were at the beach a nosy lady came over and looked at the boy with such pity it made me sick. Finally she asked the child, "What's the matter with your eye, dear?" Without a moment's hesitation he replied, "Nothing, lady. I'm a pirate."

Needless to say, the woman disappeared in no time flat. How's that for a snappy comeback? — From The Mouths Of Babes

Dear Babe: Beautiful. That son of yours sounds as if he's not going to have any trouble making his way in the world.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a harried women's editor for a daily newspaper. Many times you have gone to bat for members of other professions, so how about a little help for some of your own?

You wouldn't believe some of the "Requests To Print" that have hit this office. The handwriting is impossible to read, names misspelled, important facts and dates left out. Then we catch holy hell because the story wasn't "right."

Please ask your readers who send material to newspapers to observe the following rules:

Either type the message (double space) or write so we can read it. The person submitting the item should give his name, address and phone number in case more information is needed.

Stick to the basics in journalism: Who, What, When, Where, Why. Stay with the facts. Don't editorialize or exaggerate. (It isn't necessary to say your daughter is marrying the best-looking boy in his class.)

And please get the material to us in time. Old news is for history books.

Thanks, Ann. — S.D. From Tupelo, Miss.

Dear S.D.: Here are your helpful hints for the public. I hope it makes your job easier.

Dear Ann Landers: It has taken me five days to get up the courage to write this letter. I have also spent several hours looking in the dictionary for words that might make my letter printable. The subject isn't dirty but it isn't one people discuss in polite society. Please help me.

I am a 22-year-old male who plans to be married soon. I have never been circumcised. My fiancee tells me that women who are married to circumcised men have less chance of getting cancer of the cervix. I checked this out and she is correct.

Can the circumcision be done in a doctor's office? I hate hospitals. Is it worth the trouble? — Wish My Folks Had Given Me A Briss

Dear Wish: Circumcision is the cutting away of the male foreskin. It can be done in a doctor's office under anesthetic. Yes, it is somewhat painful but it's well worth the discomfort. In Biblical times it was done as a religious ritual — and like many religious rituals it had a solid basis in hygiene. I agree, it would have been a lot easier if your folks had given you a briss, but forgive them, and vow to do better by your sons.

How young is too young for a child to learn about sex? That's just one thing you'll find in Ann Landers's new booklet, "How, What and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." Send 50 cents in coin, along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Family picnic was no picnic

While sitting in the doctor's office last week awaiting my appointment, I leafed through a magazine that sent a chill down my spine.

It showed the Hemingway clan, Muffet, Puck and Margeaux, at a picnic in the mountains. It seems Muffet just authored a new book called, "The Picnic Gourmet," setting out to prove a picnic could be very special. To perform this miracle she chose a remote mountain spot by a cooling stream, cloth napkins and table cloth, enameled Chinese plates, big wine goblets, and of course a simple menu of cold watercress soup (kept cool in the stream), asparagus-wrapped ham, whole wheat bread baked by Muffet, strawberry daiquiris, chicken roasted and stuffed with wild garlic and herbs, yogurt, cucumbers and mint, banana cake and for a touch of the ordinary, four-bean salad.

You cannot imagine what this does to a woman who thought aspic was a ski resort in Colorado and turkey divan was a bad buy on a sofa.

Putting down the magazine, I couldn't help but remember our last family picnic.

We "chose" the last spot in the park . . . between the "facilities" and a camper full of kids whose father sat in a folding chair without a shirt drinking beer.

As I was cleaning the spilled baked beans out of the car trunk my husband noted the kids had left the lid open on the cooler and the ice had melted. Bacteria was moving in on the potato salad.

The older boy took charge of the hamburgers . . . throwing his body over a grill to reserve it, then yelling back for the charcoal, the charcoal lighter, the hamburger and the matches. We had everything but the matches.

We were seated around a stadium blanket when a motorcycle ran over the Twinkies. A Frizbee landed in the potato salad. Our youngest cut his foot on a flip-top cap and bled on the last two ice cubes. I checked on the Tab I had put in the stream to "chill." Someone had stolen it.

"What seems to be the trouble?" asked the nurse summoning me for my appointment.

"I have just developed a pain back here," I said.

"In the neck?" ("No, lower.")

"Your shoulder?" ("Lower.")

"Your back?" ("A little lower.")

"Here!" ("You got it!")

Salt won't cause constipation

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 50 years old and have been bothered with constipation for a long time. I use a lot of table salt on most everything I eat. My husband says this is the reason for my constipation. Your opinion, please.

DEAR READER — No. The salt is absorbed from your digestive tract and eliminated through your kidneys, as long as you have good kidney function. Too much salt, though, may be harmful to your kidneys or may even be related to developing high blood pressure. Moderation in salt use is a good idea.

Constipation is caused from many factors. The problem is often related to improper eating habits, unwise use of laxatives and poor bowel habits. It is usually possible to overcome these problems by changing your way of living. This involves changing in eating habits and bowel training.

The process is fairly involved but not difficult. If you want more details on constipation, write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Send 50 cents, a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, and ask for The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a stomach disorder which is driving me crazy. After I eat or drink almost anything I have a heavy feeling in my stomach accompanied by indigestion. If left unattended I usually end up belching up undigested food for hours. Although not painful, this is very annoying. To eliminate this discomfort I usually drink a glass of water mixed with baking soda, belch up the contents in my stomach, and find immediate relief.

I went to my doctor in regard to this approximately three years ago. After various tests were given (ulcer check, etc.) I was given a clean bill of health.

Last year I separated from my wife and within days these symptoms completely disappeared. Five months ago we went back together and — you guessed it — the symptoms returned, although our marriage seems much better.

Perhaps the problem is psychological and in turn creating physical havoc on my system, but this is an unprofessional guess, and even if accurate, where do I begin? Please help!

DEAR READER — Your unprofessional guess is probably right. You are describing esophageal or cardio-spasm. The spasm occurs in the muscles in the lower esophagus just where the esophagus joins the stomach.

Why do I think so? Because you said you belched up undigested food hours later. If the food had gotten into your stomach and had been there several hours it would be at least partially digested by the acid digestive juices in the stomach.

That is also why your doctor didn't see anything. The spasm comes and goes, like a muscle cramp. When you see a person with this problem and he doesn't have the spasm during the examination you can't see it or establish the diagnosis. It is like the intermittent rattle in your car. It is always gone when you get to the garage.

Go back to your family doctor and try again. He may be lucky enough to get X ray or fluoroscopy studies of you when you are in spasm. He can also refer you to a mental health clinic or psychologist for some professional counseling. You probably need to resolve some sources of conflict that are causing you anxiety and tension, and you won't be able to do it alone.

Just because something is psychological is no reason not to try to resolve it. The problem is just as real as if you had an irritation in your esophagus from some disease. Meanwhile, stop all cigarettes, coffee, colas and tea.

Opening lead — Q ♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Dinadan, the worst knight and bridge player, knows his limitations. He steers clear of challenges at both sword and card play. When Lancelot opened one no trump, Dinadan raised the peerless one to three instead of showing his five-card heart suit.

The defense started with four club tricks. Then, East shifted to a spade. Lancelot, who had discarded one spade from each hand, rose with his ace and started on diamonds.

He had no reason to try a finesse for the jack of that suit. When it failed to drop, it was all up to the heart suit.

Lancelot stopped to analyze the opening lead and decided that if West had been dealt a five-card major suit he would have led it. Hence, his distribution would be 4-4-2-3.

Thus hearts were going to break 4-2. After that analysis it was no problem to finesse against the jack of hearts and score the no trump game.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Quebec wants to know what he should have led from:

♠ 2 ♥ A Q 8 7 ♦ K Q 3 2 ♣ A Q 9 8

after his partner passed to his takeout double of a one spade opening bid.

There is an old expert convention here. This convention is when your partner passes your takeout double of a one bid, he wants you to lead a trump if you have one. Our correspondent should have opened his singleton trump.

Marmaduke

"You mean after forcing me ten blocks out of my way, you're all too broke to buy anything?"

Taller men more successful

Tall men are not more intelligent than short men, everybody knows that. But tall men generally are more successful. For instance, one study has shown that service station owners tend to be taller than the attendants who work for them. Extra height gives the taller fellows the psychological advantage of greater self-confidence, that's clear.

TO HIS LIST of reconditioned proverbs, our Language man has added Mrs. Walter R. Koch's lines: "One swallow does not make a drunk." "A Miss is as good as a Mrs." And: "A Bud in the hand is worth two in the Anheuser Busch."

LUNCH

Q. "What goes into that German sausage known as bockwurst?"

A. Veal, cream and eggs among other things. It's great. Let's break for lunch. Maybe I'll try bratwurst, instead. Its meat is flavored with ginger and coriander. Or polish sausage with its aroma of garlic and marjoram.

COUPLE MORE WORDS, each of which bears two exactly opposite meanings, are citation and sanction.

ARE YOU AWARE that 2,573 name brands of cars have been manufactured in this country since 1896? And that only a dozen have survived.

HOW PEOPLE got around to sleeping pajamas, I do not know. Can only report they were not originally intended to be sleeping attire. They were first used in India as lounging costumes.

JOE PENNER

Consider yourself a Seasoned Citizen, if you remember the burlesque comic Joe Penner, whose routine almost invariably included the query: "Want to buy a duck?" Why was that line funny? Most mysterious. Yet it brought the house down every time. Penner himself never understood it. In building his act, he originally asked: "Want to buy a horse?" Then: "Want to buy an elephant?" And; "Want to buy a giraffe?" Nobody laughed. But the audience always roared over the "duck" line.

CLIENTS CONTINUE to ridicule the claim that no deer killed instantly by a 30-30 bullet ever heard the sound of the shot. How do I know? they ask. Did I interview the dead deer? That's cutting. The velocity of a 30-30 bullet is about 2,200 feet a second. Sound doesn't travel that fast.

What people say

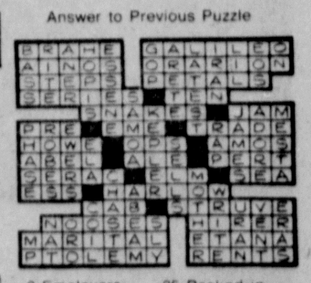

"Fat, whether it is called cellulite or just plain fat, has become America's most important natural resource. It can only be compared to offshore oil in terms of the number of people who are delighted to mine it."

— Harvard nutritionist Jean Mayer, quoted in the National Observer, in a report on "cellulite" reducing clinics that have sprung up recently.

OLDIES ARE GOODIES — The musicians in "The Generation Gap" haven't any gold records. But the group, the members of which range in age from 14 to 75, knows it's successful on the nursing home and hospital circuit in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. The band includes Irene Freisinger on piano and husband, Mike, on harmonica.

Nothing can be done to stop crime rate?

WASHINGTON (AP) — As robbers, rapists and murderers prey upon more and more Americans, many experts are conceding that little if anything can be done to stop it.

Some suggest that any politician who promises more is a fool but one who dares ignore the issue may be a bigger fool because many, many voters fear that they, too, may become victims.

The politicans and the professional crime-fighters may tinker with the system of police, prosecutors, courts and prisons and they may actually improve it in slow and small ways.

But whatever the improvements, those who deal with the problem say there's hardly a chance in a million that the nation's crime rate will drop significantly, quickly or permanently.

A collection of 15 men and women who have made it their business to fight crime or study it examined the problem with a group of reporters and editors last week in a conference sponsored by the Washington Journalism Center.

This group of liberal and conservative government officials, lawyers and researchers disagreed sharply on the changes that ought to be made in the sluggish and often unfair criminal justice system.

But all were pessimistic that any changes could bring about a swift national decline in those crimes which touch their victims most closely — murder, rape, assault, robbery, burglary, larceny and motor vehicle thefts.

The nation's crime rate, based on the number of those seven offenses reported to police, rose 17 per cent last year and the upward trend is continuing at about the same rate this year. Other studies indicate that the number of crimes actually committed may be two or three times as much as is reported to police.

"I don't feel the crime situation will improve immediately. We're in for a long, hard fight. It's going to get worse before it gets better," said Charles R. Work, deputy chief of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

One by one, they recited a familiar litany of conditions which form the conventional but unproven wisdom about why people rob and kill their relatives, their neighbors, and strangers on the street.

Poverty, unemployment, two hundred years of discrimination by the rich against the poor and whites against blacks. Those conditions lead the list for political liberals.

The conservatives tend to start their recitation with the breakdown of the family, the dwindling influence of the church, and the shattered discipline of the schools.

Perhaps the liberals are closer to the mark, perhaps the conservatives are. But the crime experts at this conference and others say they know of no solid research identifying the causes of crime.

As Georgetown University law professor Sam Dash pointed out, people have offered the same guesses for decades. A Johnson administration crime commission came to about the same conclusions in 1966 as another government crime commission did in 1937.

Though handicapped by the lack of knowledge about what causes crime, the experts suggest some ways of dealing with it.

The most optimistic say the changes they advocate might make a small dent in the frequency of crime. Others argue only that the changes will improve and speed up the way the system treats criminals and their victims.

Restore the death penalty because that is a real deterrent to crime, argue police spokesman King and such political figures as Republican Ronald Reagan and Democrat George Wallace.

No, replies Washington lawyer E. Barrett Prettyman Jr., who has researched the death penalty issue extensively. He says statistics show that the highest murder rates have occurred in states with the death penalty.

Regardless of the effectiveness of capital punishment in deterring crime, perhaps the people will demand it. An Ohio newspaper editor remarks, "I think we're an Old Testament nation. There is something in us, perhaps savage, that is only going to be satisfied by a permanent, visible and drastic punishment."

Prettyman responded, "If we do have these savage impulses, I would hope we could get rid of them in some way other than putting someone to death."

The issue of what to do with criminals once they're in prison provokes sharp disagreement, but more and more policymakers and scholars are leaning toward the view that rehabilitation doesn't work.

"It's a joke to say anybody is getting rehabilitated in prison. We're just putting them in storage," argued Edward Bennett Williams, the high-priced and highly effective Washington lawyer.

"I don't agree with those who say rehabilitation doesn't work because I don't think we've tried much of it," contended Patrick Murphy, who runs the private research-oriented Police Foundation and at one time or another was police chief in New York City, Washington and Detroit.

"I'm not one of those people who think there's no hope for rehabilitation," added Work of the LEAA, which spends nearly $1 billion a year of the taxpayers' money on programs to fight crime.

But those who argue for continued effort to find ways to rehabilitate some offenders agree with their opponents that halfway houses, job training programs and the like probably aren't going to work with the career criminal.

Work said he senses a "remarkable degree of unanimity between the traditional left and right that something ought to be done about the recidivist."

The statistics indicate that most violent crimes are committed by men under 35, many of them repeaters.

There is a trend among the crime experts to argue that those offenders should be locked up, not with any hope of rehabilitating them, but simply to keep them from harming society for at least those months or years they are behind bars.

Santarelli put it as bluntly as anyone. "If you locked up everybody you convicted until age 35, you'd have no recidivism. The drive to commit crime is gone by 35."

This group of thinkers about crime tossed around some other ideas, few of them new, some modest, some outrageous.

Glen King suggested administering a truth serum to defendants at their trial to determine whether they committed the offense charged. Mitigating circumstances and punishment could be considered by the attorneys and the judge later, he says.

"A federal judge ought to make at least $60,000 a year," grand juries ought to be abolished in most cases, and trials should be videotaped to speed up the process, suggested Williams.

There should be some experimenting with a system of requiring offenders to make restitution to their victims, some others said.

"Full employment," Murphy proposed.

But Jerry Wilson, District of Columbia police chief for five years and now a crime researcher and writer, offered the simplest proposal: "I have sort of a gut feeling that if less attention were paid to crime, we'd be better off."

But players' strike unlikely

Owner's offer rejected

By Associated Press

The first three National Football League teams to vote on management's latest contract offer have turned it down. The Philadelphia Eagles joined the Houston Oilers and Buffalo Bills today in taking the action.

And once again the threat of more player unrest looms ever larger in a contract dispute which has been going on for nearly 20 months. Despite the negative reaction to the offer, though, the chances of another players' strike appeared very slim.

The Eagles voted today 24-18 to reject the contract, but insisted the action was not a strike vote. On Wednesday, the Houston Oilers voted unanimously—by a 43-0 count—to reject the latest proposal by the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining arm. And the Buffalo Bills issued a 42-1 vote in opposition.

Thus, the count against the offer stood at 109-19 to reject.

The offer submitted last Monday in a meeting in Chicago between the NFLMC and NFL Players Association was termed by the owners "our best shot." But the NFLPA simply passed it on to its union members without a recommendation—and there were reliable reports that Kermit Alexander, president of the union, and the rest of the NFLPA leaders were almost wholly against it.

The union leaders had said Tuesday, when the talks broke off, that the teams would probably start voting today.

But the Oilers and Bills, clubs which refused to join last week's five-team walkout triggered by the New Englans Patriots, got the jump on the other 24 teams—and it appeared they were setting the tone for the voting.

Spokesmen for several other teams expressed their opinions that, when their ballots were counted today, the votes against the owners' offer would be similarly overwhelming.

"I feel certain it will be rejected because it was not recommended by the union," said Atlanta Falcons' player representative John Zook. But when asked if the Falcons would strike, Zook replied: "I would doubt that."

Brig Owens, the Washington Redskins' player rep, predicted firmly: "It's going to be a cut-and-dried against." But he said nothing about the possibility of a Washington walkout.

Tom Banks, player rep of the St. Louis Cardinals, said he expected a negative vote because "we were disappointed that they (the owners) didn't come in prepared to do any negotiating.

"They didn't come in prepared for any give-and-take on any given subject," Banks said. "Before, they had stated to the Patriots they were going to come into Chicago and have up to three days negotiating."

Player rep Skip Butler said that, despite Houston's blanket rejection of the management offer, the Oilers would still play their home opener against San Diego on Sunday.

"We understood when we went up there (to Chicago) that we had three days to negotiate and then take a vote," Butler said. "But when we got there, this supposedly was their best shot—their final, final, final offer. It amounted to take it or leave it."

Buffalo player rep Reggie McKenzie said simply that the Bills "rejected the contract, but we have no plans to strike at all."

That vote followed presentations by center Mike Montler and team owner Ralph C. Wilson Jr. One Buffalo player said Montler went to negotiations in Chicago "as anti-union and promanagement. But on the basis of what he heard there, he really did a 180-degree turn."

Although there are nearly 1,200 active players in the league, the only ones voting will be the members of the union, the 950 or so who have paid their dues or pledged to do so. The verdict will be determined by a simple majority.

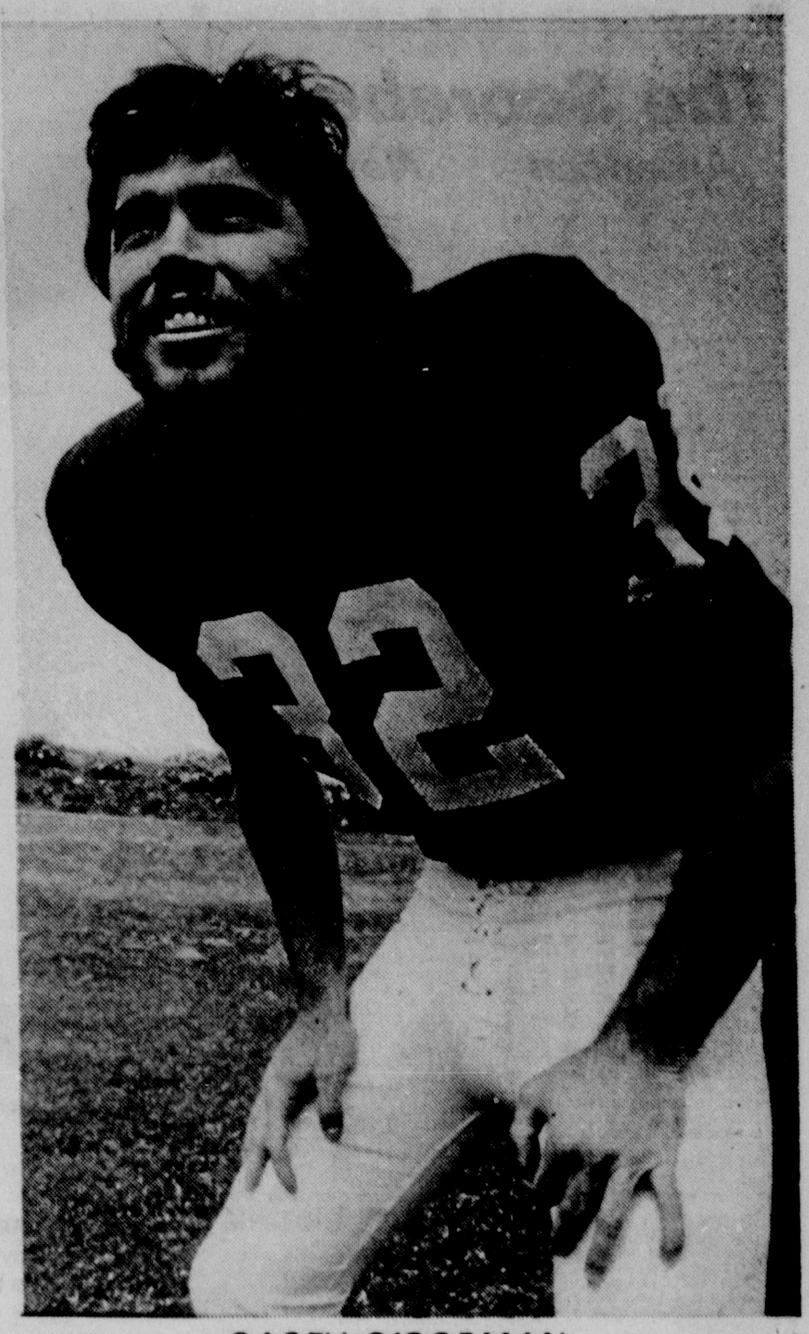

And if that verdict is to reject—as it appears almost certain—the next step will be up to the players. They'll have to decide whether to strike for a third time in 14 months, try to negotiate again or continue to play without a contract as they've done since Feb. 1, 1974.

Ed Garvey, the executive director of the union, has indicated Monday's four-year offer would have been acceptable based on the main economic items such as insurance benefits and pensions. The players' pension fund, by the way, is in danger of going broke if a new contract isn't signed this year.

But it was seven so-called non-economic items which continued the stalemate. They are the Rozelle Rule, impartial arbitration of grievances, representation on the retirement board, squad size, an agency shop, preseason pay and bargaining changes in the league's constitution and by-laws.

If more negotiations are held, it has been learned that management would begin talking with an offer not as good as the one now being voted on.

Fifth A.L. West crown for A's

By The Associated Press

The Oakland A's clinched their fifth straight American League West title Wednesday night, routing the Chicago White Sox 13-2 behind Reggie Jackson's two home runs.

By snapping a three-game losing streak, baseball's three-time world champions eliminated Kansas City, second by five games in the West with four games remaining. The Royals beat Minnesota 4-2 earlier Wednesday night.

In a National League game, the Chicago Cubs were held hitless by Tom Seaver for 8 2-3 innings before rookie Joe Wallis singled, then the Cubs beat the New York Mets 1-0 in 11 innings on reliever Skip Lockwood's bases-loaded walk.

In the rest of the AL, Baltimore belted Detroit 8-1 and Milwaukee ripped Cleveland 10-3. In other NL games, Los Angeles shelled San Diego 14-0, Philadelphia routed Pittsburgh 8-1, Cincinnati topped Houston 6-4, Montreal beat St. Louis 6-2 and Atlanta defeated San Francisco 7-6.

Jackson raised his home run total to 34, tying him with Milwaukee's George Scott for the AL lead, by hitting a two-run shot in the first inning and adding a bases-empty homer in the third. Vida Blue coasted to his 21st victory behind the 13-hit attack. Claudell Washington had a two-run triple and Sal Bando contributed a two-run single.

Paul Blair drove in three runs and Lee May added two RBI to help Jim Palmer notch his 22nd victory as the Orioles moved within 3½ games of first-place Boston in the AL East. Boston was rained out of its twi-night twinbill in New York and the Red Sox' magic number for clinching the AL East title remained at four.

After Wallis' single, Seaver, who twice has come within two outs of a no-hitter, retired the side to complete his fifth one-hitter through nine innings, then gave up two hits in the 10th before being lifted for a pinch-hitter. In the 11th, Lockwood gave up a leadoff single to Monday and walked Wallis. Jose Cardenal sacrificed, then Andy Thornton was intentionally walked before Bill Madlock drew the game-winning walk.

George Brett's tie-breaking single in the eighth inning enabled Kansas City to beat Minnesota. Scott drove in four runs with a double and his 34th homer to power the Brewers past the Indians.

Larry Parrish's homer and Don Carrithers' nine-hitter led Montreal past the Cardinals. Dusty Baker singled in the tying run and scored the winner on a bases-loaded walk in the 11th inning to give the Braves their victory over San Francisco. The second game of the twinbill was rained out and cancelled.

O'Gorman has high goals

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

"Senioritis" is something that never seems to affect football players at La Verne College.

Latest example of this is cornerback Casey O'Gorman. O'Gorman, a three year starter from Pomona High, was credited with 13 tackles and four assists in the Leopards' opener last Saturday.

"I have a goal," the 5-10, 175-pound senior admitted. "I'm trying to make more interceptions and as many tackles as I had last year."

In 1974 O'Gorman was credited with 156 tackles and five interceptions in the Leos' 5-5 season. But Casey is still trying to figure out what happened.

"In my sophomore year, I made 90 tackles and had one interception and made first-team All District," he grinned. "So I wanted to break 100 my junior year. I got 156 tackles and five interceptions, made All-SCIAC first team but was DROPPED to second team on the All-District selections."

O'Gorman, a P.E. and Social Science major, is enthused about the 1975 Leos.

"I think offensively we are stronger than any year since I've been here," he said. "Defensively, we're not quite as strong as in the past right now because of losing people through graduation.

"But we've got the players and after one or two more games, I think we'll jell. I think we have the best chance to win the conference title since I've been here. We don't open conference play until Oct. 25 and we'll be at our peak by then."

When he finishes college, O'Gorman wants to teach and coach and eventually get into administration.

"I work two days a week (eight hours a day) as a proctor at Charter Oak High," he said. "I hope through athletics I can get into coaching and through coaching get on as a substitute teacher in this district and work up to vice principal or something like that."

O'Gorman, whose family owns horses, likes riding, snow skiing and most outdoor activities. The last two summers he played Civic League softball in Pomona.

His team, the "Rookies," won their "C" League title with a 15-0 record this summer. Casey played first base and led the team in hitting with a .600 average.

"I played Colt League baseball as a kid," he said, "but I never went out for any varsity sport but football in high school. We had spring football practice and that was at the same time as the baseball and track seasons. I did play a couple games of soccer when they needed someone to fill in."

Asked about playing football at La Verne where the philosophy on football is different than at most schools, O'Gorman reminded the writer that he plays defense.

"With Ben (Hines) as defensive coach, we work a little harder and there's a little more discipline than there is on offense," he said. "But we still have fun and we get a lot accomplished.

"This year the offense is working harder and is getting more discipline because they have another coach, Joe Davalos, who is a La Verne grad and an ex lineman. He's helped the line a lot and I think the work of the offensive line is our big improvement."

Discipline is something Casey imposes on himself. Wednesday was Beach Day at La Verne and the whole school including the football team usually takes part.

But it was O'Gorman's day to work as a proctor at Charter Oak. He missed the trip to the beach but was at La Verne for football practice.

That's discipline.

Garvey goes for long ball

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Los Angeles first baseman Steve Garvey says he is going for the long ball even though he leads Pete Rose and Dave Cash, 207 to 205, in their three-cornered battle for the most hits in the National League this season.

"A couple of days ago, after I got my 200th hit, I decided to try and hit some more home runs," Garvey said Wednesday night after he drove in six runs with two homers, a single and double in the 14-0 rout of the Padres.

The homers were his 16th and 17th and raised his RBI total to 93.

"Still, the hit race is important to me for the simple reason that the leader shows that consistency pays off. I'm in a race with two great competitors (Rose and Cash)—two people I admire offensively and defensively.

"I haven't gone for home runs this year," added last year's most valuable player in the NL, "because I've concentrated on getting on base for the people hitting behind me."

Third baseman Ron Cey, who bats behind Garvey, raised his RBI total to 101 Wednesday night when he hit a two-run homer, his 25th of the year. That's a Dodger record for a third baseman.

Lee Lacy, who had four hits, and Jim Wynn also knocked in two runs apiece to spearhead an 18-hit Los Angeles attack that enabled Dodger lefthander Doug Rau to breeze to his 15th victory in 24 decisions.

"I really was concentrating on winning No. 15," said Rau, who hurled a six-hitter, "and I was going for a shutout, even with the big lead I had."

The Dodger hit and run totals off Rich Folkers, 6-11, Jerry Johnson, Butch Metzger, Dave Tomlin and Joe McIntosh were both season highs. By salvaging the finale of this series, the Dodgers finished with an 11-7 edge over San Diego for the year.

However, the Padres are three games ahead of fifth-place Atlanta as they prepare for their final four games, all here against San Francisco.

Bill Greif, 4-6, is to work tonight's series opener against Giants lefthander Pete Falcone, 12-11.

The Dodgers, idle tonight, will begin their final series Friday night at home against Houston as righthander Burt Hooton, (17-9), bids for his 12th straight victory.

Ryan calls season a frustrating time

HOUSTON (AP) — The average major league pitcher would consider a 14-12 record and pitching his fourth career no-hitter a satisfying season.

California Angels no-hit artist Nolan Ryan considered it frustrating because of painful bone chips in his elbow that caused his season to end prematurely on the operating table.

"It was the most frustrating season in my career because I got off to such a good start," said Ryan, who is recovering at a hospital here from surgery to remove four bone chips.

"It got to the point that my arm wasn't coming back after four days rest," recalled the fireballer, who pitched his fourth career no-hitter on June 1 to equal the major league record held previously by Sandy Koufax.

"Then I started getting other injuries because I was favoring the arm," Ryan said. "All I knew was I couldn't continue pitching like I did this summer. It was only a matter of time before I would injure my shoulder or something else from favoring my arm."

Ryan's 1975 no-hitter against the Baltimore Orioles gave the Alvin, Tex. resident a 9-3 record. But the pain, which had been there from the first game, grew worse and Ryan won only five of his next 14 decisions before doctors decided on surgery.

Ryan's problems started in spring training with a pulled calf muscle that allowed him to pitch only 11 innings during spring training.

"It would bother me the next day (after pitching) and my arm would draw up some," said Ryan, who holds the major league one-season strikeout record of 383.

Gary Davis has big day

Gary Davis, a graduate of Pomona's Garey High, was selected the CCAA's Co-Offensive Player of the Week after rushing for 141 yards and three touchdowns for Cal Poly San Luis Obispo in the opening 35-29 loss at Boise State.

Davis, a senior, led the CCAA in rushing last year with 880 yards.

He shares offensive honors with Butch Johnson, UC Riverside flanker, who caught 12 passes for 247 yards in 31-22 loss to UC Davis. Johnson set UCR career record with 97 receptions.

Cal Poly Pomona's Jim Poettgen earned defensive honors for intercepting two passes — one for a touchdown — in the Broncos' 41-17 whippnig of Cal State Hayward.

Goodrich, Lakers far apart on contract

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More than $100,000 a year is separating veteran guard Gail Goodrich and the Los Angeles Lakers, the Los Angeles Times says.

Quoting an unnamed reliable source, the Times said in its Thursday editions that Laker owner Jack Kent Cooke has offered Goodrich a five-year contract for $1 million. But Goodrich, who reportedly received about $140,000 last year, wants the $1 million in a three-year pact.

That leaves a gap of about $133,000 a year.

Goodrich is not expected in camp as the Lakers begin training today. Another Laker guard, Pat Riley, is reportedly unsigned, as well.

Larry Fleisher, an attorney representing Goodrich, said, "We're not close to an agreement, but we're as close as a 30-second phone call."

Laker general manager Pete Newell said, "We are apart right now, but I'm hopeful Gail will be here very soon."

Although he said he did not want to become involved in contract disputes, Laker Coach Bill Sharman said, "I always remember that the only year we had everyone here from the beginning (1972), we won the championship."

With the addition of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who came to the Lakers in a trade from the Milwaukee Bucks, the Lakers have been mentioned as a prime contender for the National Basketball Association championship this year.

ABA teams want to join NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Nets and Denver Nuggets, the most attractive teams in the American Basketball Association, applied today for admission to the more established National Basketball Association in moves that could seriously damage the ABA's future.

The Associated Press learned of the developments Wednesday, and the NBA and the Nets, in similarly worded statements, confirmed them in the morning.

"We have received applications from the Denver Nuggets and New York Nets for admission to the NBA," Commissioner Larry O'Brien said in a statement read to reporters.

'Our constitution specifically provides for an investigation by the commissioner and the submission of any other information the commissioner deems relevant.

"We intend to give these applications the serious consideration they deserve and we will proceed expeditiously with full cognizance of the ramifications involved, including applicable court orders."

Following the NBA announcement, Nets owner Roy Boe issued a prepared statement: "We have on Wednesday, Sept. 24th, delivered a letter to Commissioner O'Brien of the NBA requesting an application to join the NBA for the 1976-1977 season.

"We expect our application to be processed expeditiously by the NBA in accordance with its normal procedure and consistent with applicable federal court orders."

Both O'Brien and Boe then refused to answer any questions beyond what was in the prepared statements. The Nuggets scheduled a 1 p.m., EDT, press conference.

Sources high in both leagues said the NBA hierarchy has supported and helped formulate the moves which are designed to bring the Nets and Nuggets into the league as expansion franchises in 1976.

In another development, attorneys for the Nets and Nuggets met this morning with U.S. District Court Judge Robert L. Carter in New York. It was not known what transpired in that meeting, but Carter has made rulings which would block a merger of the two leagues and the two ABA clubs were anxious to claim their moves are expansion, not merger.

The moves, if successful, would strike a serious blow at the ABA when it is beginning to challenge the NBA on most fronts.

The scenario, which could result in the expansion of the 18-team NBA into four five-team divisions next year and move such players as Julius Erving, David Thompson and Marvin Webster into the league, began unfolding at least one month ago. As told by sources in both leagues, this is what happened:

—Boe and Scheer, wishing to reopen negotiations on a merger of the two leagues, approached the NBA about making an application for membership. Their intent at the time was to try to force a merger.

—They invited the ABA champion Kentucky Colonels to join them. Brown confirmed that and said he and his wife Ellie, who owns the club, declined.

—Boe and Scheer were told by the NBA that a merger was not possible. At the same time, they were told it was entirely possible they could join the league, that, indeed, the NBA would like to have them.

—Then negotiations began on possible fees the two clubs would pay to join as expansion franchises. Denver and New York balked at paying the $6.15 million sum charged the last expansion club because most of that fee was to reimburse other clubs for supplying players. Denver and New York don't need players.

No agreement has been reached on a fee schedule, the sources said. Among the alternatives discussed, they said, were payments of $500,000 a year for several years by each club and-or agreement that the teams would not share in television revenue for several years.

Public asked to workouts

ARCADIA — The public is invited to the free morning workouts at Santa Anita Park beginning Saturday, as the Thoroughbreds prepare for the upcoming Oak Tree racing season. Oak Tree opens one week later, Saturday, Oct. 4.

Highlighting the workout program is the free stable tour aboard open air trams hosted by former rider Ken Church. The tours run approximately every 20 minutes and are featured each weekend throughout the meeting.

Defensive tackle Wayne Baker of the San Francisco 49ers says he worked six summers as a lumberjack in Montana.

GETTING READY — MSAC water poloists Dave Correa and Dave Talley battle for the ball in a scrimmage in preparation for Mountie Invitational water polo tourney, Friday and Saturday at MSAC.

MSAC poloists host tourney

For the first time San Jose City College and UC Santa Barbara will travel to Walnut to compete in the Mountie Invitational Water Polo Championships, Friday and Saturday at Mt. San Antonio College.

Fullerton College will be defending the state title it has monopolized for the past two years.

San Jose, Golden West and Orange Coast were all in the top six places in the state championships last year. MSAC missed the 1974 state championship by an overtime loss to Golden West in the regionals, elevating the Rustlers to the state finals.

No. 1 seeded Fullerton will be looking to All-American Rheet Price and defensive men Joe Cote and Kevin Hopp to lead the Hornets. Coach Ernie Polte's team will be playing its season opener against Orange Coast's "B" team in the first game of the tournament Friday at noon.

MSAC is expected to field as strong a team as the college has ever had. All-American Chris Vargas and Phil Sanchez have looked sharp on offense and Dave Correa and Scott Trautz have been anchor men on defense. The 19-man team has been training twice a day since school opened.

San Jose City College mentor Bob Jones rates his team, which finished fourth in the state last year, as certainly as strong as Golden West and Orange Coast were last year.

Don Caskey, picked to the All-Tournament team at the state championships last December, will lead Tom Hermstad's Golden West team into the tournament.

Orange Coast has seven returning sophomores led by forward David Lund who scored 44 goals for the Pirates in 1974. Lund is supported by teammates Craig Farmer, Mike Bobrott, Steve Smith, Mike Mitchell and Mike Swenson.

Admission is $1 for adults, free for all children. The tournament starts promptly at noon Friday and runs continuously until 10 p.m. Saturday morning MSAC and San Jose meet at 8 a.m. with other games starting almost hourly until 7 p.m.

Punter won't go

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA's regular punter will not accompany the team to play Air Force this Saturday because of a new NCAA rule limiting the size of visiting teams to 48 men.

A team spokesman said Bruin Coach Dick Vermeil decided Wednesday that place kicker Brett White would also handle the punting, and punter John Sullivan will not make the trip.

The spokesman said defensive back Oscar Edwards would return to action in the Air Force game after missing last week's game because of a puled leg muscle. Also, Jack DeMartinis, a starting offensive tackle, is reported to be recovered from a pulled thigh muscle.

Pistons obtain Clark

DETROIT (AP) — Veteran guard Archie Clark, who has averaged 17.4 points per game in nine National Basketball Association seasons, has been acquired by the Detroit Pistons from the Seattle SuperSonics.

In return for the 6-foot-2 Clark, the Pistons gave the SuperSonics their No. 1 draft choice in 1978.

The Pistons are expected to officially announce the deal at a news conferece today.

Detroit will be Clark's fifth NBA team since graduating from the University of Minnesota in 1966. Previously, he played for Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Seattle.

His best season was 1971-72 when he averaged 25.2 points per game.

Hoople revamps forecast system

By MAJOR HOOPLE
Peerless Prognosticator

Jove, when that immortal bard Willie Shakespeare wrote about "the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" he must have had your humble football handicapper in mind!

Modesty dictates that I point out to you readers the fact that, har-rumph, the Hoople system did less than its usual outstanding best last week in predicting the local high school grid results. (Editor's note: What the old windbag is trying to say is that he tabbed only four high school games correctly out of the 17 played!)

However, never fear dear followers! I have revamped my prediction system for this week's picks, and can state unequivocally that I'm fully recovered from my opening week jitters. Here is how the Hoople system sees 'em:

Look for plenty of excitement once again on the high school scene, and some eye-opening upsets as well. For starters, look for the American Christian Minutemen to win their first game ever, downing Calvary Baptist 36-24. Paul Revere would have been proud of you, boys!

In contests involving the bigger schools, the Hoople magic foresees Damien, Chino, Montclair, Walnut and Ontario Christian continuing on the winning side of the ledger this weekend.

The spiffy Spartans will turn in their second straight shutout, this one a 17-0 blanking of Duarte. Chino's Cowboys will have it a little tougher, but figure to prevail over Sierra Vista 16-12. Also a narrow winner will be Montclair, a projected 21-19 winner over valley rival Ontario.

The Mustangs from out Walnut way look to get past Rowland 28-21 in another local war, while in yet another game pitting two area prep squads the Ontario Christian Knights will crown Webb School 14-13. Kaff-kaff!

However, feel sorry dear readers for Claremont, Ganesha, Pomona and Bonita. All four squads square off against top-flight competition this time around and figure to take it on the chin.

Moving along now to the colleges, our local lads should be in higher spirits than a leprechaun on St. Pat's day following Saturday's results.

Cal Poly, pointing towards its best year since my dear spouse Martha had her own teeth (I'll regret that in the morning!), will be on the winning track again, outscoring Northern Arizona in a wild and wooly 33-28 contest at Kellogg Field.

Egad, Vinci's troops just might be for real!

Our Claremont-Mudd Stags also will provide plenty of action, as they figure to outscore St. Mary's 30-27. Only foreseeable loser among the six area colleges in action this weekend is Pomona-Pitzer. The Sagehens will cackle and crow enough to give USIU a fight of it, but in the end it will be visiting San Diego school egging them on 34-21. That prediction will ruffle a few feathers among P-P grid followers!

Our other four-year school, La Verne, should remain unbeaten as the Leos will stop the University of San Diego 36-18.

On the JC level, both Chaffey and MSAC should be able to hit the win column for the first time this season. The Hoople charts predict a 24-21 win for the Mounties over Golden West and a 27-21 victory for the Panthers over Imperial Valley.

Saturday is loaded with prime engagements starting with UCLA's invasion of Colorado to meet the Air Force Falcons. The Bruins aerial attack triggered by John Sciarra will shoot down the Falcons, 28-12. The North Carolina Tar Heels have the unenviable task of hosting the mighty Ohio State Buckeyes. The Hoople System gives the nod to Archie Griffin and Company by a 38-14 count.

We see another big day for John McKay's Trojans as they romp over Purdue, 42-21.

Diamond Bar team enjoys 10-0 victory

The Pacific Soccer League season began last weekend with two of the four valley teams recording wins.

In a Division IV match, the Diamond Bar Kickers shut out the Claremont Stars 10-0. Scoring for the Kickers were Paul Caligiuri (3), Michael Brocki (2), Jeff Hooker (2), Robert Beaird (1), Guy Pagan (1), and Jeff Ratajczak (1).

In Division III play the Claremont Stars defeated the Pomona Renegades, 8-1. Allen Pitts, Henry Gonzalez, and Chris Jollymour each scored twice for the Stars with the other two goals being scored by Teddy Swick and Jesse Albert. Andy Sorian scored the Renegade goal.

The Torrance South Bay Gunners defeated the Claremont Kings, 4-1, in a Division II match. Matt Smith scored the lone goal for the Kings.

This Saturday, the Kickers play the Torrance South Bay Arsenal at 12:30 p.m. and the Renegades play the Torrance Vikings at 2 p.m., both games at El Roble Intermediate School. Division III Claremont Stars play the Palos Verdes Rovers. Division IV Claremont Stars play the Torrance Vikings, and the Claremont Kings play Artesia in away games.

Meeting set for softball

The Claremont Parks and Recreation Department will hold an organizational meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the Memorial Park office for a men's slow-pitch softball league.

All entries will be accepted on a first-pay basis.

The fee is $60 a team, with a maximum of 12 teams.

The league season will start Oct. 4 and end Dec. 13, with Saturday games played at 11 a.m., 1 and 3 p.m. at Cahuilla Park.

The league will be called the Turkey League because teams finishing first in three divisions will receive turkeys as trophies.

The city will not sponsor a women's league because of lack of staff.

MSAC coach feels first win is near

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

Mt. San Antonio College is still looking for its first football victory after two outings into the 1975 season but head Coach Mal Eaton thinks this may be his team's week.

The Mounties make their home debut Saturday night against Golden West, a team which was highly touted in pre-season polls, but which has lost twice also.

Both the Mounties and the Rustlers have played two very good teams so it's probably too early to judge them harshly.

Eaton noted last week's improvement in a 28-6 loss at Pasadena City College in which MSAC gained 200 more yards in total offense than it was able to muster against Citrus in a 37-12 loss in the season opener.

Eaton, in his fifth season as head coach at the valley's largest community college, is taking every opportunity to give his players a chance to win a job and win some games.

Against Pasadena, Eaton stationed himself above the field in the pressbox, directing the action on the field with a set of head phones.

"The worst seat in the house is on the sidelines," Eaton pointed out early this week. "I wanted to get a better perspective on what we were doing. I was able to see things and call plays to correct them that I ordinarily wouldn't have seen first hand until the films."

What the coach saw was an inexperienced squad making a lot of mistakes, but not giving up, which was encouraging.

"I think things are beginning to fall into place. The kids are starting to get used to each other and used to college football. If we improve as much this week as we did last week, we're going to do something."

Eaton was pleased with the play of his three quarterbacks who were alternated on each play.

Flavio Garcia, a freshman from Rowland High, probably earned this week's start against Golden West with a 12 for 15 performance passing. He accumulated 156 yards with his tosses and has been the most productive thrower in two games with a .720 percentage (18 of 25) for 204 yards and one TD. Greg Gano of West Covina is not far off that pace with 10 of 17 completions for 91 yards. Steve Taylor who has been the starter in each game has completed 4 of 11 for 23 yards and one touchdown.

"We haven't given up on any of the quarterbacks yet," Eaton emphasized. "When we've had a breakdown offensively, it's usually been because of a missed blocking assignment, not the quarterback's fault."

Because the passing game has begun to work for the Mounties, they have an edge over Golden West, which has been vulnerable through the air. Last weekend in a 31-14 loss to Orange Coast, the Rustlers gave up 258 passing yards, including touchdowns of 67, 52 and 46 yards.

The Rustlers' first loss was to 1974 state JC champion East L.A., which had to struggle, 17-13.

While unbeaten Citrus takes a week off before meeting highly regarded Rio Hondo, Coach Willie Richardson and his Chaffey Panthers hope to regroup from last week's opener, a 51-8 walloping administered by Santa Barbara.

"We really didn't know much about them when we went in," said Richardson this week. "We know a little more about Imperial Valley. They took the measure of Grossmont in a scrimmage."

The Panthers face the desert team Saturday night at Chaffey Stadium in Alta Loma at 7:30 p.m.

Undeterred by the one-sided loss to Santa Barbara, Richardson sees hope for the Panthers.

"I still think we have a good football team," he says. "We had some good individual performances and I think we'll come around as a team."

Richardson made mention of quarterbacks Jamie Broecker and Bill Childress, wide receiver Greg Lester and running backs Marcus Jennings and Randy Campbell.

Pomonan likes chances at Poly

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Bobby Costeldia has great hopes of finally playing for a winner.

That is why the big (6-foot-6, 285 pounds) offensive tackle is delighted about Cal Poly's easy wins in the opening two games.

"I have never played on a winning team" Costeldia said Wednesday while awaiting evening practice at Poly. "This is a new experience for me. It really feels great to run over a team like we did against Chico."

The Garey High and Mt. San Antonio College product is looking forward to Saturday night's home game against Northern Arizona.

"This is a very important game for us," Costeldia explained. "We know Northern Arizona will give us more of a test. This game should serve as the key to our season. We have to go out and show them."

Like most of the Broncos, Costeldia has big goals.

"Our goal is to go all the way to the national championship," he exclaimed.

Costeldia says he enjoys football a lot more than his high school days at Garey.

"I've always been big," he explained. "I was never that outstanding in high school because the players were smaller and I couldn't move that well."

It looked like his football career was over after Garey. But after being on the sidelines for two years working, Costeldia decided to give football a try again and contacted MSAC Coach Mal Eaton.

"Eaton switched me to the offensive line," Costeldia said. "I got a little quicker and learned to like the sport even more. Eaton didn't make any promises to me but I was able to make it."

After a good season with the Mounties, the big tackle considered offers from Oregon State, Utah and Hawaii before deciding to stay home at Poly.

"Coach Andy Vinci encouraged me to go to Poly," Costeldia explained. "He convinced me it would be to my advantage later to stay home."

Costeldia arrived last spring at Poly weighing 330 pounds but he is now down to 285.

"Bobby has really worked on getting in shape," offensive line coach Tom Hoffman says. "He has worked on his flexibility and is a definite pro prospect if he keeps improving. He can really move now and makes our offensive line go."

Costeldia is majoring in physical education and enjoyed his summer work as a counselor at Boys Republic.

"I enjoyed working with the kids," he said. "They need help."

Playing for a winning team plus being away from it for two years, Costeldia loves football. "It has helped me a lot of ways," he said. "It has made me more of a man."

BRONC BUSTERS — Northern Arizona comes to Pomona with an 1-1 record. The Lumberjacks defeated defending CCAA champion UC Riverside, 34-30, and lost to Idaho, 22-12.

NAU, a member of the Big Sky Conference, is Division II in football but Division I in basketball. The university, located in mountain country at Flagstaff, is building a domed stadium for football, basketball, hockey, track and other activities.

Cornerback Jim Poettgen was named the CCAA Defensive Player of the Week for his two interceptions in the 41-17 win over Cal State Hayward. He returned the first one 28 yards for a touchdown.

Vinci is hoping the Broncos will start getting some national recognition. He is basing his hopes on comparative scores with Boise State, which is rated third in this week's AP small college poll. Boise beat Hayward, 42-20, the week before.

The Broncos are well ahead in total offense in the first CCAA statistics with 494.5 yards per game and rate second behind Northridge on defense.

Vinci felt the kicking game was much better against Hayward. Punter Kim Crockett, a product of Pasadena City College, averaged 41.4 yards a kick.

Kicking around

"COOPERATION OR HAVOC . . . SOCCER OR SHAM?"

Last week we had lunch and a long talk with Kendall Webb of the CIF Administration at its Artesia headquarters. Kendall saw one of our articles concerning the application of the CIF rule restricting high school players from playing with an outside team during the high school season.

Our articles have appeared in the national weekly SOCCER AMERICA, the YOUTH SPORTS monthly and at various times in our KICKIN' AROUND column in the Pomona Progress Bulletin and the Ontario Daily Report, and on our soccer radio show over KSOM-FM.

Kendall's invitation was the first notice we had that CIF was aware of our efforts to get into this problem.

The CIF rule says no CIF player may play with an outside team during the high school season . . . in the same sport. In other words, a soccer player may not play soccer with an outside team at the same time he is playing with a CIF team.

Organizations like the California Youth Soccer Assn. South, the Pacific Soccer League and the vast AYSO offer playing opportunity to well over 150,000 kids from 7 to 19 years in this game supposedly alien-to-the-American sports scene . . . plus a multitude of ethnic leagues operating all over Southern California.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE SOCCER PLAYER occurs in the early years as he progresses thru the age divisions. Suddenly around age 15 the soccer player is told he can no longer play with his outside team if he wants to TRYOUT for his high school team. Only a percentage make the high school team due to the overbalance of youth players and the limited number of high school teams available.

Coaches in the Pomona Valley have already told their high school players they cannot play outside soccer starting Nov. 1st, altho the first league games don't get going till the first week of January. Players who don't make the high school team must give up their outside team while trying out.

This restriction decimates the top two divisions of AYSO, for example, which involves players of ages 15-16 and 17-18. One AYSO team lost 10 of its regulars to three different high schools last year. Spotting the problem in advance the Pomona AYSO Commissioner quickly obtained the use of a field with lights, and doubled the schedule of the divisions involved and its schedule was played in half the time by utilizing weeknights and Saturdays.

The residue of players from that division who did not try for or make the high school team were left idle from December on, defeating the purpose of the league . . . that of keeping the players busy . . . the essence of all youth programs.

THE SITUATION OCCURRED LAST SPRING wherein a youth team from Hamburg, Germany was touring the U.S. and requested a game vs the Pomona Valley players.

A group of AYSO players was selected but notice came quickly from the CIF office to coaches of high school teams in the area that none of their CIF players would be permitted to play on any allstar team until the school season was over. The CIF said no CIF player could play outside or allstar till after June 1st, the official end of the CIF season. The last game of the CIF season had been played two months earlier!

Conscientious CIF coaches dutifully pulled their players from the allstar team rather than risk ineligibility rulings against their schools. CIF seniors ignored the ruling and played the game.

It is our contention that the CIF ruling does not apply FAIRLY to soccer and its situation. Youth soccer commences in September and goes into March playoffs. The CIF soccer season is from January 1 thru February. Soccer people argue that soccer players need a much longer season than the high school period of play to teach ball control and the understanding of strategies in a floating game like soccer.

Organizers and coaches from Washington, Missouri and Virginia have offered to contribute money to assist in taking the situation to court, saying that no governing body should be able to tell its taxpayers what their sons and daughters can or cannot do after school hours or on weekends . . . this on the basis of violation of a civil right.

The youth league is agreeable to allowing its players to play with the high schools but the CIF wants to restrict the youth player from playing with his youth club. Any adult with a memory of childhood can recall the feeling of social status and herodom that comes with participating in high school athletics. We're for that, but our soccer players need far more soccer action than the high schools can provide. Yet the high school syndrome is the gateway to scholarships and we want our youth to play high school soccer. Is it asking too much to request they play with their own youth team on Saturdays?

The result of all this is that many players are playing outside incognito. Some in three or four different ethnic leagues, plus high school. Nothing is done unless an opposing coach submits a protest. The same coaches are continually violating the training rules by having their team out practicing earlier than the CIF rules allow. Will these same coaches have the gall to protest on ineligibility? It makes the outside team rule restriction appear as sham. What harm could come from allowing a player to play with whomever he cares to play . . . as long as there is not a direct conflict in gametime?

How can this be accomplished and who can do it? The key man is the high school principal who has voting power in CIF rule changes . . . not the coach, the athletic director, or player or parent . . . but the parent can sure put some pressure on the principal to look deeply into the "outside team" ruling in the CIF.

We know three individual parties who are prepared to sue CIF on the grounds of civil rights violation. There is an easier way. Get to your high school principal and tell

Claremont Sun wins Pop Warner game

In a key Pop Warner game last week in the Mt. Baldy Conference, the Claremont Sun blanked the Pomona Bruins, 18-0, at Pomona-Pitzer's Alumni Field.

Dan Sanders led the Sun to its Junior Midget Division victory by carrying the ball 17 times for 140 yards and one touchdown and catching two passes from Trak Sims for 25 yards.

Sanders was also outstanding on defense with 10 tackles and four sacks while teammate Duwan Franklin had seven tackles and three sacks. Buddy Matthews intercepted a Pomona pass for a touchdown.

Matthews also rushed for 100 yards on 10 carries while Gary Williams had 80 yards on 10 tries.

In a Pee Wee Division game, the Claremont Buccaneers also enjoyed a shutout in a 19-0 win over the San Bernardino Rebels.

The Bucs rolled up 223 total yards with Steve Perez (122, one TD), Brice Vaughn (68, one TD) and Paul Schlick (18, one TD) leading the way.

Outstanding defensive players were Perez (nine tackles), Ricky Hermosillo (seven), John Weimann (seven), Schlick (five) and James Perry (five).

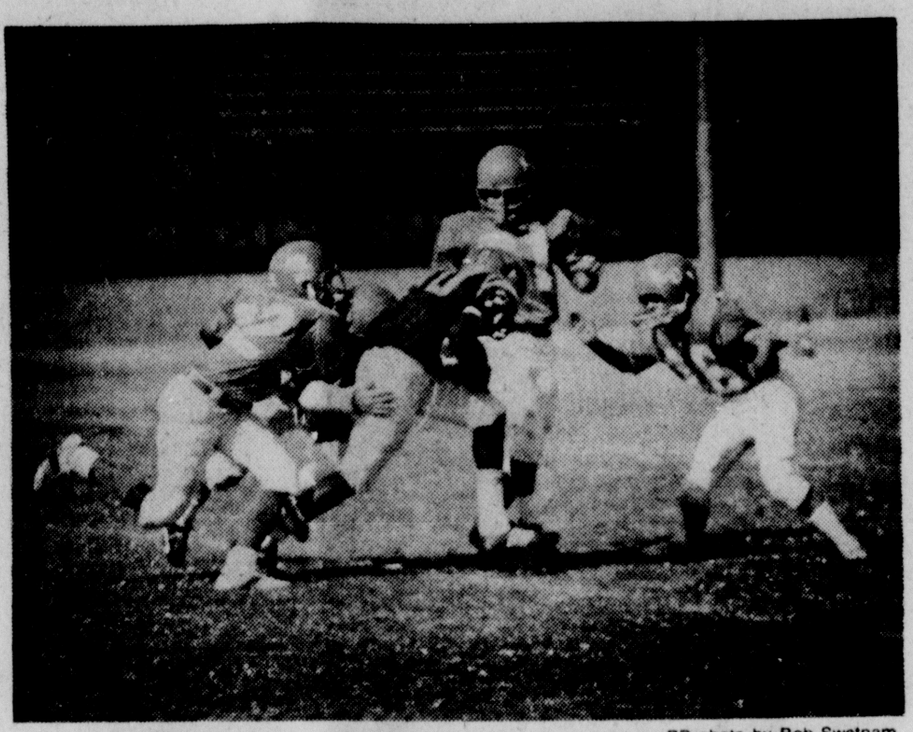

The Pomona Bengals enjoyed a 28-0 shutout win over the Montclair Marauders in a Midget Division contest. Gary White led the defending Western Division champions by rushing for 189 yards and two touchdowns.

The defense scored a TD when tackle Robert Sabin ran 30 yards on a pass interception return. Rodney Dixon scored the final TD. Felix Jones and Ernie Gregorire scored a pair of extra points apiece.

In Pee Wee action, the Pomona Sharks defeated the Fontana Lions, 13-6, thanks to the blocking of the offensive line.

Marc Pruitt scored the first Sharks' TD on a 40-yard run while Kitrick Taylor passed to Brian Turner for the second score. Ricky McConnell scored the extra point on a pass from Taylor. Jerry Campbell led the ground attack with 107 yards on six carries.

The Pomona Razorbacks fell to the Ontario Bears, 19-6, in a Junior Pee Wee game. Roderick Carter scored the Razorbacks' TD on a 45-yard run. Lewis Raymond and Joseph Stein recovered fumbles.

Outlook up for WFL

NEW YORK (AP) — World Football League owners concluded a two-day meeting here Wednesday, and league President Chris Hemmeter said that "no problem exists as to our present 10 teams completing the 1975 season.

"Our meeting discussed future 1976 and 1977 franchising and merchandising. Certain irregularities of a minor nature were adjusted at this meeting."

The WFL presently is averaging just under 14,000 paid admissions per game, slightly under the break-even point required in the Hemmeter plan of league financing. At Shreveport, about 20 of the players are working on a new contract with a minimum per-game salary guarantees of $250 as opposed to the original guarantee of $500.

Hemmeter said the WFL has received four expansion applications for 1976 and 1977 and expects to make a siginificant announcement either later this week or early next week. At present, no definitive action has been taken on a prospective New York franchise.

Chargers sign Stein

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Veteran linebacker Bob Stein signed Wednesday with the San Diego Chargers, his third National Football League team since being drafted in the fifth round in 1969.

Stein, 6-foot-2, 235, played for the Kansas City Chiefs until they traded him with two future draft choices to Los Angeles in 1972 for running back Willie Ellison and quarterback Pete Beathard.

Stein was a victim of the Rams' final cut of the 1975 season.

A graduate of the University of Mississsippi, Stein earned a law degree at Missouri. He signed as a free agent with the Chargers after showing up at practice.

Lavish spending by Jacqueline Onassis cited

CHICAGO — (BW) — A comprehensive analysis of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis' finances by MONEY Magazine in its october issue indicates that when her late husband's will goes into effect, she might be operating her household in the red.

The magazine estimates Mrs. Onassis' annual income will amount to about $34,000 next year, or a little less than $241,000 after taxes — some $40,000 short of keeping up with her current level of spending.

(The author of the article, Peter Bird Martin, said Mrs. Onassis' new job as a consulting editor for a book publisher, which was announced as MONEY went to press, "probably will not make up the anticipated shortfall between her income and outgo.")

The article also reveals the following:

—Money has learned from sources close to Aristotle Onassis' family in Athens that Mrs. Onassis now is negotiating with Onassis' executors for an additional $100,000 payment for not contesting the will. The Onassis will shows he "clearly expected that his wife might challenge the will, and several of its provisions are designed to fend her off," the magazine says, adding that the billionaire "made no provision for total defeat by Mrs. Onassis' lawyers.

—The luxurious yacht and island left to Jacqueline and Onassis' daughter, Christina, are an expensive, mixed blessing. Maintenance of the properties costs $500,000 and $100,000 a year, respectively. Moreover, they cannot be sold. If given up, the yacht must be donated to Greece for the chief of state's use, and the island must be offered to Greece as a resort for the chief of state or for Olympic Airlines employes.

—Mrs. Onassis will receive only $37,050 in tax exempt income from the trust of John F. Kennedy which now is valued at $570,000. These figures never before published, are based on the publicly disclosed value of the Kennedy estate — $1.8 million in 1965 — half bequeathed to Jacqueline and on representative portfolio performances since that time.

Working from public records and an analysis of investment performances, MONEY figures that Mrs. Onassis' 1976 gross income of $341,000 includes $100,000 from a tax exemp prenuptial trust (which reverts to the Onassis estate on Jacqueline's death), $100,000 of fully taxable income under the Onassis will, and a possible $100,000 from the Onassis estate for not challenging the will.

The remainder of her income is comrised of $37,050 from the Kennedy trust and a $4,160 in income from an inheritance left by her father, John Vernou Bouvier III.

Exceeding Mrs. Onassis' income by $40,000 is an outgo estimated to be $381,600. The major items are $100,200 for income taxes, $85,000 for staff and servants, $50,000 for home decoration and renovation and $30,000 each for clothes and the maintenance of her Fifth Avenue apartment.

Mrs. Onassis reportedly spent up to $120,000 a year on clothes when Onassis was alive, but has cut down lately. MONEY says its estimate of $30,000 for clothes could be "on the skimpy side."

The value of Mrs. Onassis' assets is put at $14.4 million. Her two largest assets are her jewelry, worth about $7 million and a 25 per cent share of the art and antique aboard the Onassis yacht that is worth about $6.25 million.

The will permits Mrs. Onassis, if her stepdaughter agrees, to sell some of the yacht's artworks, which include an el Greco painting, an ancient jeweled Buddha and priceless icons, worth at least $25 million.

At the invitation of MONEY, tax specialists and investment counselors examined Mrs. Onassis' finances and offered solutions that might help her make ends meet. To reduce her taxes, one expert suggests that the $100,000 she might get for not challenging the Onassis will could be produced by tax-exempt investments.

Instead of seeking tax shelters, it was thought that Mrs. Onassis should develop tax deductions, such as a gift of her jewelry to a museum with the stipulation that she be allowed to use the jewelry until she dies.

"Diamonds might be a girl's best friend, but she needs more money coming in than she seems to be getting right now," another expert said of Mrs. Onassis' "asset rich and cash poor" position.

He advises her to persuade Christina to divide up the artworks aboard the yacht as a "sweetener" to the agreement not to claim more of the inheritance. It also was pointed out that Mrs. Onassis could get nothing if she loses her lawsuit, while a possible $6.25 million in artworks awaits her in the future.

Mrs. Onassis could solve her problem simply by trimming her lavish spending, which reached about $450,000 a year while Onassis was alive. But if she cannot change her life style, MONEY'S advisers feel she could perhaps convert about $4 million of her jewelry and art to tax exempt investments and another $1 million to a diversified portfolio of growth stocks.

Sacramento rejects Warren's name on community center

SACRAMENTO (AP) — In a loud chorus, Sacramento voters say they don't want the late Earl Warren's name on their new Community Center.

With the votes from 215 of the 229 precincts in Tuesday, the count was 26,615 to 9,848 in favor of changing the name of the Sacramento Earl Warren Community Center to the Sacramento Community Center.

The center had been named by the city council.

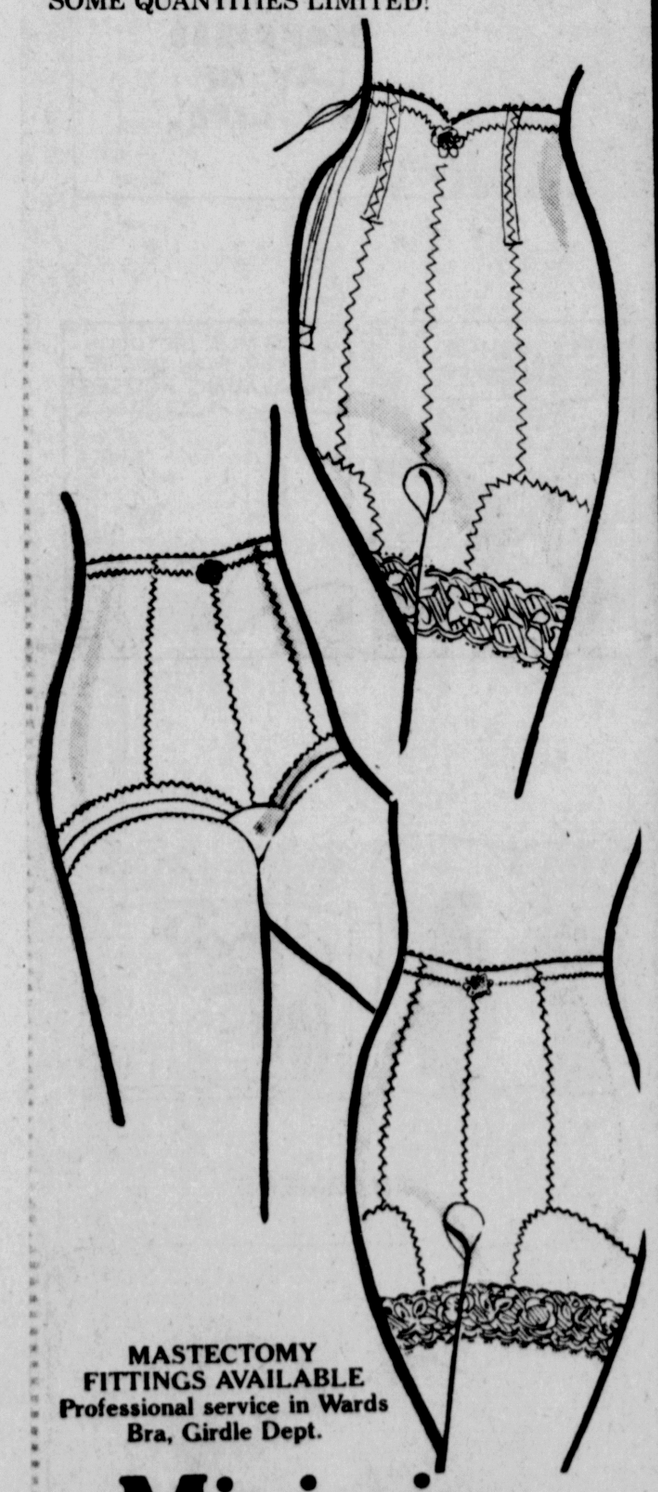

Proponents of the measure contended the voters should be consulted before the name of a politician is placed on any municipal building.

Opponents said Warren, a former governor of California, was responsible for preserving Sacramento as the state capital and was "Sacramento's most illustrious citizen."

Warren, a Republican, was also a U.S. Supreme Court justice.

If you own a pocket-size radio, you may know that it contains parts called transistors.

Transistors are electronic devices that do the work of electronic vacuum tubes in many radio and television sets.

One of the jobs a vacuum tube does in a radio and television set is to amplify, or strengthen, the weak electrical signals picked up by the antenna and change the current into one which can operate the loud speaker or picture tube.

Transistors also amplify electrical signals, but they use much less power than vacuum tubes and take up much less space.

Tiny transistors have made possible smaller television sets, computing machines and many other electronic devices that once depended on vacuum tubes.

Transistors are made in many shapes and sizes, but all consist of materials called semiconductors, such as germanium and silicon. These materials carry electrical current.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Ex-Pomonan returns, promoting Indian book

Henry E. Kirkpatrick, former Pomona piano teacher, returned to Pomona last week from his home in Montague to promote his book, "The Unquenchable Spirit of the Modok Indians."

Kirkpatrick taught piano in Pomona from 1945 to 1957. He still gives a few private lessons, marking his 66th year as a musical educator. He is the author of "Modern Musical Pedagogy" and numerous short stories and poems.

HENRY KIRKPATRICK

"The Unquenchable Spirit" is written in what Kirkpatrick calls "measured prose." He uses the pen name Vern L. Webster. The 104-page work was published by the Yreka Historic Preservation Committee.

The book traces the origin, struggles, triumphs and eventual downfall of the Modoks, a Northern California tribe. Kirkpatrick researched the work for 15 years. The Modok Indian War, 1872-73, was the only major Indian war fought in California. It ended when the tribe surrendered to the U.S. Calvary June 1, 1873. The California Legislature urged observance of the centennial of the war with a resolution in 1971.

Silent movie series put off

The silent film series at the Claremont Colleges has been postponed because of the ill health of professor emeritus of music William G. Blanchard, who accompanies the films on the organ.

The series may be resumed in the second semester of the school year, according to Jay Doty, director of auditorium events.

San Francisco enjoys a high credit rating

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — While New York City is having trouble getting anyone to spare it a dime, San Francisco — even with its $17,000-a-year streetsweepers — enjoys a high credit rating.

"The investor perception of San Francisco ranks probably higher than any other city in the United States," says Merrill Ring, vice president and securities analyst at the Bank of America.

The city can even get away with paying relatively high salaries to its streetsweepers and other employes without scaring off bankers fond of tight-fisted fiscal policies, says Ring.

"That has been taken by the financial community as a curiosity, not as a sin of irresponsibility," Ring says. "What might be viewed as a surrender if it took place in Philadelphia is regarded here as an accommodation."

San Francisco and five other cities have a triple-A rating from Moody's Financial Service. The others are Los Angeles, Houston, Dallas, Milwaukee and Indianapolis.

But a Wells Fargo Bank vice president, John P. Caulfield, cautions: "What we're really saying is that San Francisco is in no danger of falling into a gray area so long as it conducts its affairs as it has in the past."

Prospector broke, eyes new fortune

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)— Charlie Steen, who made and lost a multimillion-dollar Utah uranium fortune, says he's returned to his favorite pasttime—prospecting, primarily in California's Death Valley.

Twenty-three years ago, geologist Steen discovered one of the richest uranium mines in history in southeastern Utah, triggering a uranium boom and accumulating a $15 million fortune.

He says bad investments and tax problems dissolved his fortune. His former $400,000 mansion on a hill overlooking Moab, Utah, is being operated as a museum by one of his sons.

At the height of his wealth, Steen had a $1.9 million mansion in Reno, Nev.

He says he is now nearly broke and still has not settled with the Internal Revenue Service.

"I'm not bitter," Steen says.

PUBLIC NOTICE

RESOLUTION NO. 75-235

A RESOLUTION OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF POMONA, CALIFORNIA, DECLARING ITS INTENTION TO ADOPT AN ORDINANCE AMENDING ORDINANCES 2257 and 2557, WHICH GRANTED A FRANCHISE FOR NATION WIDE CABLEVISION, INC., FOR A CATV SYSTEM IN THE CITY OF POMONA AND SETTING A HEARING DATE THEREON.

SECTION 1. That the Council intends to make an amendment to its Ordinance 2257 and Ordinance 2557 which granted a CATV system franchise to Nation Wide Cablevision, Inc. Such amendment, if adopted, would establish a franchise fee rate of 3 per cent of gross annual receipts with no minimum franchise fee as of March 31, 1977; and which would postpone construction of a city wide cable television system until such time as the service would appear to be marketable in the City of Pomona; and which would delete the present requirement in the franchise that Nation Wide Cablevision, Inc. must install the city fire alarm system and water service telemetering system in the city, except for the Holt Avenue undergrounding district which is presently under construction; and which would reduce the performance bond to $10,000.

All persons interested in such matters may attend a Council meeting of the Pomona City Council on the 6th day of October, 1975, at 8:00 p.m. in the Pomona City Council Chambers, located at 505 S. Garey Avenue, Pomona, California.

SECTION 2. The City Clerk shall publish this resolution in a newspaper of general circulation in the City of Pomona not less than ten (10) days before the hearing referred to herein.

SECTION 3. The Clerk shall certify to the passage and adoption of this resolution, and it shall thereupon be in full force and effect.
